REVEAL SECRET WIFE OF BERN AS HEIR TO ALL HIS WEALTH

Today

There Is Much News
There Were Fairies
Spain's Sudden Change
Rejoice and Be Glad

—By Arthur Brisbane—

MUCH NEWS TODAY. A person no less important than the Rev. Canon J. A. MacCulloch says belief in fairies has a real foundation. In glacial times there lived in Britain a pygmy race, now disappeared, so small they could have been called fairies.

Others will be more interested in news from Stockholm that Greta Garbo is in bed with a bad cold, on her Swedish island.

Those with a "world view" of things will be interested in Germany's argument with Paris on the German demand for the right to build up a big army. Germany says she will build it anyhow, consent or no consent. France is asking our opinion about it. We ought not to have an opinion, it is not our business.

Rudy Vallee's wife decides not to divorce her husband after all and hurries away from Reno as fast as trains, airplanes and taxicabs can take her, saying, "All a mistake. I love my husband."

The favorite quotation of Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, distinguished editor and publisher of Washington, D. C., fits this occasion.

Souvent femme varie, mal habile, qui s'y fie.

Spain has abolished the death penalty, the maximum term of imprisonment twenty years, no life imprisonment. Also, new in Spain, unfaithful husbands and wives are to be punished equally, no favors for the husband.

This ending of the death penalty is all the more striking because Spain through the centuries has specialized in the infliction of death, with thousands burned and tortured for religious disbelief, death inflicted on slight provocation.

Old fashioned people will say "You can't have any justice if you do away with the death penalty."

In France after the Revolution judges said: "Justice will be a farce if you don't allow us to torture witnesses to make them tell the truth even when they are not accused of any crime."

[illegible]

However, that didn't put the eleven millions idle back to work. An increase of seven thousand million dollars in stock values is pleasant. Not so pleasant is the fact that idleness of eleven million men costs this country more than THIRTY-SIX THOUSAND MILLIONS a year in lost wages. The rise in stocks reminds you of the pretty music that Nero is supposed to have played while Rome burned.

Strange scene in Germany. Col. Theodore Duesterberg, candidate for the German presidency and second leader of the Monarchist Stahlhelm, or steel helmet society of Germany, a man who distinguished himself in the war, resigns his important position, telling his associates, "I actually originated from Jews, but I have only now learned the facts myself." His father was named Abraham Selig. Newspapers had attacked him because of his Jewish ancestry.

The steel helmet gentlemen may learn, as the Kaiser did after 1914, that it is foolish to ignore wise Jewish co-operation and advice if you can get them. Any one of a thousand Jews could have told the Kaiser that Italy would not stick to Germany and Austria and that England WOULD go to the assistance of France.

Germany's diplomatic service excluded Jews, and Germans paid the price of the exclusion.

So called "Reds," who are in reality men out of work, miserable and dissatisfied, demanded a talk with Joseph V. McKee, who for the time is Mayor of New York. To their surprise the new mayor said: "Come down on Saturday and we can talk all you like."

That is a queer idea, but it may be a good idea in a country which usually believes in sitting on the safety valve. England has always let people talk to their hearts' content in Hyde Park and elsewhere, on the theory that if you let them TALK they won't ACT.

Far off in London across the bounding sea, Mayor Cermak, of Chicago, says his blood "boils at the raw deal that Chicago is getting in European papers, particularly British." Nevertheless, he invites everybody to Chicago for the fair next spring, solemnly promising "we shall have beer, legal, plenty and well made."

There is no doubt that Chicago will have beer for the exposition, legal or not. To Chicago, as elsewhere, Ring Lardner's remark, "Prohibition is better than no beer or whiskey," applies.

Needy Man Gets Thank You for Finding $50

A Medford store manager recovered $70 in a pocketbook before he was aware of his loss today—and the honest man was one of Medford's unemployed.

The pocketbook was found in the sub-postoffice, Main st., South Medford. The jobless man made a few inquiries and learned the store manager was among those who had been in.

He returned it, intact, and received:

"Thank You."

STOCKS LOWER AT CLOSE

New York, Sept. 8—Stocks closed with a weak tone in today's active dealings in Wall St. Selling in the shares market was largely influenced by the break of $4 a bale in cotton. Early gains of from 1 to 3 points were converted into losses of similar proportions. Turnover approximately 5,500,000 shares.

Issues losing 2 to 4 points included Auburn, American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Union Pacific, Atchison, Case and Allied Chemical, while losses of a point or more were numerous.

A final rally brought the list slightly above the lows for the day.

Roosevelt Sweep in Illinois Predicted

New York, Sept. 8 (AP)—Congressman A. J. Sabath of Chicago, who represented the Fifth Illinois District in the House for more than 26 years, predicted today in a statement through Democratic national headquarters that Illinois will give Governor Roosevelt a majority of half a million Nov. 8.

GALE SWEEPS TOWARD BOSTON

Weather Bureau Warns Storm of Hurricane Force is Heading This Way

Lashing up the coast, a gale of hurricane force was headed for Boston and New England today, with the advance breath of the tempest so violent at noon that a plateglass window in [illegible] tered.

The weather bureau in Washington, because of the advance of the gale, ordered storm warnings posted from Cape Hatteras to Eastport, Me., and warned shipping in that area that navigation would be dangerous for the next 48 hours.

A severe tropical storm is responsible for the disturbance and its accompanying breath of chill winter, which kept the mercury steadily dropping all night until the 54-degree mark was reached at 6 a. m.

40 MILES AN HOUR

In New York and some other ports in the warned area, operation of small craft was practically at a standstill and the weather bureau in Washington said the hurricane winds would increase rapidly in force after nightfall.

At noon today the wind was whistling and howling out of the northeast at 40 miles an hour off Highland Light and small craft were racing for shelter against the approach of the more severe storm, which may be accompanied by rain, continually probably until tomorrow.

The wind blew out a window in the third floor office of Livingston & Co., stock brokers, at 75 Federal st., but no one was injured.

LASHES BEACHES

The gale and cold weather drove bathers away from the beaches and the surf at Nantasket, even at three-quarter tide, was reported as the worst since the winter of 1927 when the five-masted schooner Nancy was driven high up on the beach, where it has defied efforts to float it again.

At the Squantum Yacht Club the float broke away from its moorings and yachtsmen, after rescuing it, hastened to haul up smaller craft they feared would break away and be lost.

BALANCES AND RECEIPTS

Washington, Sept. 8—Today's Treasury balance $322,663,154; U. S. Customs receipts $4,621,853.

It is he who put the Holy Father's words into English for the English-speaking world.

NEW BISHOP SAYS MASS

The consecration ceremony took place before the Cathedral altar on the gospel side of the great cathedral. At the side of the altar a smaller one was erected for the new bishop, who wore a rich chasuble, covered with fine embroidery.

At this smaller altar Mgr. Spellman said his mass at the same time that Cardinal Pacelli read his at the cathedral altar. The consecration ceremony itself began with the ritualistic formal examination of the new bishop, conducted by Cardinal Pacelli, sitting in the throne chair at the side of the altar, while Archbishop Pizzardo and Mgr. Borgongini-Duca, substitute Papal Secretary of State, as consecrators, stood beside him.

The questions of the cardinal and the replies of the new bishop were in set form and designed to estab-

BOSTON'S NEW BISHOP

In a brilliant ceremony Msgr. Francis J. Spellman of Whitman was today consecrated bishop at St. Peter's in Rome, and will come here shortly as auxiliary bishop of Boston to assist Cardinal O'Connell. Msgr. Spellman is the first American bishop to have been consecrated in St. Peter's. The consecration was made by His Eminence Eugenio Pacelli, papal secretary of state. (Photo by Henderson.)

FATHER IS SAVED BY SON'S BLOOD

Two blood transfusions, given today to Peter J. Fitzgerald by his son, Peter, Jr., of the Everett police, improved the condition of the 65-year-old man, who is gravely ill at the Massachusetts General hospital.

Alderman George W. Fitzgerald of Everett, another son, also volunteered to give his blood, while three members of the Everett fire department offered their servicees, following a call by Mayor O'Neill, and stood by all night.

HEIRESS KILLED BY LIVE WIRE

Cheboygan, Mich., Sept. 8 (INS)—Escaping injury almost miraculously today when the car in which she was riding struck an electric light pole, Miss Marion Meyers, 21, Ashland, O., heiress, stepped from the wreckage onto a high tension wire and was electrocuted. She was a student of Smith College.

The drivr of the car, Emory Frambach, 25, of Paterson, N. J., was booked on drunken driving charges and later released pending investigation. Frambach is well known socially in Detroit and Toledo. He was not seriously hurt.

Miss Myers was on a vacation trip and was to return to Smith college as a senior this fall. She was a graduate of Choate school in Brookline, Mass., and the daughter of Guy C. Myers, vice-president of the F. E. Myers Brother Co.

ELY BACKS DRIVE ON JOB GOUGERS

Governor Ely today endorsed the campaign against highway contractors who have been discriminating against veterans and citizens and which is now being revealed exclusively in the Boston Evening American.

"The drive which Commissioner Smith has been making with the co-operation of Commissioner Lyman, to bring offending road contractors into line has had and will have my full support," Gov. Ely said.

"I have no sympathy for the contractor who seeks to evade his responsibilities under the labor laws. The preference rights of veterans and citizens must be upheld.

"Any contractor who thwarts the efforts of the state department and fails to observe the labor laws of the state and the plain requirements of the Massachusetts state contracts should not be eligible for future contracts."

Five hundred unemployed, representing Hingham, Hull and a part of Weymouth, registered today for work on the new Hingham-Cohasset State road being constructed under the Relief measure enacted by the last Congress.

Later 200 more jobless are expected to register from Scituate and Cohasset. Work on the new road will start immediately.

Hollywood, Sept. 8—A new [illegible] today to the life of Paul Bern, brilliant film executive and husband of Jean Harlow, who killed himself, when it was learned a red-headed woman known as Mrs. Paul Bern had lived in the Algonquin Hotel in New York until January 1.

Hotel officials disclosed that Bern visited her about once a year while he was in New York on business trips, and that twice a month he sent checks to pay her bills.

The woman was described as about 32 years old "with flaming red tresses and of the bookish type."

Dispatches from New York indicated that her maiden name was Dorothy Millett, and that Bern in 1920 made a will leaving her all his property.

In January she gave up her suite in the Algonquin and planned to ship her trunks to San Francisco.

Leaving the hotel she gave no forwarding address, but declared she planned to "spend some time with friends that I haven't seen for years."

Other developments in the strange case were:

1—Midnight conference in Bern's home between Henry Bern, his brother, and Jean Harlow, discussing the secret reasons for Paul's act.

2—Announcement by Henry Bern that a statement would be made after he had conferred with relatives.

3—Service of a subpoena on Miss Harlow to appear at the inquest into her husband's death today.

4—Revelation that Bern's health had long been a source of anxiety to him, and that it tended to aggravate his periods of melancholia.

5—Announcement from Honolulu that Dr. Edward B. Jones, Bern's physician, would produce the data on the film executive's affliction for investigators.

6—Revelation that for 10 years Paul Bern was, in his own eyes, married to another woman, described only as a "gorgeous red-head."

7—Announcement that Miss Harlow was in no physical

Janitor Held in $500 On Liquor Charge

Being only the janitor of the French Naturalization Club in Clinton st., Chelsea, Peter Wedge claimed he couldn't be expected to know whether it was tonic or near beer or beer he was drinking when prohibition agents arrived. He said he didn't know anything about 39 bottles of beer and a half pint of liquor in an ice chest.

But, he was held in $500 on a charge of possessing liquor for sale, in federal court today.

HENDERSON WARNS OF DISASTER AT ARMS PARLEY

BRITISH LEADER FEARS THREATS OF GERMANY

Other Powers Must Yield to Berlin's Demands, Asserts Conference President

Newcastle-on-Tyne, Eng., Sept. 8 (INS)—Arthur Henderson, former British minister of foreign affairs and now president of the World Disarmament Conference, declared today the arms parley would face "disaster" if Germany deserted its sessions, as she has threatened to do if not granted arms equality.

Addressing the Trade Unions Congress, Henderson said:

"The disarmament conference will be faced at an early date with a severely critical situation arising out of the calm that Germany should be allowed to arm.

"WOULD MEAN DISASTER

"If Germany left the conference it would mean disaster. It would lead to a renewal and even an intensification of the old competitive race for armaments."

Referring to the German claim that the matter must be handled by the Allies and associated powers, Henderson said:

"Those powers have an obligation to discharge toward the vanquished countries. They should come to an agreement and declare frankly and publicly they are prepared to discharge those obligations.

DEMANDS PROGRAM

"Let them bring forward to the Geneva conference a practical program for a substantial and comprehensive reduction in arms, including those weapons of an especially offensive character which are prohibited to Germany and other nations under the Versailles treaty.

"Such a program would impress the world. It would convince the vanquished powers we are determined to redeem long-standing pledges, and it would make settlement of the German problem considerably easier."

The congress adopted a resolution asking application of the Hoover disarmament proposals as a minimum of arms reduction. This brought objection from a delegate representing the South Wales Miners Union, who de[illegible] "the archangel [illegible] urged adoption [illegible] proposals adv[illegible]sia.

Hitler Defies Von Papen to Dissolve Reichstag

Berlin, Sept. 8 (INS)—The battle lines between Adolf Hitler and the Von Papen government were definitely drawn today.

Hitler's National Socialists almost certainly will form a coalition with the Catholic Centrists of former Chancellor Bruening and thus present a majority rule of the Reichstag when it reconvenes on Monday next.

This Reichstag almost certainly will be dissolved by the chancellor immediately after he has read his program, a step made possible by the emergency decree signed by President Von Hindenburg and now carried in Von Papen's pocket, ready for use at any time.

Such a dissolution, however, will not dishearten the Nazis. Hitler, in a fiery speech at Munich last night, challenged Von Papen to a fight to the end.

"We won't let you keep power, not if you dissolve the Reichstag ten times," he said.

Dissolution would necessitate another nationwide election, the fourth this year. Hitler is confident he would gain in another poll.

France Insists She Must Consult Other Powers

Paris, Sept. 8 (AP)—The French press emphasized today that France feels she has no right to reply to the German aide memoire demanding arms equality without consulting the other powers.

Germany's demand, it was remarked, affects not only the treaty of Verdailles but other acords, such as the naval treaties of Washington and London.

Several newspapers, particularly Le Petit Parisien, stressed the need for concentrating efforts to increase international security against war rather than for rearmament.

They predicted, however, that Germany's initiative was likely to be followed by Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria.

France Gives Edge Copy of German Arms Plea

Washington, Sept. 8 (INS)—State department officials today admitted for the first time France has transmitted to the American government a copy of the German aide memoire demanding arms equality with the rest of the world.

The French copy was handed to Ambassador Walter Edge in Paris, and has not been received here yet. The French government transmitted the note without comment.

BRITISH HOPES DASHED ON U. S. DEBT REVISION

Efforts to Obtain Private Understanding With Hoover Bared in London

London, Sept. 8 (INS)—Pessimism over the possibility of war debt revision by the United States was expressed today by the Financial News, Britain's leading financial publication.

Coincident with the growing belief that Britain's next debt instalment of approximately $121,800,000, due on Dec. 15, would be paid on schedule, the Financial News reviewed the events of the last few months and concluded that public opinion in the United States appeared to preclude the possibility of revision at present.

"Any private understanding with President Hoover—and there is very good reason to believe that indirect approaches have been made with a view to obtaining such an understanding—would only be of value in the event Mr. Hoover was returned to office," the editorial declared.

"As a consequence, something more than a private understanding really is required.

The final date on which permission to postpone the instalment may be sought from Washington is September 15, one week from today. Financial and government leaders believe the period will elapse without word from London.

The Financial News pointed out that in any case only part of the payment may be postponed under the terms of the Baldwin-Mellon agreement. This portion amounts to one-sixth of the total instalment.

Afterward followed the chanting of the "Presagio," exalting the priesthood and invoking the divine protection of the new prelate.

Cardinal Pacelli then knelt and recited the "Veni Creator Spiritus," beseeching the Holy Ghost to descend upon the bishop-elect, after which he annointed the new bishop's head and hands and temporarily bound his hands with white bonds of silk.

PRESENTED WITH CROZIER

Later the bishop's crozier was presented to him and the cardinal kissed him on both cheeks, completing the ceremony of consecration, while the choir sang the hymn, "Veni Creator Spiritus."

The masses then proceeded and at the offertory there was a special ceremony characteristic of the consecration rite. The new bishop offered the consecrator a gift of candles, bread and wine.

At the communion the cardinal broke the consecrated host in two, consuming half and offering the rest to Bishop Spellman.

At the conclusion of the mass the cardinal imposed on the new [illegible] at the head of a procession among the congregation to give his first episcopal blessing.

Returning to the cathedral altar, he genuflected three times on the altar steps, saying each time to the cardinal in a louder voice, "Ad multos annos," wishing him long life.

After prayers of thanksgiving Bishop Spellman and the other prelates went to the sacristy where a throng of friends and acquaintances offered their congratulations, kissed the bishop's ring and received his episcopal blessing.

Back home in Whitman as a boy Bishop Spellman used to divide his time when not working for his father between being a crack shortstop and a brilliant Latin student. Latin was his only notable scholastic attainment in those days, but his scholarship began to show in high school, at Fordham University, where he graduated in 1911, and later at the Propaganda Fide, as a student at the American College here. One of the new bishop's prides has been his reputation as the best horseshoe pitcher in his home town.

He was a member of the papal mission to the Eucharistic Congress at Dublin last summer.

The ceremony began at 8:15 a. m. and ended at 10:55. The scene was gorgeous with the rich vestments of the prelates.

The large audience included representatives from the American embassy and consulate, the American college and scores of Vatican notables. [illegible] ing the Mayor of Boston.

The Pontiff gave each of the men a gold pontifical medal and presented a rosary to the women.

He told Bishop Spellman he was particularly glad the consecration came on this day, for it is the birthday of the Madonna and the anniversary of the day when His Holiness took possession of the archbishopric of Milan.

He told the bishop he would give him a pectal cross, which is being finished at a jeweler's.

Then he imparted his blessing and sent his best wishes to the American episcopate, expressing the hope that it will always be under the protection of the Madonna. Before they parted he gave the bishop a gold medal of the Immaculate Virgin for Monsignor Spellman's mother.

Quiet Milton Burglar Loots 14 Homes

A lone burglar, who aroused only one person in all his prowlings, ransacked 14 homes in East Milton early today, but totalled a disappointing sum for his labors.

In the 14 burglaries, during which it was evident that the intruder was looking only for cash, he collected $10.10.

When Edward Baker arrived home in Collamore rd., he discovered it had been ransacked, but nothing was missing. Patrolman George Bertram started a tour of the district.

He sighted a screen up in the home of Arthur Cassereno, 84 Emerson rd., and woke the occupants, who discovered the house had been ransacked, but nothing taken.

Patrolman Bertram next sighted a raised screen in the James Thomson home, 171 Church st. A dime left on the kitchen table had been taken.

Eventually it was discovered 14 homes had been raided. In the home of Mrs. Helen Crosby at 20 Howe st., $10 was missing.

Mrs. Frank Poor of 86 Wood st. told police she was awakened by a noise and saw a man raising a screen. As she switched on a light, the man fled. She saw the man enter the George A. Bayer home, 90 Wood st.

Because she has just returned from a vacation her telephone had not been connected, and she could not telephone police.

STATE FIREMEN RE-ELECT KOEN

Springfield, Sept. 8 (AP)—All officers of the Massachusetts State Firemen's Association were re-elected at today's convention here. E. W. Riley of Chelsea unsuccessfully contested for election to the board of directors.

Re-elected are James S. Koen of Salem as president; Joseph J. King of Lawrence and F. T. McNamara of Swampscott, vice-presidents, and Daniel J. Cavanaugh of Holyoke, Capt. Henry Hilton of Gloucester and Alfred Vania of Worcester, directors; Edward K. Coveney of Boston, commissioner of relief fund and W. A. Adams of Worcester, sergeant-at-arms.

The auxiliary re-elected: President, Mrs. Nancy Geary of Fall [illegible] ary, Mrs. Mar[illegible] body; sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. Mary Reinehalter of Boston, and custodian, Mrs. Mary Whalen of Boston.

ELY CONSIDERS EXTRA SESSION

Speaker Leverett Saltonstall of the House was closeted for almost an hour today with Governor Ely, discussing the advisability of calling a special session of the Legislature for relief of cities and towns that have been hard hit by public welfare expenditures.

Governor Ely later said no decision had yet been reached.

Saltonstall's only comment was:

FRIENDS HONOR PARENTS OF NEW BISHOP

Neighbors Congratulate Spellman Family in the Whitman Home; Mother Overjoyed

In the peace and quiet of their Whitman home, parents of Rt. Rev. Francis J. Spellman slumbered today at the hour of their son's consecration as bishop of Boston.

It was 2 a. m. in Whitman and 8 a. m. in Rome when the former Whitman boy received the bishop's crozier and the bishopric blessing from Cardinal Pacelli in Vatican City.

Mrs. Ellen Conway Spellman, barred by illness from the long trip that she would needs take to witness the ceremony, awoke to the new day, however, with the announcement that she was feeling much better.

"No," she replied to a question, "I am not at all excited. It is God's will. My boy is happy and we all are happy."

PARENTS CONGRATULATED

William Spellman, father of the new bishop; Mrs. George Garrity and Mrs. Arthur Pegnan, sisters, made up the family group at Whitman.

Callers came through the day, faces beaming, congratulations upon their lips.

Old friends and neighbors they were. Folks who knew Frank Spellman when he played baseball on the sandlots of Whitman, who [illegible]

RALLIES FROM ATTACK

She had been stricken with a heart attack, the second in six months. She rallied but could not take the trip overseas.

But today her thought included "Dr. John" and "Dr. Martin," two other sons who dashed from their Back Bay offices when their mother was stricken.

Bishop Spellman Grateful to Pope

Vatican City, Sept. 8 (INS)—"I feel extremely gratified over the Pontiff's generosity in promoting me," Monsignor Spellman, newly consecrated bishop, declared after his audience with Pope Pius today.

"He recalled that this date has always been dear to him, for it was on the eighth of September that he became archbishop of Milan.

"He gave his blessing to the Boston diocese as well as the 14 Bostonians I presented to him."

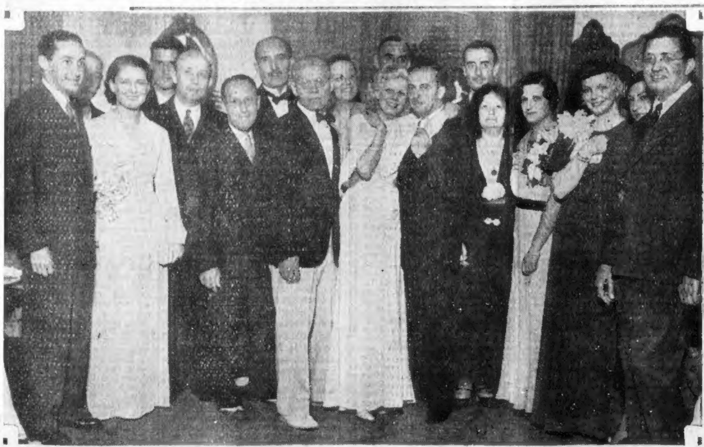
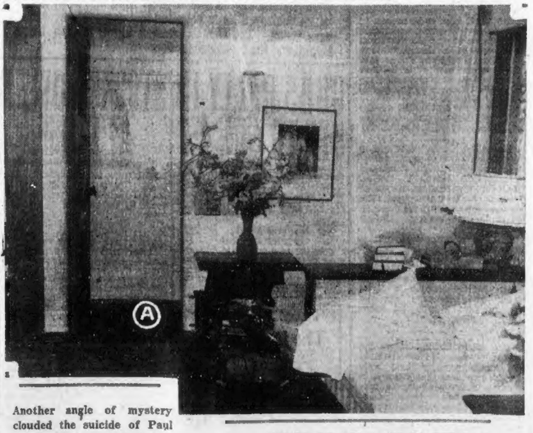
The Governor referred the matter to the game and fish department.

When Love Crowned Star's Life Before Death Came to Blast Her Honeymoon Happiness



WHEN JEAN AND PAUL WERE WED IN BRILLIANT FILMDOM CEREMONY

Hollywood's latest tragedy follows by a mere two months the wedding of Jean Harlow, "queen of the platinum blondes" to Paul Bern. Now Bern is dead, a mystifying suicide note is unexplained, and a secret love affair of his past has been revealed to add to the tangle police are seeking to solve. This wedding picture shows Jean and Paul in the center. Guests included John Gilbert and his bride, Norma Shearer and her husband, Irving Thalberg (at left) and other film notables. Note the happy expression of the newlywed bride, to be so soon effaced by grief. (International News photos.)



WHERE DEATH CAME TO BERN

Another angle of mystery clouded the suicide of Paul Bern as it was revealed that, besides the beautiful Jean Harlow, his platinum blonde bride, there was "another woman" in his life at the time of his death. Just as that fact became known, police released this photograph of the room in which Bern's body was found at the spot marked "A." It lay in the dressing-room adjoining the bedroom today as the inquest was conducted Jean Harlow remained away—too ill to go through with it—but Bern's brother was ther

Vallee May Change His Radio Style, His Bride Says on Reaching California

By GILBERT GORDON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

San Francisco, Sept. 8 (INS)—"Just a little family squabble—all patched up!"

Outbound from Reno, where she had stopped, changed her mind about a divorce and skipped out on the next train, Mrs. Fay Webb Vallee, wife of Rudy Vallee, vagabond radio singer, crooned this greeting today in her native California, eagerly awaiting a reunion with her husband.

Disembarking here from a Reno train, te vivacious young actress, radiant in a pale green ensemble, was escorted by a husky, six-foot officer of the law.

"Meet my father—Chief of Police Clarence E. Webb of Santa Monica," he smiled.

Chief Webb had been visiting his daughter in New York when the marital rift came, so Mrs. Vallee and Dad made the Reno trip together, and both are leaving San Francisco tonight for his Los Angeles County home.

24 HOURS IN RENO

Enroute to San Francisco, the radio crooner's wife, garbed in flaming red pajamas for hot weather train comfort, summarized her Reno in-and-out for International News Service with this elapsed itinerary:

Arrived Reno, 12:45 p. m. Tuesday.

Registered at hotel with Dad.

Changed her mind—telephoned Rudy at Atlantic City.

Left Reno at 12:15 p. m. Wednesday.

Total time spent in Reno—24 hours.

To this she added ruefully—"and all I got in Reno was a bad cold."

Then, while Dad looked on with a paternal smile the 24-hour 'Renoite' told the story of her transcontinental train flight and brief stopover at the Nevada divorce court.

"I'll stay with Dad at Santa Monica for two weeks—maybe more or less—then return to Rudy," she promised.

"It was all just a childish quarrel—it was foolish of me to think of divorce. It's these little things that grow into trouble—

"I'm temperamental. So is Rudy. We were home together in New York on Thursday night. We agreed to disagree. Not a harsh word spoken. Rudy didn't want a divorce, but told me to do as I wished. He left for Cape Cod the next morning, knowing that I was going—West."

RUDY MAY CHANGE STYLE

At Reno, she said, she called him up at 11 o'clock. Her 'phone conversation, however, was a secret, she said.

"I talked to Rudy many, many minutes—then caught the next train out," she said.

At this point, the brunette actress talked about the castle-like home that Rudy had purchased in Beverly Hills only six months ago.

"We have called it 'Palmas Tras,' which means 'Three Palms' in Spanish," was her happy explanation. "It has 25 rooms, I think, and it's empty now . . . Some day we hope to live there."

"Rudy," she enthused, "is a real artist, and he prefers radio work."

The question asked her—"Will Rudy ever change his style of radio presentation?" was dismissed with this whisper:

"He doesn't like the word 'crooner!'"

HOOVER VICTORY SEEN BY MELLON

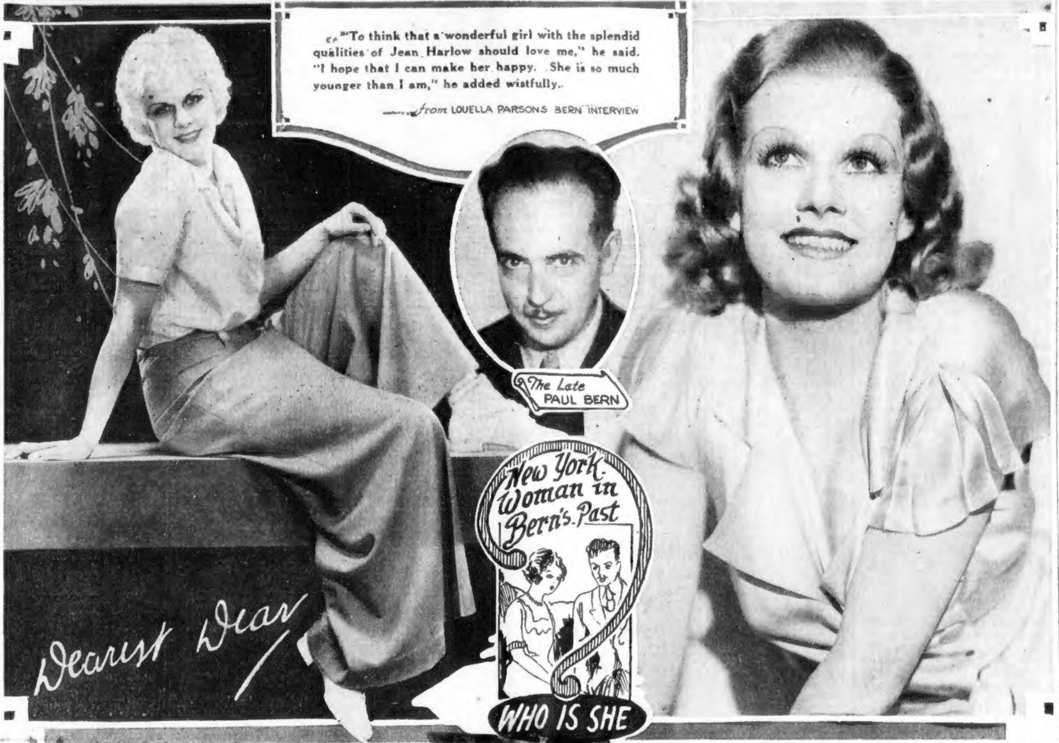
London, Sept. 8 (AP)—President Hoover's present chances for reelection, Ambassador Mellon said on his return from the United States today, are equally good as they were two months before the election in 1928.

The President's efforts to remedy the depression and unemployment, he said, are taking effect.

The ambassador received American newspaper men at the embassy and discussed the economic and political situation in the United States. He was not inclined to discuss the coming world economic conference. He said he had no particular issue to take up with the British government.

"With confidence increasing in the United States," he said, "there is concrete evidence of improvement. As yet it is spotty, however.

"There is not much apprehension about the effects of the trade agreements negotiated at the Ottawa conference. The public is very hopeful that by the time these measures take effect the improvement in trade in the United States will be so marked they won't make much difference."



> "To think that a wonderful girl with the splendid qualities of Jean Harlow should love me," he said. "I hope that I can make her happy. She is so much younger than I am," he added wistfully.

"Dearest Dear." That was the endearing salutation in the suicide note left for Jean Harlow, platinum blonde siren of the screen, by her husband, Paul Bern, Hollywood executive (inset). Court Permits Catherine Cook, 19, to Decide Issue After Desertion 10 Years Ago

Salem, Sept. 8—Although she hugged and kissed her mother lovingly in probate court today, Catherine Cook, 19, chose to live with another woman, who has taken her mother's place for years.

The real mother, Mrs. Catherine Doyle Cook of Heath st., Jamaica Plain, was in court opposing the girl's adoption by Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Dolan of Methuen.

Her tearful pleas to Judge Harry C. Dow brought her daughter to her the witness stand.

GIRL MAKES DECISION

"Shee—she loves me still!" cried the mother.

"I will let the girl herself decide," said Judge Dow.

And after a moment's hesitation, Catherine chose the Dolans, and Judge Dow then signed the adoption papers.

Catherine was born in Lynn, April 2, 1913, daughter of Floyd and Catherine Cook, according to the records.

Ten years ago she was put in a state home. From there the Dolans took her, gave her a comfortable home and acted as parents to her.

Then after long delay they recently petitioned to be allowed to adopt the child and the mother learned of it.

ONE LAST EMBRACE

"Iwas not responsible for deserting Catherine," she told Judge Dow. "I haven't seen my husband for ten years. Please don't sever the onl ytie that remains between me and my own flesh and blood."

After the adoption papers were signed, mother and daughter again went to each other and embraced, and as she was leaving court the girl said:

"I hope I didn't do wrong to my mother."

DAUGHTER AIDS TOM MIX FIGHT

Los Angeles, Sept. 8 (AP)—Letters from his 10-year-old daughter Thomasina have been introduced as evidence at the hearing of the court action by which Tom Mix, actor, hopes to gain custody of the girl, now living with Mix's divorced wife

Mix testified he believed he was in a better position to care for the child than the mother, now the wife of Manuel De Olazabal, Argentine consul at San Francisco. The mother maintained she carefully watched the health and education of the daughter.

Mix's present wife was Mabel Hubbel, circus aerialist.

One of the letters said, in part:

"Dear Daddy: Just think, a week ago I was home having a glorious time and here I am just miserable. x x x I miss you awfully and Mabel, too. x x x Just between you and I and the bedpost, I am sick of it here. I am being talked to continually such as 'shut up' or 'keep quiet' coming from Senor Manuel De Olazabal. I'll certainly be glad when I get out of this place. Your loving daughter, Tommy."

VETS' CHILDREN TO GET SHOES

Newton sons and daughters of unemployed war veterans will not need to miss school next Monday for lack of shoes, Newton Kiwanis Club announced today.

Through Charles A. Mahoney, the president, the club offered school shoes to all such needy children.

The offer came after Edmund T. Dungan, agent of the city fund for soldiers' relief, discovered that the city regulations fail to provide for purchase of shoes.

POWER GROUPS BACK 7 FOR N. Y. RACE

By LOUIS SEIBOLD

New York, Sept. 8—The power and utility interests (as usual) will actually select the New York Republican candidate for Governor at the party convention two weeks hence.

The power group, ably represented by the elusive H. Edwin Machold, one time speaker of the assembly seems to have arranged the setup with complete satisfaction.

7 POWER CANDIDATES

Machold has paved the way for consummation of his clients' hopes to end the "nonsense" advocated by Democratic Governors Smith and Roosevelt for proper supervision and regulation of power ventures that have made tremendous profits by exploiting the people of the State.

Led by Ogden Mills, William L. Ward, Westchester boss, and former Senator Wadsworth, the Republicans are parading seven contenders for the honor of posing as the Republican candidate, but really to serve the power interests.

MILLER LEADS LIST

The order of preference seems to be former Gov. Nathan P. Miller, a director of the steel trust; Daniel F. Kenefick, often legal adviser of western New York power groups; Assistant War Secretary H. Trubee Davidson, identified with the Morgan interests; Col. W. J. Donovan, enjoying the friendship of Machold, Mills, Ward and Wadsworth; Senate Leader George R. Fearon, Assembly Speaker Joseph B. McGinnies, Mayor Marvin of Syracuse, and Borough President Harvey of Queens.

Smoking Room for Women in Prison

A smoking room has been opened at the women's prison at Bridgewater to aid discipline and reduce fire hazards, it was announced by Robert C. Sherman, superintendent.

Another innovation is the removal of girls on the reserve list eligible for parole from the female defective delinquent department to the women's prison, in order to give them privileges and responsibilities as waitresses, cooks or domestics in the cottages on the state farm.

Shooting of Keenan by Hijacker Is Bared

By THE MASKED REPORTER

(Copyright, 1932, for the Boston Evening American.)

"Keeno" Keenan, one-time pal of the late "Little Harry" Wolen, the target on several occasions of gang guns, and identified, now and then with the Gustin mob of South Boston, won't tell the police who shot him the last time. Nor will he tell them why anybody should wish to take his life.

But while "Keeno" is recovering at City Hospital with a police guard standing by to see he isn't murdered in his cot I learned the why of the mysterious shooting in Ruggles st. on the night of Aug. 31.

Masked Reporter

Late that evening, you may have read, "Keeno" stepped out of a taxicab into City Hospital. Blood was flowing freely from a wound in his face. The bullet had traveled through his cheek and was deflected downward into his shoulder.

Capt. John M. Anderson of the detective bureau dropped in to see "Keeno" the next day but "Keeno" talked only about the weather and what a tough time the Braves were having staying out of the cellar.

As to the shooting he remarked briefly:

"Thanks, Captain, but I'll settle this thing myself. I never hollered cop in my life and it's too late to start now."

The same answer he gave to inquiring policemen a year ago this month when he was shot at while sitting in a parked car at Columbus ave. and Dartmouth st., South End, with his wife.

Bullets meant for "Keeno" that night went wild and injured two bystanders.

The latest barrage on "Keeno's" person was the result of a hi-jacking which "Keeno" protested long and loudly, I have learned. The jacking occurred only a short time previous to the Ruggles st. shooting.

150 CASES RETURNED

Four men, whose names are known to me, took 200 cases in which "Keeno" had more than a passing interest.

There was a time, before "Little Harry" Wolen went riding to Winthrop with Jack Berger, that hijackers let everything "Keeno" was interested in strictly alone. But "Little Harry" is gone and Jack Berger is in state's prison.

So "Keeno" had to go out alone and look into the matter of the 200 cases. To his credit as a retriever it must be said that "Keeno" made three of the boys "kick back" 150 of the hi-jacked cases.

The fourth member of the mob held out. He wouldn't come across with the 50 cases in his possession. And thereupon "Keeno" became indignant. The hi-jacker, seeing "Keeno" becoming indignant, thought it best to shoot "Keeno." And he did.

SHOT IN FACE

Shot him through the face—and ran. "Keeno" took a cab to the hospital, but he was only there a few days when the word came through that his assailant was coming after him again—right in the hospital.

The police put a guard over "Keeno's" cot and another detail on the hospital grounds. But even this latest threat hasn't made "Keeno" feel like telling all to the cops.

"I'll settle this myself," he says.

Well, maybe he will.

Dorchester Girl Dies of Gasoline Burns

Kathleen Mackle, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Mackle of Burgess st., Dorchester, died at the City Hospital today from burns she received yesterday while watching a neighbor clean his automobile with gasoline.

The girl was standing close by when a short circuit caused a flare up which ignied her clothing.

AMNESIA GIRL'S RECORD BARED

Betty Jane Parker, 24, who was taken from a house in Cumberland st., Back Bay several days ago when she claimed to be suffering from amnesia, is a former resident of Buffalo, N. Y., with a police record on vagrancy and statutory charges, police were told today.

The girl, now under observation at the Psychopathic Hospital, has been arrested in Buffalo under the names Barbara Stengel, Jean Gallis and Ruth Taylor, according to a telegram from Chief of Detectives Emanuel Schuh.

Her last arrest in Buffalo, the telegram said, was in March, 1929, when she was given six months at the Albion House of Refuge.

She was taken from the Cumberland st. house after she had written to the J. A. Brown Co. of Buffalo, stating that she was suffering from loss of memory, but believed she had once worked for the concern.

The Brown company turned the letter over to Buffalo police and Boston police were notified.

Renee Adoree Has Preview of Marion Davies Film

Los Angeles, Sept. 8—Agleam with happiness, the lustrous black eyes of Renee Adoree snapped ecstatically.

The sprightly little French girl who rose to screen fame only to have her career halted by disease saw a new, entrancing world opening for her as she rested today in her home.

She has fought a good fight—and won. New laurels await her. And through the thoughtfulness of her friends, she was given a private showing of Marion Davies' latest starring vehicle, "Blondie of the Follies." Entranced, she sat through it—and asked that it be shown again. It wasthe first picture she had seen in two long, weary years.

"Oh," she exclaimed. "It is magnificent! It's so wonderful to know that once again I'm in the midst of all this achievement!

"Marion's performance inspires me. But then, Marion's friendship and her kindness—and the sweetness of my other Hollywod friends, too—Gave me courage and strength through those terrible months when I was confined to my bed."

For more than two years Miss Adoree remained betfast in Prescott, Ariz., while she waged her courageous battle back to health.

FEUD WRECKS POOLROOM

The veritable wrecking of a Hanover st. pool parlor revealed a bitter feud in the North End today, according to police.

The proprietor, Carmenlino Daldiri, opened the parlor today to find the tables slashed, cues broken, windows smashed and other signs of vandalism.

His story to Special Officer Hazen Chalmers of the Hanover st. station indicated that differences have existed among poolroom owners in that section, Chalmers said.

After Daldiri was questioned, Chalmers arrested one man on suspicion and said he expected to round up at least four more.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

ATTILA—"THE SCOURGE OF GOD"
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the great painter, Harvey Dunn . . . inspired by the barbaric cruelty of Asia's most dreaded plunderer . . . "the grass could not grow where his horse had passed"... 433-453 A.D.

They are not present in Luckies . . . the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

N. Y. GOVERNOR LEADS HOOVER IN PENN.

By COLE E. MORGAN

Washington, Sept. 8 (US)—Governor Roosevelt is gaining in New York and Pennsylvania and President Hoover in New Jersey in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

Roosevelt has increased his lead in Pennsylvania to 239 and has cut Hoover's in New York to a scant 17. Hoover, on the other hand, has raised his lead in New Jersey to 317.

THREE STATES DOUBTFUL

In neither instance is there enough difference between the two candidates to place the states anywhere but in the doubtful column.

New York is dividing its poll replies up to this time on a 50-50 basis, with first one and then the other in the lead, but in no instance during the last two or three weeks by a margin to remove it very far from an exactly even break.

Pennsylvania, up to date, is leaning to Roosevelt by a 51-49 ratio. The peak of Hoover's strength in New Jersey thus far was reached with the new poll ballots recorded today giving him the advantage by a 52-48 ratio.

This shows how very close this compact area, which cast in round figures 9,000,000 votes in the 1928 presidential election, virtually a fourth of the vote of the country as a whole, is showing up this year. No party at this time can lay undisputed claim to the electoral vote of either of these three states. The battle to win them is yet to be fought out as the campaign moves into the fall.

ROOSEVELT SURPRISES

The big surprise in this area is the strong showing that Governor Roosevelt is making in the traditional iron-bound, steel-riveted Republican stronghold of Pennsylvania. In every campaign the element of doubt enters into New York and New Jersey both of which have gone Democratic for President twice in the last 30 years and frequently have elected Democratic governors and senators. Pennsylvania in that time has deserted the regular Republican ticket but one time and that was when it went for Theodore Roosevelt in the Bull Moose Republican split of 1912. This may be another "Roosevelt year."

FIGHTS TO SAVE PAUPER VOTES

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 8—A fight to restore the names of 350 welfare recipients to the voting list opened here today under the leadership of Herbert E. Holmes, city solicitor.

The names were removed by the Republican-controlled board of registration with the decision of the board that the 350 were "paupers" under the law.

Holmes charged the names were dropped because the board "realized the votes would be cast against the Republican administration."

"The word pauper is meant only for those who are supported by a city or town simply because they refuse to work.

"Never in God's name does it mean a man who wants to work and can't secure it.

"If the depression has taken a man's job and the board of registration has taken his vote that man has nothing to use as a weapon to change conditions.

"The Republica party knows that these 350 votes would be cast against the administration and is using this means to prevent it.

"This fight will be carried to the highest court in the land, if necessary, in order that justice may may be done for men who are wrongfully called paupers."

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 8 (AP)—Kentucky's unemployed World War veterans have been offered a tract of 150 acres of timber land in Trimble County, between here and Cincinnati, for establishment of a permanent camp.

Dying Man Charges Hospital Beatings

Pittsburgh, Sept. 8 (AP)—Deathbed charges that he was beaten led today to a coroner's conference on the case of David M. Linton, 53, patient in a hospital psychopathic ward.

Linton accused attendants of mistreating him. An autopsy disclosed seven broken ribs, a crushed breastbone and other injuries. Hospital records showed pneumonia as the cause of death.

Analysis of Nation-Wide Poll By Hearst Newspapers on Presidential Candidates

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nationwide Presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

It also shows the majority each candidate has in each State in which he is leading.

In addition, it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each State, as compared with the last preceding report from the State. These State reports are usually a week apart.

The final feature of this table shows the net gain each candidate in each State where he has improved his position, as compared with the last preceding report from that State.

Seeks Color and He Gets It--in the Hoosegow

Chicago, Sept. 8 (AP)—Charles Zeaman, 19, took a revolver, went searching for color, and found it.

"I haven't been able to sell my short stories," he complained to Sergeant James Fitzgerald in a police station.

"I can't do you any good, my boy," said the sergeant. "I haven't been paid for quite a while and if I thought I could sell any stories, I'd write them myself."

"But," replied Zeaman, "I must have color. Lock me up."

"G'wan home," ordered the officer.

Then he ducked behind his desk as Zeaman drew his revolver.

"It's all right," said Zeaman, "I took the powder out of the cartridges."

"And now," said the sergeant, "you'll get your wish." So he locked him up and notified his parents.

Britain to Let U. S. Debt Option Ride

London, Sept. 8 (AP)—It was stated today in well-informed quarters that the British government will allow its option for postponement of the next payment on the American debt to expire next Thursday without taking any action. The option applies to the payment on the principal of the debt, due Dec. 15.

LEGION THREAT TO SUE

Portland, Ore., Sept. 8 (AP)—Henry L. Stevens, Jr., national commander of the American Legion, said today he would recommend to the legion convention opening here Monday, action in courts, if necessary, against "unfair opponents and critics"

He said he also would recommend changing the constitution and by-laws to provide for "summary and disciplinary action" against "critics of the organization who have infiltrated themselves into places of leadership and office

These recommendations, Stevens said, will be contained in his report, which also will show that membership this year exceeded the quota assigned, and also the 1930 total, but "is below the high mark made last year, when 1,053,000 members paid dues, some 90,000 being unable in this time of economic depression to find the $3 or $5 to pay their dues, but who, when the financial sickness of the country is over, will be back in the ranks."

1-2-3-4 FILTERINGS TO MAKE BOSTON ICE

TAKE the water that you and your family drink. It's good water—pure and clear. Ice can be made from it. But not Boston Ice. Water that is to be made into Boston Ice must be filtered—not once or twice, but four times. This means a longer process, with extra work, and extra expense. But it makes better ice—clear, healthful, appetizing ice that tastes better and lasts longer. Yet—delivered to your door in modern, sanitary trucks—Boston Ice costs no more.

AL EXPECTED TO SPEAK OUT NEXT WEEK

New York, Sept. 8 (US)—Alfred E. Smith is expected to declare himself within a few days—by Monday at the latest.

It is believed he will clarify his attitude on both the national and state campaigns, and the part he intends to play in them. He will reveal also his views on the complicated municipal situation created by James J. Walker's resignation.

The report that the former governor has finally decided to end his long silence was current today following a meeting of Smith with some of his friends and associates.

Mrs. Bella Moskowitz, one of the group who attended the informal gathering, and an aide of the former governor many years, denied, however, that the meeting had any political significance.

Indications were that Smith will come out unequivocally for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket. It is expected he will agree to take an active part in the campaign, in which case his great popularity in the East will probably be employed in an effort to swing southern New England to Roosevelt.

It was also hinted that Smith favored retaining Mayor McKee as head of the city government, although Walker, who seeks to run again, supported Smith to the end of the national convention.

Mayor Curley Wins Votes in West

Mayor Curley did a lot of missionary work in behalf of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket during his brief stay in St. Paul, Minn., and as a result a number of leaders of the Farm Labor party and a group of Progressive Republicans of that city are on the Democratic band wagon, according to reports sent back to City Hall today.

Mayor William Mahoney of St. Paul was one of the many to announce his support of Roosevelt after conferring with Mayor Curley. Mahoney is a member of the Farm Labor party.

A message received at City Hall today by Cornelius A. Reardon, secretary to the street commission, from Philip A. Chapman, superintendent of supplies, who is travelling with Mayor Curley, said that 500 people crowded into a small reception hall in Hotel Lowry to greet him.

In presenting the Mayor to his St. Paul audience Mayor Mahoney predicted that the Democratic ticket would carry Minnesota. Following the meeting a group of Republican leaders of the city called on Mayor Curley and pledged their support to Roosevelt and Garner.

Washington, Sept. 8—Ratification by Texas of the "lame duck" amendment to the Federal Constitution brought the total of states which have approved the change to 17.

ROOSEVELT MAY VISIT HERE IN FINAL DRIVE

Albany, Sept. 8 (AP)—Gov. Roosevelt returned briefly to his desk today after a hurried political trip through Vermont and prepared to clear up his business before packing for his western tour. He leaves Monday at midnight, and will be gone three weeks.

The New York governor now has been in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire and Vermont. He has not visited Rhode Island, but on his cruise up the coast in a yawl early in the summer he met Rhode Island Democratic leaders at Stonington, Ct. Stonington, on Long Island Sound, is close to the Rhode Island state line.

Besides the New England states, Roosevelt's presidential campaign has carried him into Illinois, Ohio and Jersey. Before his nomination he visited St. Paul, Minn.

There was a possibility that the Vermont trip yesterday would be the governor's last visit to New England, although he may go into the Boston area shortly before his campaign closes.

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 8 (AP)—The government has granted permission to Leon Trotzky, exiled Soviet leader, to come here for his health.

MAINE LEADERS IN BITTER VOTE BATTLE

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Portland, Me., Sept. 8—Maine's strategic political campaign—"As Maine goes, so goes the nation"—today produced a carnival of riotous political developments which involved national figures of both the Republican and Democratic parties in acrimonious warfare.

The major developments were these:

1—Several hundred jobless citizens of the Democratic city of Lewiston were thrown off the voting lists on the ground that their acceptance of public aid from the city treasury branded them as paupers and forfeited their civic rights, including the right to vote.

2—Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, president pro tempore of the Senate, in a bristling personal attack upon the Democratic candidate for President, said that Governor Roosevelt is of immature mind, is given to fanciful Mother Goose rhymes and is a youthful experimenter in government.

3—Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston, dean of New England ex-congressmen, announced that he will trail Moses in Maine "To expose the vicious campaign of bigotry and intolerance which Moses engineered four years ago and his constant malevolence of mind which prompts his unjustifiable attacks upon Governor Roosevelt today."

4—Gene Tunney, appealing to the young men of the nation to reject the "incapable and inept leadership" of the present administration, addressed great audiences at Brunswick and Biddeford, and yielded to the requests of the Democratic leaders to "stay in the ring" here until the fight is ended Monday night.

5—James Roosevelt, eldest son of the governor, came into Maine to make a personal appeal for his "Dad." Republicans announced that Mrs. Dolly Gann is hurrying hither similarly to urge support for "Brother Charles."

6—Announcement was made by the Democratic chieftains that the final drive for victory will be made by two of the outstanding supporters of Alfred E. Smith. These are Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts, who nominated him at Chicago, and U. S. Senator David I. Walsh, author of the joint repeal of prohibition and immediate return of beer and wine plank at the national convention. Ely will speak Friday night at Lewiston, home city of Judge Louis H. Brann, the Democratic nominee for governor, and Walsh in the city auditorium here.

7—As an offset, the Republicans announced that the final campaign speech will be delivered in behalf of Hoover here on Saturday night by Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills. His impending speech is regarded as of such importance that he will be afforded a national radio hookup.

8—County Attorney Walter M. Tapley, Jr., Republican candidate for re-election, challenged his Democratic opponent, Eugene F. Martin, to come before a special grand jury and prove his sensational accusations that the Maine metropolis is infested by racketeers, who promote vice, rum-running and slot machine gambling with a finesse that leaves Chicago much to learn in the fine art.

9—Congressman John E. Nelson, dean of the Maine delegation, replied to the charges of nepotism by saying that his relatives placed on the public payrolls by him in these hard times have earned the money paid them.

The Lewiston condition can have far-reaching consequences, throwing many thousands of Maine's citizens off the voting list for next Monday's state-wide canvass.

These people, out of work in a typical textile city handicapped by the business reverses of the past four years, accepted welfare aid common to all American cities.

Lewiston is a Democratic city but its board of registration happens to be Republican. Mrs. Edward F. Wellman, the chairman, who admits that at least 350 have been erased from the list, observes that "some elections in the past have been swung by 350 votes."

REPEAL PLANK IN CONNECTICUT

Eastern Point, Conn., Sept. 8—The Democratic state convention today adopted a platform calling for repeal of the 18th amendment, modification of the Volstead Act, state aid for cities needing help in unemployment relief and a state fund for aid of closed banks and depositors.

The platform bearing the approval of Gov. Wilbur L. Cross and adopted without debate, also asked a state old-age pension fund and unemployment insurance. It praised the national ticket and commended the candidacy of the governor to the people of the state.

Gov. Cross arrived shortly after noon and received an ovation.

Several changes in the party rules were voted, including one providing that a woman may hold the chairmanship or vice-chairmanship of the state central committee.

BROTHER BARES BLOT ON LOVE OF JEAN HARLOW AND PAUL BERN

8—Summonsing of all members of Bern's household to the inquest today.

When Henry Bern, Paul Bern's brother, arrived last night by airplane from New York, he refused to divulge the name of the "mystery woman" he had told Kansas City newapaper men his brother had supported in a sanitarium because of her "derangement."

"I am sick," said Henry Bern. "The plane trip from New York, coupled with Paul's passing, is almost too much for me.

"I want to say emphatically just one thing—there were no secrets in my brother's life.

"I will discuss the entire matter a little later.

"Paul concealed nothing. He lived openly."

SAID HE TOLD JEAN

He said he was sure his brother had told Miss Harlow of the woman "morally married."

This was at variance wit a statement by Marino Bello, Miss Harlow's stepfater, who declared that if there had been another woman in the life of Paul Breen, Miss Harlow had known nothing of it.

"I do not say that I believe such a story, but if I ad known of it before Bern married Jean the wedding would have taken place only over my dead body," Bello said.

Miss Irene Harrison, to wom Henry Bern last nigt referred interviewer, wo sought to learn details of "the other woman." dedeclared that "she is alive. I will reveal her identity and her whereabouts later. She has nothing to do with th emotion picture industry."

MIDNIGHT CONFERENCE

After an airplane ride across the country, Henry Bern had a midnight conference with Miss Harlow and declared that "I want no secrecy veiling the matter of my brother's death."

Bern learned from friends that Paul Bern's fears and worries over his physical condition, and the fixed belief it would bar a happy marriage with the beautiful actress, led him to kill himself as "the only way out."

It was learned that Dr. Edward B. Jones, now in Honolulu, specialist and personal physician to Paul Bern, had a lengthy radio telephone conversation with Louis B. Mayer, film executive.

Dr. Jones was understood to have given Mayer information which may be presented to the coroner's jury today.

Mayer disclosed that Henry Bern and Miss Harlow had been closeted together for an hour alone in the home of her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Marino Bello, about midnight, discussing the secret reasons for Paul Bern's act.

Mayer said that "Miss Harlow's condition is far worse than it was the day before yesterday. Henry Bern's resemblance to her dead husband caused her to break down and cry bitterly."

MAY CALL JEAN

Calling of Miss Harlow as a "star" witness today at the inquest loomed as a dramatic eleventh hour possibility as the inquest was ready to start.

"If it is humanly possible to have Miss Harlow at the inquest, she will be there," her attorney, Mendel Silberberg, declared. "However, I do not want to jeopardize her health and if her physicians determine at the last moment that she should not go, it will be all off."

Eager to get a glimpse of the film "Cleopatra" whose reel life emotions have so often stirred them, hundreds of persons attempted to jam their way into the undertaking parlors where the inquest was ordered.

Henry Bern was met at the air port by Miss Harrison. They went at once to the Bello home where studio officials waited, and the conference with Miss Harlow was started at 11 p. m., after which Bern was closeted alone with the platinum blonde widow for an hour.

DOCTORS PRESENT

They inspected various personal effects of Paul Bern.

Several physicians, including an associate of Dr. Jones, who knew Bern's secret in life and had tried to help him, were at the Bello home, and this secret was discussed with the brother under circumstances as dramatic as any ever presented by Paul Bern on the screen.

At 1 a. m. the Bello home was darkened and Miss Harlow was alone with her sorrow, advised by physicians to "try to get some sleep."

The conference failed to produce any public statement concerning the tragedy, but Henry Bern said there would be a statement "soon enough."

STUDIES THE RECORDS.

Bern was given medical and police records of the case, together with personal effects of his dead brother, before leaving the conference. He said he wished to study the records:

"It is my wish to confe. with relatives here and in New York before agreeing to a statement of any kind," Bern said.

"I am simply a man come to the funera' of his brother. There will be a staatement made soon enough. I want no secrecy veiling the matter of my brother's death. He would not have it that way in life. I wish to do as he would have done. He never had secrets from anyone."

Studio officials said they expect the findings of Autopsy Surgeon Frank Webb to remove all mystery surrounding the death. They stated the physical condition of Bern was an all-important factor in the tragedy.

In the radio telephone conversation with Mayer, Dr. Jones, Bern's personal physician, said he 'understood the motive."

PHYSICAL HANDICAP

"It is not a matter that I can discuss publicly," Dr. Jones told Mayer. "But I am returning to Los Angeles at once, arriving there September 13, and I shall be glad to give whatever information I have to the proper authorities."

The autopsy report showed Bern was free of disease, but that his physical handicap was one that would prevent a happy marriage. His brother said Bern, although a bachelor until he married Miss Harlow, 21, had another woman in his life previously.

"Paul was not a virtuous man, in the conventional sense," said his brother. "But he had a higher virtue. He was good. I am tired of indecent talk about him."

Meanwhile Coroner Frank Nance had advanced plans for the inquest today. He sent Detective Joseph Whitehead to the Bello home to serve Miss Harlow with a subpoena to appear. Silently she accepted the summons.

SERVANTS SUMMONED

Nance said he would not insist upon her appearance as it would endanger her health, but the following were subpoenaed to appear:

Henry Bern, Marino Bello, Irving Thalberg, studio executive called to Bern's Benedict Canyon home when the suicide first was discovered; John Carmichael, the butler who found Bern shot to death in a small dressing room of his home; Mrs. Winifred Carmichael, wife of the butler and cook at the Bern home; Clifton Davis, gardener; Blanche Williams, Miss Harlow's maid; M. E. Greenwood, studio executive, and Detective Whitehead, first officer to reach the scene.

STILL SERIOUSLY ILL.

Bello last night said:

"Miss Harlow is still a seriously sick girl. She is just coming out of a daze and able to show a little interest in what is going on. She has asked what is being done with Paul's body, and things like that, but that is about all. We have tried to get her mind off the tragedy, but she keeps going back to it."

Hundreds of telegrams of sympathy for Miss Harlow have arrived at the Bello home and friends, including many stage folk, have telephoned from all parts of the country.

Jetta Goudal, one of the many film players Bern had befriended, wrote Miss Harlow a lengthy personal letter.

Laurence Stallings, the playwright, was another of Bern's friends who declared that Bern frequently had discussed suicide.

"One day I saw Paul take a gun from his car and put it in his coat pocket," Stallings said. "I asked what he carried it for, and he replied: 'I often think of suicide and when the right mood and right moment come I want to be all ready.'"

At the studio plans were made to proceed with work on a picture in which Miss Harlow has the principal role. The company has about ten days' work on scenes in which the actress does not appear.

"Paul was never married, until he became the husband of Jean Harlow, but he lived with a woman once, years ago," said the brother.

"She became deranged, and he placed her in a sanitarium, where she was given the best of care. Paul had nothing to do with her breakdown, but he took care of her as if she had been his wife.

"It was an open secret, which he never tried to hide. Miss Harlow knew of it, and so did many of his friends."

Sometimes, when Bern was asked why he did not marry, he said, according to these friends:

"How would she feel, if she ever recovered her reason and learned that I was married? I am morally her husband."

The decision to reveal the secret motive for Bern's suicide to his brother and to no one else before him, was reached by studio executives at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and friends of Bern's bride.

The decision came after it was Autopsy Surgeon Webb demonstrated that Bern's physicial condition was an all-important factor in the tragedy.

Disclosures of the autopsy findings were made to Miss Harlow's attorney. They tended to verify the reports of Dr. Jones and other physicians whom Bern consulted in the hope of regaining his health and mental balance.

Thus, there gradually unraveled the answer to the question of what the film executive had in mind when he wrote to his wife that he was taking his life to "make good the frightful wrong."

Bern was reading of death just before he took his own life Sunday night, it was revealed today.

Last Saturday and again late Sunday, just before the final tragic act of his life, he was poring over a screen manuscript entitled "Violence," which had a climax of sudden death.

This fact accentuated the importance of the statement of the movie executive's physician, Dr. Jones, in Honolulu, that "acute melancholia" caused the suicide of Bern.

Coroner Nance announced that he would make the investigation a thorough one, in an effort to clear up several points which puzzle the authorities.

He wants to find out why the tragedy was not reported to police for three hours after the discovery of Bern's body on Monday.

The report that a second suicide note, more intimate and revealing than the first, had been found, also will be checked. Police have denied the existence of a second note.

Other questions to be probed at the inquest will be:

What was the "comedy" referred to in the suicide note?

Who were the occupants of the car heard speeding from the vicinity of the Bern home at about the time of the fatal shot?

Just 6 Months Old
Jean at 6...
When She was 10...

From her cradle into brilliant and alluring womanhood, Jean Harlow has been beautiful. Now that the frightful crushing tragedy of a honeymoon suicide has entered her life, and laid its touch of grief upon her countenance, her beauty has become even more appealing than when childhood and fresh young girlhood crowned her. In the photograpms here, which were distributed through International News Photos, you see Jean Harlow at six months of age, as a tiny miss of six and as a budding blond beauty of 10, the lustrous shimmer of silver already giving her head its crown of glory. Today she shunned visitors and remained away from the inquest into the killing of her bridegroom, Paul Bern, in their California home.

New York, Sept. 8 (INS)—A will that has been tucked away for years revealed today that in 1920 Paul Bern, now dead by his own hand, left most of his wealth to "my wife, Dorothy Millette."

Existence of this document of the past added a new surprise to the identification of Dorothy Millette, referred to heretofore as simply an "old sweetheart" of the film executive.

She was a beautiful blonde and she was known to all of Bern's intimates. And so when he went one day to the office of his friend and lawyer, Henry Uttal, and said he wanted his will drawn up, Uttal was not surprised that "Mrs. Bern" was the beneficiary.

Uttal admitted today that the will still is on file in his office, that it was signed August 30, 1920, and that it "designated" Bern's wife. But from another source it was learned that the will adequately provided for Dorothy Millette; in fact, left practically everything to her.

Uttal recalled Dorothy Millette well. She was a blonde, he said, but not the platinum blonde type of Jean Harlow, Bern's widow.

"They came to my house often," the lawyer recalled, "and I knew her as Paul's wife. All his other friends knew her as his wife, also. There never was any suspicion in my mind that they might not be married.

"She was a very pretty woman; very intelligent."

Uttal received a letter from Bern a week after the latter's marriage to Jean Harlow. It told of his happiness; related that he had found the perfect wife.

"I had no idea of what had become of his first wife," the lawyer said, "but in view of his marriage to Miss Harlow I assumed that she was dead. Paul made no mention of her."

"MY CHILDREN DESERVE THE SAFEST MILK . . . SO I GIVE THEM HOOD'S GRADE A"

THE mother's first thought is for safety in her baby's daily milk. You can't tolerate any compromise in safety. Every single individual cow in the Hood Grade A herds is scientifically tested. Her barn is clean, her food is carefully balanced. She is milked with clean hands only after her udder has been washed. Then the milk is pasteurized in fine, modern plants by skilled experts and immediately double-sealed in sterilized bottles. Safe—safer—safest. That's the keynote of Hood's Grade A Milk. Boxing Goes Indoors. ↕ Seasoned Campaigner.
Ringing Up Curtain. Zachow, a New Comer.
Brouillard Has Edge. Green Young Slogger.

FANS WELCOME A RED HOT SCRAP

BEFORE THE FROST is on the pumpkin and the fodder is in the shock we are going to have a parcel of open air boxing shows, including the second biggest scrap of the year, the tete-a-tete between Max Schmeling, former ruler of the heavyweight roost, and Smiling Mickey Walker, in New York. But the indoor season is here and Billy Ames will ring up the curtain in the Boston Garden, tomorrow night. With the Brouillard-Zachow match Ames is getting off on the right foot. For that Allah be praised. We Boston fans know all about Larruping Lou and Annihilating Ad. They are products of local rings and Bostonians have sampled the goods. No chance of handing the fistic fans any shoddy as they were handed the other night in Fenway Park when, as an excuse to get Kid Chocolate in a local ring and get the attendant publicity, they "matched" him with Steve Smith, an old playmate with whom he has played many times in many rings in many cities. It didn't take the fans long to get wise on what was up and for some of them to inquire in loud and raucous tones in what city the next chapter was going to be published. These Chocolate-Smith affairs are bad for boxing. The Boxing Commission should put the ban on them. Some boxing promoters cannot see beyond their nose and each weekly show. It is the duty of the Boxing Commission to see for them. Unless the commission puts on the brakes now and then the live-by-the-week element among the promoters will run the old game into the mire as they oft have done before. The only excuse for a boxing commission is to keep the "boys" in line. They are not keeping them in line if they cannot detect a bad match before it is perpetrated and hang out the "Nothing Doing" sign.

THERE IS NO "exhibition" or "sparring partner" aspect about tomorrow night's shindy. It's a pure and unadulterated scrap. The only criticism that can be made of it is what this writer already has made, that in his opinion the hard hitting young Zachow needs more seasoning and experience before meeting a foeman of Brouillard's caliber. But this sports scribe is not infallible. Far from it. True, we have picked 'em right a bit more often than most of the boys, but we have picked 'em wrong occasionally, too. It doesn't follow that, just because in our opinion Zachow needs seasoning and experience, he will be a mere punching bag for Brouillard. Any youngster as tough and strong and as hard hitting as Zachow is liable to knock the dope galley west. Even M'seu Brouillard, sturdy and strong a garcon as he is, can be knocked for a loop with the right belt on the button. Anyone who saw young Zachow put Lee Larivee, Vincent Forgione and Mickey Bishop in cold storage will agree that Ad packs a healthy, man-sized wallop.

THE POINT WE ARE trying to bring out is that tomorrow night's indoor season opener is a real scrap, one which everyone knows will be fought fast and fiercely from the first to final clang of the bell and one in which each man will be striving desperately for a knockout every step of the way. That is the kind of matches the populace wants, not virtual exhibitions between a headliner and a sparring partner or a massacre of a setup. If the sport of boxing, the business of boxing is to be brought back it must be brought back by real matches. The Brouillard-Zachow bout is a real match. That is why we say Ames is getting off on the right foot. We only hope he keeps on it.

LET'S PICK THIS French-Canadian garcon from Worcester and waypoints and this youngster on whom the ring fans have fastened the colorful nom de guerre of "Portland Express," apart and see what they are made of. In this humble scrivener's opinion Lou Brouillard is the greatest welterweight in the world. Not only that but we believe a matchmaker will have his troubles finding a middleweight who can lick him. Fight promoters, fight managers, fighters themselves, seem to share the same sentiments. Anyway, since Larruping Lou gave the dreaded Jimmy McLarnin that fearful shellacking in New York matchmakers can't seem to find any headliner bold or brave enough to clamber into the same ring at the same time with the slugging scion of the old French-Canadian voyageurs and coureurs du bois.

EVEN BENNY LEONARD, who has fought his way back and up into the headliners was "not at home," when the matchmakers called to match him with Brouillard. Leonard, you will recall, was angling for a match with Jimmy McLarnin. But Brouillard got Jimmy first with results aforementioned. Now with McLarnin well plastered and Brouillard the big New York drawing card, through the victory the usual ring procedure would have been to match Leonard with Brouillard. But Benny said "Nay Nay Pauline! I've had a helluva time fighting my way back to the heights. You don't think old Bennah is fool enough to let that tough young Brouillard pusson push us right back into the barren lands again, do you? Give me McLarnin. He'll be softer picking." The great McLarnin softer picking than Brouillard? Whoops! Then Leonard must think Brouillard is some scrapper! He is!

WHO IS THIS fresh young Portland youngster who rushes right in where the great Leonard feared to tread? He's a young, two fisted sharp hitting middleweight who by virtue of a knockout victory over Leo Larivee, New England middleweight champion, mounted the throne and qualified for the Brouillard match. Knocking out Larivee was no great pumpkins, for Leo was knocked out the week before by Ben Jeby in New York and was softened up and ready for the cleaner. If it wasn't for the fact that Zachow also knocked out tough Vincent Forgione, Mickey Bishop and others, we wouldn't place much stress on the Larivee victory. But the combined Larivee-Forgione-Bishop knockouts offer sufficient proof that young Ad certainly can hit. A hitter always is dangerous. Even to as tough a nut as Brouillard.

IN ALL OTHER assets except hitting, and it remains to be seen whether or not Lou can sock just as hard as Ad, Brouillard has the edge. The weight difference, two to four pounds, in Zachow's favor, is negligible. Ad is taller than Brouillard, but Lou has the longer reach. Heighth means nothing. Reach sometimes means much. The French Canadian boy is a tough, seasoned, experienced campaigner. His rival is just a youngster who has come to the front with a rush. Sometimes, but not often, those green youngsters beat seasoned campaigners. When they do it's a surprise. That is just what it will be if Zachow beats Brouillard, tomorrow night. But which ever way it goes, you'll see a fight. That is what the fans pay to see.

SCRATCH DUOS CLASH AT C. R.

While many formidable combinations were eliminated, there are some strong teams playing this morning in the third round of the annual Charles River Country Club member and guest four ball invitation.

During the first and second rounds, the finalists of last year's tourney were eliminated. Eddie Murphy and Jack Drake, who were the defending champions, weathered the opening round, but they fell before Irwin Finke and M. V. Brown in a 20-hole match in the afternoon, while George Sexton and Bobby Hopkins yielded to Paul Sherwin and M. F. Heath, Jr., in the morning round.

SCRATCH TEAMS MEET

The banner attraction this morning is the Frank Craven-P. J. Mullaney vs. Win Scudder-Howard Paul match. They are the scratch teams of the tournament. Craven will give Paul one stroke and Scudder four, while Paul will spot Mullaney three strokes.

Although the scratch teams will steal the show this morning there will be more than the usual amount of interest centering around the battle for supremacy of the Smith family. Paired with Don Ritchie, Francis Smith will oppose his son Bobby, who is teamed up with Dr. W. D. Hughes. Recently the Smiths met in the championship of the Rockport Country Club and Bobby came through a 4 to 3 winner and then carried on and took the title.

GREENE GORTON CAPABLE

S. Harold Greene and Ray Gorton sailed serenely through two rounds yesterday, one of which went to the fifth extra hole before they won from Joe Hayes and Bill Donnelly, Jr. Unless the long grind took too much out of the oldtimers, they will give C. E. Holcomb, who is carrying a 15 stroke handicap and Eddie Peterson, who, with Gorton will be at scratch, a merry battle.

So What?

—By JOE MOONEY—

So now Babe Ruth has to take a cut.

He's had such tough luck all year, he'll consider this appendicitis a success if the doctor doesn't sew up the pliers inside.

Some players are so lucky, if they had an appendix operation they'd discover ambergris.

All the unpaid teachers in Chicago are back at work today trying to work up phony enthusiasm about arithmetic.

It's tough going. Every time the teacher asks the pupil, "How much is—", the kid cracks right back, "What do you care?"

SOX IN FIGHT TO QUIT CELLAR

Special to the American

Chicago Sept. 8—The Boston Red Sox, with little chance, but still hopeful of escaping the basement, begin their final Western trip, here, this afternoon, when they open a three-game series with the seventh-place White Sox.

When they left home a week ago the visitors were only 3½ games back of the natives, but six straight defeats at the hands of the Athletics, Yanks and Senators since then have knocked them 6½ games back. That appears too high a hurdle for them to clear in the short time that remains.

SOX HAVE CHANCE

The Sox might have a chance if they could clean up in this series, but it isn't likely they can do that. They may win two games, but hardly all three.

For one Teddy Lyons is going to hurl for the Pale Hose today and not even the Yanks or A's are whipping that young man these days. He won his last three starts against the Macks and his last two against the McCarthymen.

One thing the Hub entry can do in the series, though, is whip the White Sox for the year. It hasn't a chance of beating out any other rival, but it leads the Fonseca clan, 10 to 9 up to now.

SOX WINNERS IN CHI

Strangely enough, the Sox have had more success against the locals in Chicago than in Boston, having won five out of eight here and only five out of 11 at home.

One visitor whose work will be closely followed in the games here is Dale Alexander, big first baseman. He's been running neck and neck for weeks with Jimmy Foxx of the A's for the American League batting championship. At present he trails the Philadelphia slugger by two points.

Metcalfe to Race Tap Dancer

New York, Sept. 8 (INS)—Two special events were added today to the Knights of Columbus victory track meet to be held in the Yankee Stadium Saturday with Olympic stars competing.

Stella Walsh, the swift Polish runner, will attempt to establish a new record in the 220-yard dash for women, and Ralph Metcalfe, crack colored sprinter, will appear in a novelty race.

Metcalfe will attempt to run down Bill Robinson, famous Negro tap dancer, in a 100-yard race, Robinson running backwards with a 25-yard handicap start.

ADAMS RETAINS MAT TITLE

Paul Adams withstood another assault on his middleweight wrestling crown at Fenway Park defeating Bill Brooks in two straight falls with his shoulder scissors.

Adams pinned Brooks in 29:50 and 9:45 while 6000 fans watched.

Ted Germaine whipped Arvi Rakho and Al Vantres topped Jack Nichols in other features. Winners of the preliminaries were Jack Morgan, Dynamite Dunn, Art Flynn and Jim Wallis while Downey vs. Siskey, Spears vs. Myerson and Brew vs. Bruno went to draws. Charlie Gordon's next wrestling show will be held at Mechanics Building next Wednesday night.

Wilson to Report on Job Next Week

Chicago, Sept. 8 (INS)—Alex Wilson, Canada's outstanding track star who bettered the world's 800-meter record in the recent Olympaid at Los Angeles, will report at Loyola University here a week from today

CONTACT DRILL FOR B. C. LINE

Jackson, N. H., Sept. 8—Boston College football warriors found themselves a bruised and battered lot this morning after a gruelling session of contact work under the supervision of Bill Ormsby, B. C. line coach.

The extent of their injuries ran to bruises, and scraped legs, a reminder of what is to be expected in the campaign which starts with Loyola on the first of October at the Heights.

Ormsby sent his line through charging and blocking drills this morning before a number of fans from the college, who had made the long trek to get a first hand view of the boys.

Captain Phil Couhig, Phil Taylor, Maurice Whalen, Matt O'Malley, Mario Romano, Dick Reynolds and Ed Kelley appear to have improved and the coaches expect a faster charging line this season.

Head Coach Joe McKenney took the backfield members and drilled them in punt receiving and blocking.

Tod Sloan Never Raced Turtles

Los Angeles, Sept. 8 (INS)—Tod Sloan, oldtime famous jockey, and 15 other defendants, were freed today in court of charges of illegally racing turtles in Hollywood. They had been accused of violating lottery laws

BARROW HAS NO FEAR FOR RUTH

New York, Sept. 8 (AP)—Ed Barrow, business manager of the New York Yankees, expressed no great concern today over the condition of Babe Ruth.

"No arrangements have been made to meet him coming in from Detroit," he said. "Ruth is perfectly capable of taking care of himself and there is no indication that he needs hospital treatment.

"The Babe merely asked permission of Joe McCarthy to come on here and see his personal physician, Dr. Edward King, because he felt that he might be threatened with appendicitis. Under the circumstances, he felt he should see his own physician and make sure."

RESTING COMFORTABLY

There was no other indication that special arrangements had been made to receive the slugger on his arrival here at 1 p. m. Dr. King, who has nursed the Babe through many ailments in the past half dozen years, was absent all morning both from his office and St. Vincent's Hospital, where Ruth's more serious ailments have been treated in the past.

Babe Ruth was reported resting comfortably when his train passed through Buffalo early this morning.

Another B. F. K. Story
It Happened in Juarez
In the Winter of '09.

A Homeless Alliance
Of the B. F. K. & Rover.
How It Came to Grief.

ROVER OF OLD JUAREZ

Bring a Further Adventure of The Bald Face Kid

It must have been along about the winter of 1909 that Mr. James Butler, the groceryman whose potatoes have smiling Irish eyes, opened his attractive race course at Ciudad Juarez, Mexico. In those days Juarez, which is just over the liquor line from El Paso, Texas, was a lively community of honky-tonks, saloons, beer stubes, keno parlors, gambling and dance halls, bull fight arenas and cock fight mains (if that's what you call 'em), in which a man could take his pleasure where he found it and couldn't very well miss it.

Into this bustling center of the better things of life Mr. Butler, assisted by my host and my friend Harry Stevens, a certain Col. Matt Winn, a gentleman by the name of Jack Follonsby, another named Rose, a Mr. Frank Bruen and a Mr. Mars Cassidy, took his race course and what horses he could spare from his grocery wagons and prepared to conduct the sport of kings under the banner "Sport for Sport's Sake."

That the meeting was scarcely under way when it became necessary to interrupt it in order to permit the Mexicans to conduct a small and semi-private battle in the infield of the track was of no great importance at the time (no bookmakers were killed) and has no bearing on this story. The Mexicans are always fighting among themselves, but there will never be another race meeting at old Juarez.

Naturally, when Mr. Butler and his associates went to Mexico the "boys" went along. The "boys" know that if you are going to trim the suckers you have to go where the suckers are.

The Bald Face Kid Makes a Friend:

Among the "boys" who put in with the Mexican Expeditionary Force for the Improvement of the Breed and the Enrichment of the Purse was your old friend The Bald Face Kid. The adventures of The Bald Face Kid that winter in Mexico would fill this column for a week, but the most interesting was the story of his dog that was barred from the track for conduct unbecoming a gentlemanly dog, reinstated and then barred again forever.

In all the history of horse racing there never has been another dog with such a record, and his name, of course, had to be Rover. As you might surmise from his name, Rover was just a plain dog, very plain.

Not only was Rover's parentage lost in the mists of time, but he was as homeless as a poker chip. Nor did he ever have a master, unless possibly you would call The Bald Face Kid a master, and The Bald Face Kid himself was a rolling stone that gathered no moss and had no permanent stopping place. Perhaps this was the bond that drew them together.

In addition to being a dirty red color from rolling too much in dobie mud, Rover had a mean gray eye and a lousy disposition. He would fight man or beast at the drop of a hat and he didn't like to be around people who went bare-headed.

"Hello, Rover," the boys would say to him when they met up with him on the street of El Paso or at the track. Whereupon Rover would stop, stare at them in insolent fashion as if to say: "Hum, just another horse player," and go on walking his beat without so much as a wag of his tail.

But with The Bald Face Kid he was different. When time came to take the street car from El Paso to the track—and they say that not once during the meeting did he take the wrong car or start for Juarez on a day when there was no racing—he would stroll in, plant himself under The Bald Face Kid's feet, and from that coign of vantage dare the conductor to put him off.

He Gets Into Trouble With the Officials:

At the Juarez outdoor roulette wheel the paddock and betting shed were at one end of the grandstand, almost a sixteenth of a mile up the stretch from the finish line. Now if there is one thing above another that racing stables go for it's pets. Nearly every stable has one of some kind, and in Juarez in the winter of '09 every stable had a dog, Mexican dogs being plentiful and hungry.

These dogs would follow the horses from their barns to the paddock, where they would frolic about until the race started. They would then be in the rush to the rails to see what was going on, and as the field swept through the stretch they would tear onto the track after the horses and race them to the finish.

One thing leads to another, the wise men say, and the racing at Juarez was so bad it wasn't long before the players were betting on the dogs instead of the horses, because the dogs had no jockeys aboard to think for 'em. In these canine dashes Rover was a general favorite, and if he couldn't outrun a rival dog any other way he'd whip him first and then outrun him.

The Bald Face Kid picked up many a stray dollar betting on Rover, for which Rover was always rewarded with an extra bone when they got back to El Paso, and everything was just dandy until one day Rover started a fight right under the feet of the racing horses.

This plainly was calculated to upset the best handicapping in the world, not to speak of the best laid plans of the bookmakers and racing officials. I mean if they had allowed that sort of thing to go on it might have led to mistakes such as the wrong horse winning, so the next day Rover was officially denied the privileges of the track by the Juarez Jockey Club through the secretary to the president, the aforesaid Frank J. Bruen.

How He Beat the Rap!

This suspension did not worry Rover greatly because when he found out he couldn't go through the main gate any more, he would get off the street car before it reached its destination and sneak under the fence, thus scratching dirt onto the orders of the august Col. Matt Winn to show exactly what he thought of them. Rover wasn't going to let any Jockey Club keep him away from The Bald Face Kid.

This so touched The Bald Face Kid that he appealed the dog's case, and on the B. F. K.'s solemn promise to look out for and stand responsible for him, Rover's badge was restored. For a time the B. F. K. solved the problem of what to do with Rover during the running of the races by tying him to a bookmaker's stool. But one afternoon during a particularly exciting contest, Rover couldn't stand prosperity any longer and went dashing onto the track dragging rope, stool and bookmaker behind him.

So they set him down forever, which may have been just as well. There's no future in horse racing for a smart dog.

FRANCIS FIT FOR TITLE DEFENSE

By BILL GRIMES

After a four-day rest in Maine, where he was a guest of Arthur J. Houghton, the well known New York theatrical man, Francis Ouimet left the Boston Airport at noon for Baltimore, where on Monday he will start to defend his national amateur championship at the Five Farms course of the Baltimore Country Club.

Although Frank Crowley, who will pilot the plane in which the champion flew to the Oriole City expects to reach his destination late this afternoon, Francis will not start his practise until tomorrow morning.

OUIMET FIT AGAIN

Ouimet appeared to be completely rested when seen this morning. He was at low ebb at the conclusion of the Walker Cup matches last week, but is now fit to battle the pick of the amateur ranks, who will be at Five Farms in quest of his title.

Jesse P. Guilford, the Woodland Siege Gun, Ray Van Arsdale and Linde Fowler will accompany Ouimet to Baltimore, as will Bill Danforth, the owner of the plane.

Guilford will attempt a comeback at Baltimore. After experimenting with steel shafted clubs for about a year, Jesse has returned to hickory and for the first time in many months is getting a kick out of the game.

GUILFORD READY

For weeks, Guilford has been tuning up for the nationals. His interest in golf has returned and he is set upon re-establishing his reputation during the coming championship.

The remaining Boston qualifiers will make the trip to Baltimore by train and by tomorrow afternoon they will all be at Five Farms, readying themselves for the qualifying round on Monday.

LANDIS IS FETED HERE TONIGHT

Judge Landis, President Will Harridge of the American League, President John Heydler of the National League, President Bob Quinn of the Red Sox, President Emil E. Fuchs of the Braves, Umpire Tommy Connolly of the American League, Superintendent of Police Mike Crowley, members of the Braves and Cubs will attend the dinner of the Park Department Association of Baseball Leagues at the armory of the First Corps Cadets on Columbus ave. tonight.

Over 1000 boys who played in the league sponsored by the Park Department will attend the dinner which will start at 7 o'clock.

They include the boys who won in their branch of the leagues and many other boys who played in the leagues.

SOUTH BOSTON NINE VISITS WALTHAM

Waltham gets a chance to clinch the play-off position in the Boston Twilight League tonight at Bicycle Park, Waltham, when So. Boston visits the Watch City.

Waltham has already beaten So. Boston and Concord and a second victory over So. Boston tonight will put them in line to meet Allston for the championship.

The fourth game for the City League championship will be staged tomorrow night at Carolina ave., Jamaica Plain. Roslindale now holds a two to one lead on St. Thomas by winning the third game.

The City League series is busting all marks for audiences. The three games thus far have attracted some 22,000 fans. Interest in semi-pro baseball seems to be rekindled and the Saints and Roslindale are supplying some fancy baseball for the customers.

Hole-in-One Tourney Excites Hub Golfers

By RAY HELGESEN

The Boston Evening American's hole-in-one tournament has struck a happy note in the public fancy.

Communications that have come in with the early entries indicate that the whole golf world of Boston and the surrounding area is watching avidly the Evening American's attempt to solve the mystery of the hole-in-one.

All around the city yesterday the Evening American's unusual tourney was one of the main subjects of conversation. At the Charles River Country Club where a member and guest four ball invitation tourney is in progress the American's tourney held a large part in the discussions of the players.

Is it luck or is it skill?

This ace tourney has caught the imagination of golf addicts, stars and duffers alike. Duffers can [illegible] as good a [illegible] as pros and [illegible] available records admit [illegible] there is nothing to prove that the pro has any better chance to come through with an ace than has the [illegible] dub.

EVERYONE STARTS EVEN

It's a test where everyone starts even. The pro has five balls to shoot and mashie or a mashie niblick to shoot them with. So has the duffer. Both shoot at a hole 128 yards away. Everyone has an equal chance. Pro and dub rank alike.

It has Boston's golf world buzzing as it hasn't since Bobby Jones clicked off his Grand Slam, the greatest feat ever recorded in this royal and ancient game.

The six main prizes have been selected and will be placed on exhibition in the windows of a Summer st. store before the tourney begins. They are worth shooting for—all of them—plus the glory that will go to the winners.

It was intended to announce the prizes today but that will be delayed until later this week.

And about the location of the hole?

HOLE AT FRANKLIN PARK

Through the co-operation of the Hon. William H. Long, commissioner of parks and of Mayor Curley, a special hole is being built at Franklin Park.

It is already under construction, at the junction of the first and 18th holes. The tee will be about 60 feet from the caddy house.

Here it is felt is the ideal spot for such a tournament. It is a democratic tourney, open to all, pro or duffer, man or women—over 18—and so it is logical to hold it in the city's largest park where any citizen has an equal right. Park Commissioner Long had intended to build this special hole for some weeks so, when the American asked him to allow it the use of it before anyone had played it he gladly consented.

The hole itself will be one of the sportiest in the East.

GREEN ALMOST HIDDEN

From the tee it slopes down toward the woods. A hundred yards from the tee and about 20 yards from the green, it rises again. This promontory almost conceals the green, but not quite. About two-thirds of the green is to be visible from the tee. But the cup itself cannot be seen by the player. Only the flag and about three-fourths of the pole will be visible.

No one will be allowed to play the hole until the tourney gets underway. However, all entrants will have plenty of time to get a complete mental picture of the hole at any time after its completion, as well as just before they tee off.

The green will be about 50 feet across. Not an overlarge green, it is true, but plenty big enough and considerably larger than many greens at wealthy golf clubs.

With each entrant getting five shots at the cup, Boston golf experts are wondering how many aces, if any, will be scored.

In this connection it is pointed out that when playing a complete round a player changes rapidly from driver to irons to putter and back again. But in this tourney the player has five shots, all with the same club. Therefore, he will have plenty of opportunity to get the range. This is a big point in the arguments of those who favor the probability of aces being scored in the American's unique tourney.

PRO MADE 24 ACES

Incidentally, the name of the famous New Jersey pro who has 24 aces to his credit is Tom Washington. Twenty-four . . . Count 'em. All attested and strictly kosher.

So it may be you will win the main prize or one of the other valuable prizes. Even if you don't drop your ball in the cup you may stop close enough to the pin to be eligible for one of the prizes. And you'll have a lot of fun.

Send in your entry today and get an early starting time.

Just fill out and send in the blank that appears elsewhere on this page to the Golf Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston. And watch the American each day for more information on this most unusual of golf tourneys and for list of entries, list of prizes and the reaction of Boston's golfing world to this unique competition.

AL LACY SAYS ZACHOW MAY BEAT LOU

By RINGSIDE

Ad Zachow and Lou Brouillard have completed training for their 10-round bout which will open the Boston Garden to boxing tomorrow night.

The rival thumpers each came through strenuous training periods unmarked. Each planned to take things easy today so as to be in the best possible condition when they sweep into action.

Brouillard has been installed a 10 to 7 favorite. The speculative element favors the former world's welterweight champion because of his experience and the smashing battle he recently put up against Jimmy McLarnin.

LACY LIKES AD'S CHANCES

Zachow has plenty of backers who believe that his terrific punching power gives him a chance of victory.

Al Lacy, Jack Sharkey's trainer, is one of those persons who believes Zachow has a chance to win. Lacy worked with Leo Larivee the night the Waterbury middleweight was knocked cold by Zachow.

"Zachow is a nervous puncher," said Lacy. "This type of fighter gets tremendous power behind his blows. It was a short left hook to the jaw which did the job on Larivee. The right hand drive to the jaw was merely the finishing shot.

"Of course Brouillard has more experience. This asset may win for him. Yet Zachow will always be dangerous. He can hit, and has youth. Great assets for any scrapper."

ZACHOW HERE TOMORROW

Zachow is at Dover, N. H. today. He will remain there until tomorrow morning when he will motor to Boston with Albert Sherry, his manager.

Brouillard is at Quincy. He is in fine condition, and if he wins will try to secure a bout with Jackie Fields for the welterweight championship of the world.

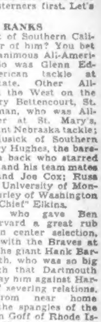
Brouillard will enter the ring weighing 147 to 148 pounds. He will give away weight to Zachow who will scale around 154 pounds.

Joe Gilman, president of the Garden, says a special train will be run over the Boston & Maine railroad from Portland. Gilman believes the show will draw between $12,000 and $15,000.

LUD WRAY HAS GREAT TEAM IN BRAVES

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Last winter when George Marshall and Jay O'Brien informed the populace that Boston was going to have the greatest football team ever to represent the Hub in the National Football League, some of the boys thought George and Jay were spoofing a bit.



Jay O'Brien

But, lo and behold, George and Jay came back to town early this week with the signed contracts of a squad of football stars few of the fans ever dreamed could be rounded up and made to don the same jerseys. Not even in the gala Haughton era at Harvard has such a Boston team taken the field as will wear moleskins for the Braves this season.

Those who have been watching the Braves work out under the watchful eye of Coach Lud Wray at the Lynn Stadium say that the former Penn coach has an all-star aggregation. And, remember, only the advance guard has shown up for the early preliminary practice. When the whole gang gets here the lineup will look like the All-American page in the football record book.

Just look over some of the country-wide famous football stars Marshall and O'Brien, apparently by waving the magic wand of Merlin, have brought to Boston. They come from coast to coast. Let's look over some of the Westerners first. Let's go——

PINCKERT IN RANKS

Ernie Pinckert of Southern California. Ever hear of him? You bet you have! A unanimous All-American selection. So was Glenn Edwards, All-American tackle at Washington State. Other All-Americans from the West on the Braves are Larry Bettencourt, St. Louis 3rd baseman, who was All-American center at St. Mary's, Hugh Rhea; giant Nebraska tackle; Jim "Sweet" Musick of Southern California; Henry Hughes, the barefooted Hawaiian back who starred at Oregon State and his team mates Ken Hammer and Joe Cox; Russ Peterson of the University of Montana; George Hurley of Washington State and Fait "Chief" Elkins.

Tony Siane, who gave Ben Ticknor of Harvard a great rub for All-American center selection, is working out with the Braves at Lynn and so is the giant Hank Barber of Dartmouth, who was so big rough and tough that Dartmouth was afraid to play him against Harvard for fear of severing relations. Other stars from near home who will wear the spangles of the Braves are Kenn Goff of Rhode Island State, who the Army was trying to lasso; Larry Dallaire of Loyola, the former Salem high star; Dick Murphy of N. Y. U.; Falmouth Babe Frank of Syracuse and "Lav" Zakarian, University of Maine.

McMURDO WITH TEAM

Reaching into the Middle West Marshall and O'Brien rounded up Freddie Ferber of North Dakota, Myers Clark of Ohio State, Oran Pape, University of Iowa and Jim McMurdo and Paul Collins of Pittsburgh.

From down in Dixie come Marion Dickens and Jack Roberts, University of Georgia (Remember him, Yale?).

There is no football coach in the country who wouldn't be doing handsprings if handed that bunch of stars to weld into a machine. So it is no wonder that Lud Wray is going around with a happy smile on his face and thinking what a wonderful team he is going to put on the field. Boston fans are going to see football that IS football this season.

SENSATION

● The sharpness, uniformity and shaving qualities of the Gillette BLUE BLADE are truly sensational. If you are a Gillette Blue Blade user you know this is true. Others can try it and see for themselves.

COLLUCCI B. U. COACH

EX-H. C. ACE MENTOR FOR WINGMEN

Boston University's coaching staff was completed today when it was announced that Tony Collucci, all-Eastern end at Holy Cross last year, will coach the ends. His appointment came after a long conference in which several men were considered.

Collucci is a Woburn boy and is regarded as one of the best wingmen ever turned out in these parts. He played the backfield at Woburn high school but when he matriculated to Lake Forest Prep in Chicago he was shifted to an end. From prep he went to Dartmouth but in his freshman year he transferred to Holy Cross and was graduated from there last year.

Coach Lane is enthusiastic about Collucci as he feels that the former Crusader is still close enough to the game to be able to scrimmage with the boys and help them greatly.

Real hard work starts today for the Terrier gridders and will continue for the rest of the season. Yesterday was devoted to the giving out of equipment, a long talk to the boys and then a short workout.

Lane will personally spend most of his time with the backs. Johnny MacManmon will have the line from tackle to tackle and will be assisted by Roger "Moose" Washburn until freshman practice starts in two weeks.

Tony Collucci will take charge of the ends and he will be helped during the next week by Al Fusonie, former Dartmouth star and present coach at Taft School in Connecticut.

DOUBT OF VARE SALEM ENTRY

Philadelphia, Sept. 8 (AP)—Of course she has a right to change her mind, but at this moment Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare says the odds are against her competing this year in her 13th national women's golf championship.

When the field tees off at Salem, Mass., September 26, the five times national title holder revealed today, she "may be just one of the crowd following the play."

"But," she added, "you never can tell."

Stars Give Correct Number to Mr. Tap

What did we tell you?

Tap's star gazing for the world's daily number paid a dividend yesterday, when he hit the hreavenly combination (150) right on the nose. The world was under the influence of Venus, and the old gal came through for Tap like Miss America (X).

Everyday, in the cartoon by Tap, you'll find three numbers. According to numerology, these numbers represent the key figures for earthly transactions. The figures crop up in all kinds of tabulations during the day. And when you turn star dust into pay dust, that's staging an eclipse of your own. Watch for the numbers.

TAPS TRIPLE COMBINATION

It's a deep secret with Tap and his numerologist assistants how they figure the day's numerical tag from the position of the stars and planets in the heavens. But they insist that there's a positive way you can figure the number out of planetary positions. In the cartoon each day you'll find their estimate, and it's yours for what it's worth. Catch on?

MR. BOSTON

—By JACK CONWAY—

DAN CARROLL called us on the telephone to state that the Jim Maloney who was thrown in a wrestling bout at Lawrence was not his Shamus. The South Boston heavyweight is doing all his wrestling with pumps at his gas station. Not even thinking of fighting, let alone wrestling.

Eddie Mack, still trying, has Walter Cobb signed to box at Fenway Park on next Tuesday night. Mack planned to step into the Arena next week, but discovered that on account of alterations which are being made the St. Botolph st. playhouse isn't available. Mack is still gunning for an opponent for Cobb. Hope he lands some fellow who can take a sock. Cobb sure can hit.

Mr. Boston

Billy Ames says they are even hitching up old hay wagons up in Maine and New Hampshire to carry Zachow fight fans to Boston tomorrow night.

Enter Mr. Strack

JUST WHEN IT looked as if September would be a calm and peaceful month as far as wrestling is concerned Alex MacLean stepped into the picture and signed Charley Strack and Bull Martin to meet at the Rollaway Rink, Revere on next Tuesday night. Which is building the foundation for a riot.

With Count Zarynoff battling Scotty Dawkins in the semifinal. And Alex hopes to also have Wong Bock Cheung on the card with a first class opponent.

In case you are interested, that oil painting of Jim Londos at the Boston Garden will soon be replaced by one of Henri DeGlane. Even Ed White will probably soon be recognizing the Frenchman as heavyweight champion of the world.

Likes Schmeling

JOE TOMASELLO, famous road builder, tells me he likes Max Schmeling to win over Mickey Walker at the Milk Fund show in New York on September 19. Because Max can hit. Joe is picking Lou Brouillard to get the duke over Ad Zachow at the Garden on Friday night.

Max Baer insists he be given a shot at the winner of the Schmeling-Walker bout. And is ready to first take on Johnny Risko if necessary.

Joe Gilman has clipped 450 tickets from the complimentary list at Garden boxing shows. In an effort to keep out of the red and get a few dollars for taxes.

Boxers appearing in four round bouts in Boston are now getting $35 and the six-round boys $50. Prewar prices. And to think that Young Stribling got as much as $3000 for a six-round bout with Jimmy Slattery in Buffalo. And would have got $6000 if Pa Stribling had accepted 25 per cent of the gate rather than a flat guarantee of three grand. Charley Murray is still laughing.

McKechnie's Spirit

I NOW KNOW WHY the Braves have been winning so many ball games this year. I sat with Bill McKechnie on the Braves bench at Rockland the other night. When Falmouth secured a six run lead, Bill forgot it was just a joy ride and got after one of the umpires. He called the umpire to task for allowing a home run with three on when a Falmouth player hit the ball into the crowd in center field.

Bill insisted that the rules called for two bases on a hit into the crowd. But was told the rule applied to hits into the crowd in right field. Rather technical. I saw enough to convince me McKechnie likes to win ball games.

PLAN SARAZEN AND DUTRA MATCH

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Writer

New York, Sept. 8 (INS)—Unless something unforeseen arises to thwart its sponsors, and it's only fair to add that the latter are a couple of 10 per cent agents who are not very dependable thwarters, arrangements probably will be made within 48 hours for a world series of golf, with the announced idea of determining the identity of "the perfect golfer."

The identity of the perfect golfer is ordinarily not a problem calculated to arise unbidden in the night to deride one's rest and strike fear in the hearts of men. In fact, the city directories at Atlanta, Ga., are understood to be pretty reliable.

P the 10 per cent boys are naturally a little anxious to clear up the situation, owing to the fact that if there is no match, there will be no purse and 10 per cent of nothing is liable to be very little.

So they're going ahead in a spirit of investigation and fair play, with the result that these details have been agreed upon tentatively:

SARAZEN VS. DUTRA

The scene to be Chicago and New York. The date late this month. The distance, 72 holes of match play. The principals, Gene Sarazen, open champion of America and Great Britain, and Olin Dutra, who won the P. G. A. championship at St. Paul last week and made a mockery of par.

PLENTY OF BUILD-UP

Dutra won so easily as to have some doubt as to Sarazen's claim to the world's championship, in spite of the latter's record rounds in the British and American events. That's one part of the build-up. Another was furnished two weeks ago when Sarazen beat Francis Ouimet, the amateur champion, in a special 72-hole match.

A third [illegible] will present itself just before the match, at which time the principals may be surprised to learn that there has been an enmity kept under restraint only because cooler heads prevailed. Next week, from rags to riches, or what happened to Nellie.

GARWOOD PLOTS NEW COURSE

Detroit, Sept. 8 (AP)—A defeated British challenger for the Harmsworth trophy—Miss England III, and her pilot, Kaye Don—sped eastward today, while race officials here discussed proposals of changes in the date, time and course for next year's race.

DATE CHANGED.

The changes are proposed by Otto F. Barthel, American member of the Harmsworth commission, who said he would endeavor to have the race run in mid-August, instead of early September, in late afternoon, instead of early morning, and on the Detroit river, instead of Lake St. Clair.

Concurrence of English members of the commission would be necessary to move the course, he explained, but the gold cup race committee had exclusive jurisdiction over the time.

Meanwhile, Gar Wood, who has held the trophy since 1920, helped plot out the straightaway course on the St. Clair river at Algonac, over which he is to try to better Don's world record of 119.81 miles an hour.

Joins Pro Gridders

Leon (Hap) Starbuck, former Colorado College football star and captain of the Tiger squad in 1931, has signed to play pro football with the Staten Island, N. Y., squad thi syear.

COAST ADONIS STEALS SHOW

By MICHAEL J. FOSTER

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 8 (INS)—Lester Rollo Stoefen, lanky, grinning Los Angeles tennis giant, just won't stop hogging the spotlight out at Forest Hills.

Henri Cochet, world's champion, and Ellsworth Vines, the California marvel, were supposed to be the headliners of the current national championship, but it's the towering collar ad from the City of Angels who holds the gallery's attention.

He won their admiration with his thrilling, five-set conquest of Jiro Satoh on Monday, held it in sweeping Joe Coughlin out of the way on Tuesday, and established himself even more firmly in the limelight yesterday, when he dealt an amazingly decisive whipping to the favored Gregory Mangin.

PLAYS VINES TODAY

This afternoon he battles Vines in the quarter finals, and so thoroughly has he been enthroned in the affections of the spectators that the strange spectacle of a large portion of the gallery rooting against a popular defending titleholder may well be enacted in the horseshoe stadium of the West Side Tennis Club.

Boston Boxer Beaten

Chicago, Sept. 8 (INS)—Mickey Patrick, after 10 torrid rounds last night, succeeded in outpunching and winning the verdict over Willie Oster, Boston veteran.

RESERVE SEATS AT HARVARD

Elimination of season tickets and slashing of restrictions on the number of tickets for major games as well as establishment of reserved seats for all games were announced by the Harvard A. A., as applications for the 1932 football season went to 35,000 alumni today.

This year all seats are reserved for every game. In the matter of unlimited applications for the Dartmouth, Army and Yale contests, the applicants for four or more seats will be given two according to their classification and the others wherever seats are available in the stadium or the Yale bowl.

Harvard still will continue to hold the applicants responsible for the tickets and will use the blacklist in case of abuse of the privilege.

Neponsets Want Games

Los Angeles, Sept. 8—Fans who gave Loretta Young such an enthusiastic reception on her recent personal appearance tour with George Brent will be glad to hear that they'll see her on the screen again shortly. Warners have handed her the feminine lead in "The Machine"—her first assignment since her return.

"The Machine" is the department store yarn which was to star Eddie Robinson. I say was, because Warners are involved in one of their by now traditional squabbles. Eddie, it seems, wants to trade his makeup box for a steamer trunk and hie himself to Europe. Warners want him to stay at home like a good little boy and do his vacationing later. If Eddie wins out, "The Machine" will be made anyway with someone else in the star spot.

Roy del Ruth, will direct and Glenda Farrell has one of the femme supporting roles.

Lloyd to Travel

Harold Lloyd has been bitten by the travel bug. Apparently Doug Fairbanks' globe-trotting has brought out the Marco Polo in Harold for he's planning to go to Japan ere long to meet the senior Fairbanks. Doug's peregrinations make the wandering Jew look like an old stay-at-home. He and Harold will go to Russia together. Mrs. Lloyd, not to be outdone, will pack up the three youngsters and sail for France on the Bremen Oct. 1. They've taken a house in Cannes. Harold will join them there when he's through Sovieting and they'll remain six months until he's ready to start another picture.

Back to Paramount

Jesse Lasky, formerly vice-president of Paramount, will return to the studio with which he was associated so long. There have been rumors that Lasky would cast his lot with Fox or another of the major studios, but apparently he has a soft spot in his heart for the company in whose development he was an important factor. He goes back to Paramount in the capacity of an associate producer. Incidentally, Lasky made the hit of the evening at the Zanuck stag Tuesday. His speech a la Abraham Lincoln got the biggest hand of any.

Given Contract

One studio's poison is another's meat. Anyone who knows his Hollywood will tell you that a player may fail to click with one company and then score a smashing hit with another. Vivienne Osborne, after having gone through both the Warner and Paramount mills, is now set at Radio. Vivienne, you will remember, returned to New York, discouraged—only to receive a wire from Radio the next day calling her back for "Second Fiddle." Radio's Joe Schnitzer liked her work so well that he has signed her to a three years' contract and is trying to buy "Aloma of the South Seas" as a starring vehicle for her. Vivienne did it on the stage and you will recall Gilda Gray in the silent movie version. "Born Wild" Radio's story of a torch singer by Stella Block, will be directed by J. Walter Rubin. Arline Judge carries the torch.

In "State Fair"

Fox's "State Fair" has an all-star cast including Sally Eilers, Janet Gaynor, Will Rogers, Phillips Holmes and others—but the star of stars is a gentleman hitherto unknown to film fans. Like Johnny Weissmuller he won his fame as champion in a field other than the cinema and like Johnny's, his physique is his strong point. But there the resemblance ends. The mysterious newcomer is a magnificent blue Hampshire boar. An Iowa prize hog and winner of the grand sweepstakes he will impersonate the superbly tyrannical Blue Boy who is the real hero of "State Fair." Just to be on the safe side Director Henry King and author Phil Stong brought three champions back from Iowa. When asked their opinion of Hollywood all three grunted disdainfully. Guess the Iowa mud is a superior brand.

This and That

Marlene Dietrich rented the Marion Davies guest house at Santa Monica because her youngster is crazy about the beach—and then got orders from her doctor to stay away from the ocean. Sinus trouble. She's living in the Charles Mack house in Beverly Hills. Universal trying to borrow Preston Foster for Jim Tully's "Laughter in Hell." Foster, who's under contract to Warner's did "All-American" for U. Paramount getting "Safari," Paul Hervey's original yarn about a hunting expedition in the African jungle, ready for Gary Cooper. Can't blame Para. for wanting to cash in on all the free newspaper space Gary got on his recent trip. Raoul Walsh and not Bill Howard, will direct "Pier 13," with Joan Bennett. Chic Sale goes into "Men of America" with Bill Boyd and Dorothy Wilson.

ED WYNN TORN Between Stage and Radio

Old Issue of Dollars and Cents

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

Ed Wynn is deeply concerned about the future. If his nights are sleepless there is good reason for it. But not in the way you may think, although the small matter of dollars and cents is the foundation of his anxiety. Mr. Wynn is torn between radio and his own musical affair called "The Laugh Parade." In trembling hands he holds unsigned contracts for radio and vaudeville appearances which would assure him an income of $15,000 a week for 11 weeks, with more to follow if he felt the urge. The gross receipts of "The Laugh Parade" will, of course, total less than this weekly figure, and Wynn draws only a portion of this, sharing some of it with the Shuberts. Even Mr. Wynn's slice in this arrangement is pared down, for most of it is paid out to the company in salaries.

• • •

Although rated as a hard, shrewd business man, which must be true in the face of past events, Mr Wynn is also something of a sentimentalist. The stage is his first love and "The Laugh Parade" his greatest achievement. While in New York it was easy to blend his activities between show and broadcasting. On the road this is not so easy, nor is there any practical solution in sight. In Boston and Philadelphia the problem may be simplified by closing the show on Tuesday nights: when the tour extends westward this cannot be done. Mr. Wynn must give up one or the other. This is his dilemma and money is at the bottom of it.

• • •

EDUCATION NOTE—Charles Winter Wood, who understudies Richard B. Harrison in the role of "the Lawd" in "The Green Pastures," and seldom, if ever, gets a turn at the wheel, is the company's heavy intellectual. He reads classic Greek for pleasure, holds a B.D. degree from the Chicago Theological Seminary, a B.A. from Beloit College and an M.A. from Columbia University.

Exeter Theater

Adolph Menjou in "Bachelor's Affairs" and Violet Heming and Ralph Bellamy in "Almost Married" are the attractions at the Exeter for the remainder of the week.

UNFLINCHINGLY HE TOOTS HIS OWN HORN

Ed Wynn, you will see, goes in strenuously for music as well as for fire prevention. In "The Laugh Parade," Mr. Wynn does not play every instrument in the band but he does peck away at most of them with boisterous disregard for technique.

Stage Show at Publix Warren and Dudley

Special shows will be staged at the Publix Warren and Dudley theaters, tomorrow, matinee and evening. Both houses will feature a footlight troupe, the "Harlem Hot Shots," which scored a big hit in the larger theaters. Eddie Deas and his band appear with the unit. In addition each house will show two feature photoplays.

Bowdoin Theater

"Hollywood Speaks" is the major feature on the Bowdoin Sq Theater screen, beginning today, the interesting theme being enacted by Genevieve Tobin, Pat O'Brien and Rita La Roy. The secondary feature is "Igloo," a graphic picture of the Far North, intensely interesting. The Bowdoin also presents seven new vaudeville acts. Tomorrow night is "Bargain Night" with extra acts on the bill.

Met's Schedule Today

The Metropolitan tonight will screen, beginning at 10 18, the George Arliss picture, "A Successful Calamity." For this reason, the schedule today has been changed, so that the Jessel revue appears as follows: P. M., 12 28, 2 56, 5 24 and 8.

Fun Aplenty in Lee Tracy's "BLESSED EVENT"

Star Plays Columnist Role

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

That much ballyhooed old blessed-eventer, The Stork, is hurrying up with his basket. This time he brings twins, identic babies. One he deposits tomorrow at the Uptown, and the other at the Paramount and the name of the twain is Hilarity. For "Blessed Event" is hilarity. The film, based upon the stage play, has other good points, but its grandest asset is its fun.

The Warners are its film father. These makers of box office movies gave it plenty of personality. Lee Tracy is one dab. Lee is seen as the columnist, a capital actor making the most of every line, every bit of business. Lee is one of the world's outstanding comebacks. He got his chance, but was "washed out" when the studios doomed him as being on the order of Henry the trained flea that wouldn't stay put. Nobody ever questioned his ability, he is a real star.

Somebody has said that an alarm clock is Tracy's worst foe. In the "shooting" of "Blessed Event" the studios assigned an assistant director to see that Lee was on the set on time—9 a. m., and no maybe. He found it necessary to set the alarm at 7, and keep prodding Lee, for the actor has a knack of falling off into slumber in jigtime.

JUST TRYING TO EXPLAIN

Mary Astor listens dubiously to George Arliss as he tries to explain his explanation in "A Successful Calamity," photoplay on the Met's screen tomorrow.

'BAD' BUILDERS DIFFICULT TO RULE—SMITH

By EDWIN S. SMITH

Commissioner of Labor and Industries of Massachusetts

The law which gives veterans and citizens preference in employment on the building of roads has always been difficult to enforce. This is particularly true during the present depression. Jobs on the road this season and last have been fairly plentiful. Many citizens are eager to do road work who are doing other work in good times.

Edwin S. Smith

The difficulty of enforcement lies partly in the wording of the statute. But a large part of the trouble is in many road contractors who either flout the law deliberately or go through motions of compliance which keep them technically within the law but absolutely defeat its purpose.

HOW THEY ARE "KILLED OFF"

To illustrate: The law says that only veterans and citizens who are "qualified" to do the work must be given preference. The contractor who is not on the level regarding the law can very easily hire a veteran or citizen who applies and "kill him off" in the next day or two on the ground that he is not qualified.

One method of killing off is to give a man more work than he can possibly do. This "disqualifies" him in the mind of the contractor. Unfortunately, it would be pretty difficult to get a conviction of the contractor in court.

The veterans' and citizens' preference law was never intended to force on the contractor men unfit physically or otherwise. In order to assure the contractors a supply of veterans and citizens qualified for road building, I instructed Walter H. Neaves, director of the State's public employment offices, to pick out good able-bodied men for the work and offer them to the contractors as applicants for jobs. Mr. Neaves, who before taking over the administration of these offices some months ago had had a very successful career as personnel manager in one of our large Massachusetts manufacturing establishments, has carried out these instructions so far as I can see in a thoroughly first class manner. He has had the expert assistance of the superintendents of our offices, men of experience and of sound qualifications for their work.

FIRE THEM AT ONCE

Nevertheless, time and again contractors have turned down men sent from our offices, many of them experienced road builders, or have hired men only to discharge them almost at once.

When I took office last December road building was practically done for the season, but there were plenty of echoes of past troubles to show the need for more drastic action.

I felt from the start that an important part of the solution lay in getting the public works department to bring pressure on the contractors on state roads to live up not only to the "preference" requirement, but other features of the labor law applying to public works.

Since it was specifically written into the contract that the contractor bound himself to obey the labor laws it seemed to me that the public works department had a direct interest in their enforcement.

I had no intention of slackening the enforcement efforts of my own department but wanted to supplement them by getting the co-operation of the public works officials at the State House and their engineers on the various jobs.

HARD TO HANDLE THEM

I found Commissioner Lyman receptive to the idea and both from him and his chief engineer, Mr. Arthur W. Dean I have received a fine degree of co-operation. The two departments have jointly worked out a procedure for making frequent checks on just what each contractor is doing in regard to the various provisions of the labor laws. When something wrong is discovered public works has emphatically demanded correction of the condition by the contractor and labor and industries has gone on his trail if prompt results were not at once obtained.

These procedures are new and it takes time to get them working smoothly, but it already looks as if something more were necessary to handle the "bad actors."

In two states, Wisconsin and New York, a contractor who is convicted a second time of violating the labor law while engaged on public work has his contract forfeited. Perhaps this would be a good law for Massachusetts.

Because of the difficulty of getting court decisions I believe the most effective present weapon is for the commissioner of public works to put the "fear of God" in some of the offenders. Commissioner Lyman is in favor of this policy and is practising it.

Let me repeat that there are good contractors and bad, and the former outnumber the latter. Unfortunately the contractor who intends to stay within the law is frequently not the low bidder on contracts.

THE "BAD" CONTRACTORS

With the good contractor the problem of my department and that of Commissioner Lyman is very much simpler. If the contractor is found to be violating the law he will make an honest effort to remedy conditions. In other words he will respond to education, persuasion and the doctrine of the square deal.

The bad contractor is different. He cannot be handled with gloves because his intention toward the law is not honest. Only the most drastic action will bring him into line and then one would feel no assurance of his good behavior in the future.

In addition to disregarding the veterans and citizens preference law many contractors pay scant attention to the law requiring payment of the prevailing rate of wages to mechanics. This is a ticklish problem from the legal end. And here again the good will of the contractor is of a lot more importance than the majesty of the law in remedying conditions. Making the statute more precise would help the prevailing wage matter.

Violation of the hours of labor on public works is also a matter of rather frequent occurrence and is for various reasons difficult to correct.

On all these matters we are making definite progress. There is a lot of wrong and illegal action by road contractors still to be uncovered and corrected. Publicity on specific cases should help.

ALIENS GET ROAD JOBS; VETERANS BARRED

The Boston Evening American today makes more disclosures regarding brazen law defiance by certain highway contractors, who are reaping the benefits of $20,000,000 relief expenditures while barring veterans, citizen laborers and local unemployed.

Thirty-two World War veterans and 101 local citizens applied for work on the $225,000 road-widening job in Wareham. Of the 133 applicants legally qualified under the preference act, only one was hired by the contractor.

The sole favored Warehamite happened to be a veteran and he was discharged in less than two hours. Since then two local men have been put to work it is asserted by friends.

The attitude of this contractor astounded state officials and residents of Wareham and surrounding communities. It put the selectmen and rejected citizens in a fighting mood. They chalked it down as just another in a growing list of discriminations.

Agents of the Department of Labor claimed they had enough evidence against this contractor to attack him for employing aliens when able-bodied veterans and citizens were available.

CITIZENS GO JOBLESS

They report that the offender when faced with an official investigation, promised to "dump" the aliens and put on a quota of Wareham vets and citizens the following Monday.

Taking him at his word the complaint was dropped and when Monday arrived the contractor is alleged to have forgotten all about his pledges. The same crew remained on the job.

Since then the housewives and children in Wareham have been treated to the spectacle, it is charged, of seeing non-citizens enjoying steady employment while their husbands and fathers vainly sought any kind of honest labor to keep their households going and their families in food.

The Wareham fiasco appears graphically to substantiate the charge made by Commissioner of Labor Edwin S. Smith that certain contractors merely "go through the motions" so far as the preference act is concerned and then refuse to hire the very class of unemployed for whose relief such emergency public improvements were designed.

Immediately after the award of the contract Walter H. Neaves, director of the state employment bureau wrote to the board of selectmen in Wareham, saying in part:

"Dear Sirs:

"As you know the contract for widening and resurfacing the state road running through Sandusky road in Wareham has been awarded to the — — — —. As with nearly all state road contractors, they have asked the Massachusetts public employment offices to register and certify citizens of the state who are able and willing to work for them on this job.

CITES THE LAW

"Inasmuch as nearly all of this ew construction is in Wareham t seems right to offer the jobs ainly to Wareham citizens; and herefore with the superintenent of the Boston office and an ssistant I shall be in Wareham ext Wednesday, May 11, in order o register applicants and decide s well as may be done their fitess for the work.

"The law of the Commonwealth tates that on all work of this ype preference must be given irst to veterans, and secondly to itizens.

"Wareham has, we are told, a ood many men who are skilled n certain road-building trades. f they are veterans and citizens ey, of course, will be given reference."

On the day appointed Director ave motored to Wareham early th Everett L. Hanna, superinkdent of the Boston office of e state employment bureau, and James Barry, liaison man for the veterans.

"We interviewed several hundred local applicants," said Neaves today. "We worked all day. Out of the total number we listed 23 veterans and 101 Wareham citizens who we found qualified under the preference act. This squad of 135 were referred to the contractor who was expected to employ from 70 to 80 men for road work.

"You can imagine how surprised we were to learn later that the contractor on this job had hired only one of our 133 prospects, and he a world war veteran lasted less than two hours on the job.

"I knew from considerable experience in personnel work that the majority of the men we selected from among the applicants in Wareham could have made good on the job

ONLY 2 GOT JOBS

"Yet they were rejected. On June 5 I received a letter from Harry O. Joy, chairman of the board of public welfare in Wareham, which read:"

"'The work by the ———————widening and re-surfacing State Road running through Wareham, has been going on for some time. So far, we have been unable to get positions for any of the veterans or citizens of Wareham, whom you and your assistants listed and gave cards to on May 9th.

"'Inasmuch as conditions at the present time in the Town of Wareham are exceptionally bad, and a great many of able-bodied men out of employment and burdens upon the Town of Wareham, it seems no more than right that some of these men should be given employment in preference to other workmen from outside cities and towns. As far as I am able to learn, there are only two local men employed on this construction job at the present time.'

"As the result of the letter from Chairman Joy I went at once to Wareham. A check-up showed aliens on the job.

"Promises to make amends and to put on some of the Wareham help recommended by our department were not kept. This is only one of the many instances in which the preference act has been blinked at.

"Naturally, the selectmen and citizens in Wareham were incensed. We were given every possible co-operation by the members of the board of selectmen."

Another instalment giving further evidence of discrimination will be published in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Spinners Join Mill Strike in England

Manchester, Eng., Sept. 8 (INS)—By the overwhelming vote of 30,991 to 1516 Lancashire cotton spinners today decided to join the strike called by weavers in protest against a threatened 10 per cent wage cut.

SEE SALES TAX NEXT SESSION

Washington, Sept. 8—Adoption of a general manufacturers' sales tax by the December Congress became progressively more certain today, as the budget bureau found itself involved in an almost hopeless task in its efforts to cut governmental expenses enough to meet dwindling treasury revenues.

While bureau officials led a frenzied pin-hunt for new economies, treasury returns showed a disappointing record of income from the various special taxes.

It was the general consensus among financial leaders here that treasury revenues between now and the convening of Congress will show little or no improvement.

SIX ESCAPE IN PRISON BREAK

Parchman, Miss., Sept. 8 (AP)—Six convicts, including three lifers, overpowered guards and escaped from the State prison farm here early today.

The lifers are Rouey Eaton, slayer of a federal officer; Andrew Andrew, slayer of a rival in a love affair, and Clifton Smith, convicted killer. The others are O. B. Winters, Memphis bank robber; Tom Dear and J. P. Conner, convicted of robbery.

They seized Night Watchman Rover Warren and an attendant, took Warren's revolver, locked them in a cage, looted the prison hospital of several guns and fled in a prison auto.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

DRUMMER BOY OF SHILOH WRITES IN TO RECALL A STIRRING DRAMA

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ONE SURE WAY of finding out whether anybody ever reads a column is to recall some specific event or name out of the past. Ideas will bring letters of argument, but events and names will bring pleasant letters of reminiscence.

PROF. ROGERS

On the occasion of John Craig's death I happened to mention that the first time I had seen him on the stage was in a performance of "The Drummer Boy of Shiloh" at the old Boston Theater around the turn of the century. I could not have placed the occasion any more exactly than that. Today a letter comes from the Drummer Boy himself, telling me all about it. It was in 1899.

Roy K. Wentworth of Stoneham, now proprietor and manager of a novelty band, played Harry the drummer-boy. Or was it Willie? He was only eight years old but had already at the age of six toured the United States as a concert drummer.

• • •

And His Heart Wasn't There!

The Stoneham Independent prints an amusing account of one occasion during the week of the production, when Harry the drummer boy was dying in the arms of his brother (John Craig), who was in command of the Union forces that had just captured Andersonville Prison and rescued the starving boys in blue. At the moment of the rescue Harry had been shot by the villain, who in turn was killed by the brother. As Harry was dying in his brother's arms John Craig, feeling frantically for his heart, cried, "No, no, he is not dead! His little heart is still beating." And Wentworth had presence of mind to remark out of the corner of his mouth, "You've got your hands on the wrong side," which upset the famous leading man considerably.

It is about time something like "The Drummer Boy" emerged from the memories of the World War. There's a gold mine in it for somebody clever enough. When it started I do not know, but apparently very shortly after the close of the Civil War. My mother remembers having seen it first when she was young enough to cover her head with her coat when the shooting began. And when I say shooting, I mean shooting, for they used to fight the entire battle right there on the stage.

That means that in the early seventies the play was already going strong. I saw it as a small boy in the middle nineties and again in 1899. I do not know how long it lasted after that. It must have died out soon after. Probably the proprietors died, or the increasing age of the Veterans and the lessening of their numerical strength made it no longer a paying venture. Even thirty years ago the Sons and Daughters of Veterans were having to bear the brunt of it.

A Natural Born Villain

Two men from Ohio owned the play. Old A. J. Nail and his son. Mr. Wentworth tells me they hailed from Mansfield, O. I suppose they wrote it. Old A. J. Nail played an old-fashioned Colored Servant of the traditional show type. His son played the most villainous villain I ever remember seeing on the stage. Nature had formed him perfectly for the part, a lean, swaggering, squinting type, whom the northern audiences liked to believe was the typical southerner.

The Nails peddled the show round to large Grand Army posts, furnishing costumes and scenery, I suspect, and rehearsing the company of amateurs. The story opened with breakfast in a northern home on the news of the firing on Fort Sumter. The news separates two old friendly families. The southern boy goes home to fight for the Confederacy and to become the perfect villain. The northern boy enlists, accompanied by his younger brother and the old colored servant. The boy was always chosen for two purposes; he must be as small as possible, to increase the pathos, and he must be a cracker-jack performer on the snare drum.

All Civil War veterans and Sons of Veterans and the local militia were used for the battle scenes, which were pretty effective. Thirty-five years ago memories of the Civil War were keen. Yet even without that aid, I remember as especially poignant the scene of the Christian Sanitary Commission hunting the moonlit battle field for the living after the battle; the starving prisoners huddled across the dead line in Andersonville Prison, with the death of the boy, the rescue of the prisoners and the vengeance on the villain; and at the last, the reunion at home, when the broken sister plays "The Vacant Chair" on the parlor organ. It was genuine folk drama, and therefore, very touching.

At the end of each act, the backdrop opened up to show, high up over the stage, a tableau representing Columbia and the Thirteen states in various poses: South Carolina aiming a dagger at Columbia while the seceding states turn away, and so forth. And a great tableau of triumph at the end. It was a good show.

Chance for World War Drama

General Grant was one of the characters and there was a scene in which he announces his determination to "fight it out on this line if it takes all summer." President Lincoln was not in the play. His figure was too immediately sacred then, I suppose. Or perhaps they had not learned then how easy it was to present him effectively on the stage—perhaps the most effectively of all historical characters.

The larger posts must have done the piece at intervals over a great many years, so long as there was an audience to which it meant something very real and serious.

There is, of course, no possibility of reviving it today, except as a historical curiosity. But I wonder why some clever amateur playwright and director does not put together a similar piece, based on the World War, with plenty of comedy and pathos and martial action, and peddle it around to the larger American Legion posts. The men are still young enough to give the illusion of soldiers. The auxiliaries could furnish the feminine parts more than acceptably.

I suppose the answer is that the great war films, "The Big Parade" and the like, have spoiled the appetite for anything less elaborate. True enough, yet Boston is a hot-bed for amateur dramatic interest and accomplishment. For many people nothing is quite so intereesting as seeing their own friends and relatives—not to speak of enemies—in amateur dramatics. And the feeling roused by the Great War is still alive enough to make it possible to capitalize that interest successfully.

But new times bring new patterns and I do not suppose I shall ever have an opportunity to see it, or would enjoy it if I did. But at least I can give my testimony to the unique quality of that old bit of genuine American folk drama, and to the pleasure and inspiration it must have given a whole generation of people like me.

DOLE PROBE MUDDLE INCENSES HULTMAN

1800 Vets of 101st Invade South Boston for Reunion

BIG PARADE IS PLANNED FOR SATURDAY

Three-Day Carnival Will Also Commemorate 14th Anniversary of the St. Mihiel Battle

Fourteen years behind those days overseas when none knew which of them might be living the next moment, the war-time veterans of the 101st infantry met again today in South Boston for a three-day reunion and convention.

Before the big parade Saturday afternoon through South Boston, more than 1800 veterans of the old outfit are expected to be on hand.

Lieut.-Gen. Edward L. Logan who commanded the 101st overseas greeted the vanguard of his old regiment today at registration headquarters in the Municipal building in East Broadway.

Throughout the three days there will be a carnival in Columbus Park, with band concerts and fireworks.

BALL TOMORROW NIGHT

There will be a sightseeing trip in buses tomorrow throughout Greater Boston, and tomorrow night a semi-military ball will be given at the Municipal building.

On Saturday morning the veterans will gather in the Municipal building for the convention session with Gen. Logan as the principal speaker. A memorial service in honor of Michael J. Perkins, who was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously, will follow at 1 30 p. m. at Michael J. Perkins sq., Dorchester st. and East and West Broadway.

Capt. John J. Lydon of South Boston is chief marshal of the big parade in the afternoon, and will have on his staff many former Yankee Division officers and some who are still in the National Guard.

FIRST FOR SOUTH BOSTON

The reunion will be closed Saturday night with a display of fireworks and a band concert at Columbus Park, with airplanes flying above.

The reunion will mark the first time that a military convention has been held in South Boston and it will mark also the 14t. anniversary of the Battle of St. Mihiel in which the 101st infantry played a prominent part.

Co-operating with the veterans are the South Boston Citizens' Association, the Knights of Columbus, the Loyal Order of Moose and other fraternal and civic bodies of the district.

SEIZE RUNAWAY GIRL AT DANCE

The most persistent spectator was lost today to the Marathon dance at Revere Beach when Miss Audrey Spinney, pretty blonde of Union st., Weymouth was arrested as a runaway and a stubborn child.

The arrest, however, gave police of Weymouth a conundrum because, although Audrey was 17 when the warrant was sworn out, she had her 18th birthday last Friday.

She had not missed a night at the Marathon dance for more than a month, and the reason is she is in love with one of the dancers, she told police.

For a week Metropolitan police at Revere had observed her leaving the marathon dance every morning at 6, 6:30 or 7 o clock, and today a patrolman questioned her.

She readily admitted her identity saying she was a friend of one of the dancers and expected to marry him when the grind ends. A check-up with Weymouth police revealed she was a runaway and that there was a warrant out for her.

Safe On Yacht

Children Still Ride for Nickel on El

According to Edward Dana, general manager of the Boston Elevated Railway, the five cent fare for children between the ages of five and 14 will be continued until Sunday.

This ruling does not include the congested week-day periods between 7 and 9 A. M. and 4 30 and 6 30 in the afternoon.

FEAR FELT FOR MISSING DRUG ADDICT

Woman Who Told Secrets Believed Kidnaped by a Narcotic Ring

Drug sleuths were ordered into the underworld haunts of drug addicts today for clues to Mrs. Margaret Cosgrove, believed to have been kidnaped to prevent her disclosure of a powerful drug ring.

Mrs. Cosgrove, who told police she forfeited a Lowell beauty parlor on account of drugs, has been missing since Monday from her lodging house in Massachusetts ave, South End.

She failed to appear in municipal court yesterday to arrange for a year's probation on charges of possessing drugs and hypodermic needles.

ARREST ORDERED

"Get out and question everybody that knows anything about this woman," Deputy Police Supt. McDevitt ordered the narcotic squad today.

"She is in default of the court and you may arrest her at once, if you find her.

"We do not know officially that she has been kidnaped but don't lose sight of that angle. Question her friends, her acquaintances—anybody who knows her. We want her [illegible]

Mrs. Cosgrove was arrested in her South End home a week ago [illegible] She told police of a [illegible] operated along the North Shore and charged that girls are duped into taking drugs so that they eventually and unwittingly become addicts.

It was because of her charges that the kidnap theory was advanced when Mrs. Cosgrove failed to appear in court and a search for her revealed Monday's disappearance.

Deputy McDevitt said today if the search for Mrs. Cosgrove was not productive in 48 hours police circulars with a minute description of her would be released over a wide area.

Man Held in Pool Raid

Officers of the Dudley st. station yesterday raided a barber shop in Dudley st., Roxbury and arrested Benedict Goldberg, 51. Police said they found 350 pool tickets in his possession.

FLEE FLAMES IN WALTHAM

MRS. OLIVE GORSE MRS. DOROTHY DELANEY

Seven families were driven to the street early today and two elderly women rescued when fire swept the three-story wooden Waldorf Theater block near Waltham City Hall. Among those who fled the flames were Mrs. Olive Gorse, left, and Mrs Dorothy Delaney The blaze, believed to have been set, caused damage of $15,000. (Staff photo.)

GIRL FAINTS AT $50 AUTO FINE

When Judge Malcolm E. Sturtevant imposed a $50 fine in Somerville District Court today on Dorothy F. Hayward of Temple st., Somerville, the girl swooned in the arms of a policeman and was carried from the courtroom.

Miss Hayward, who gave her age as 22, was charged with operating an automobile after her license had been revoked.

Complaints from neighbors, the police testified, resulted in her arrest today.

FIREMAN SAVES HIS MOTHER

Two elderly women were rescued, one by her fireman son, and 18 other persons were forced to flee as a two-alarm blaze swept through the Waldorf Theater building in Elm st., Waltham early today, causing $20,000 damage.

Several buildings in the heart of the business district were menaced as the blaze swept through the old landmark in Central sq. Apparatus from four nearby towns responded to aid the Waltham firemen when the second alarm was sounded.

Mrs. F. S. Dinsmore, 69, occupant of one of the seven apartments in the three-story building, was carried to safety by her son, Frank Fleming, driver of the fire chief's auto. Mrs. Joanna Downes, 72, was carried from the blazing building by Patrolmen Edward Diskin, Thomas Henry and Fred M Bevins.

The fire was discovered by Patrolman Diskin. He sounded the alarm and rushed into the building to arouse the occupants. All were aslep at the time.

By the time firemen reached the scene the majority of occupants were making their way to the street. None was hurt, but several firemen later were temporarily overcome by smoke. They were treated at the scene and returned to duty.

Capt. King's Son to Study to Be Priest

James Roy King, of 18 Wade st., Brighton, son of Capt. Martin H. King, of the Milk st., police station, will leave tomorrow to begin his studies for the priesthood at St. Joseph's Vincentian College at Princeton, N. J.

He was graduated from Brighton high school last June. During the past year he has been president of the St. John Berchmans Sanctuary Society of St. Ignatius Church at Chestnut Hill.

POLICE LASHED FOR DELAY IN DOLE PROBE

Long Wait for Report to Hultman Emphasizes Muddle Over the Cheaters

The welfare situation was muddled up more than ever today, when Police Commissioner Hultman, having demanded a complete report today on the first 206 unworthy cases, was informed that another week's work is necessary.

This delay further postponed correction of welfare evils which the Boston Evening American exposed several weeks ago.

One police official stated that a report has been given to Commissioner Hultman, but it was later learned that this report was simply a verbal statement, not the comprehensive report that the commissioner requires.

"Another week's work is necessary to tie in the loose ends," one police official explained.

Behind closed doors, the commission verbally lashed the police probers for delay and assigned ten additional officers from the detective bureau to assist in the inspection of welfare department records.

The welfare records are being gone over to obtain evidence necessary to support in court the discoveries made by police investigators in their house-to-house probe.

SCHWARTZ JOINS ATTACK

Officials connected with the police welfare investigation division told the commissioner that the chaotic condition of the records of the welfare offices is to blame for all the delay.

Today's report was made ready only after work by the police at the welfare building until long after midnight.

It is understood that Leo M. Schwartz, legal adviser to the police commissioner, told the police investigators that their report failed to include certain details which were highly important.

The welfare board itself has announced suspension of dole payments to 240 families, out of 2880 investigated by the board's agents.

The 240 aid recipients are residents of the North End, East Boston, Dorchester and West Roxbury, where every jobless case has been revisited by welfare workers. They included those who had obtained temporary employment and other who had registered autos after seeking city aid.

MAY BE RESTORED

The Boston Evening American learned today, however, that welfare officials expect to restore many of these cases to the list after further investigation, due to "extenuating circumstances."

This was admitted by both Edward H. Willey, treasurer of the board, and Walter V. McCarthy welfare department secretary. Some of the cases already have been put back on the relief rolls.

Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman made this statement:

"Ninety-nine per cent. of those 240 cases are not fraudulent. They are cases where the situation has changed in the homes and the families no longer need help. They have either reported to the department that some member of the family has obtained work, or told the visitor when he called. The police had nothing to do with those cases."

Police are continuing to investigate families whose names have been handed over by the welfare department, and patrolmen have reported finding 75 apparently fraudulent cases out of 400 recently inquired into in the South End.

Phone In News Tips, Liberty 4000, and Win $50 in Weekly Prizes

Do you want to make some money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American is presenting the opportunity. Every week a total of $50 in prizes will be offered for news tips telephoned in to the American News-Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to the people of Greater Boston and adjacent cities has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an important meeting is scheduled for a certain date, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger, that a celebrity is coming to town? That's a news tip. There will be given $25 weekly for the best first exclusive news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best and $1 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. The first tip on a story wins. Do not send in minor stories that everyone sees. Good exclusive pictures are wanted, too.

ORDERS M'KNIGHT GAVE ON LOANS REVEALED IN LETTERS

SECURITY WIFE PUT UP NOT INCREASED

Bonus Charges Not Included in Medford Trust Dividend Figures, Says Holder

Bonus charges on loans by the Medford Trust Co., were not included in figures on which dividends were based, according to testimony in Suffolk court today.

Testifying in the $1,000,000 suit of Bank Commissioner Guy against [illegible] wife and 21 directors of the closed bank, G. H. Holder, assistant treasurer, gave the testimony under cross-examination.

Holder's admissions came after counsel for Commissioner Guy asked Charles W. Blood, master, to declare Holder a "hostile witness."

ON McKNIGHT'S ORDERS

Previous to that Atty. Robert T. [illegible] ters to Mrs. McKnight from Holder in which Holder was quoted in statements that he acted on loan matters under orders of McKnight.

The letters were admitted by Blood over the strenuous objections of defence counsel. Holder had previously testified he was under no loan orders of McKnignht. By agreement the letters were allowed by Blood only in so far as they might affect the case of McKnight.

Holder made vigorous denial when Bushnell asked him if loans given Mrs. McKnight were not really for her husband.

During the market crash of 1929 Holder testified, he tried "dozens of times" to get additional collateral for the loans to Mrs McKnight but so unsuccessful.

"Why weren't these laons called," challenged Bushnell.

"Because one day they would be alright an dthe next day under water," was the reply.

CALLED "DUMMIES"

A lively tilt between counsel ensued today during the questioning of Ernest B Moore one of the defendant directors.

Counsel for McKnight charged that questions of Bushnell were aimed principally at McKnight.

"Well, McKnight was the boss. The rest were a lot of dummies," Bushnell retorted.

The statement brought other counsel immediately to their feet and Blood had to intercede so the hearing could resume.

WARNS AGAINST FOREIGN BONDS

Keep out of the foreign bond market was the advice of H. C. Baldwin, investment expert, at the 19h annual conference on business at Babson Park, Wellesley, today.

Baldwin shared speaking honors today with John Hays Hammond, who spoke on the silver question.

Securities in food companies, farm products, chain stores, oils and some utilities were pronounced good by Baldwin. On utility purchases, however, he warned that investors should first investigate the state laws and their rights in case of disenfranchisement.

Real estate he described as in "a sad state of affairs," but said the home loan banks may relieve the pressure.

2 BANDITS ROB SO. END STORE

Continuing their South End invasion, two daylight bandits today bound and gagged Dennis O Neill of Pearl st., Cambridge, manager of a chain store at 527 Columbus ave., stole $30 from O Neill and the cash register and escaped as a woman customer arrived.

One of the two men who entered the store shortly after 10 o'clock asked for cigarettes and then both drew revolvers. O'Neill was ordered into the back room, where he was bound, gagged with a cloth and placed on the floor.

From O'Neill's pockets they took $7 and from the cash register $23.

Mrs Ena Edwards was entering the store when the bandits emerged from the back room, one replacing a revolver in his pocket.

"Where's the manager?" Mrs Edwards asked.

"Oh, he's gone down the street," one man answered. He'll be right back."

Then they darted out of the store, first throwing back a bunch of keys they had taken from the manager.

Sensing what had occurred, Mrs. Edwards went to the back room and found O Neill endeavoring to untie the rope around his legs. The bandits had neglected to tie his hands, he said. She assisted him in freeing himself, then he sent her out to find a policeman.

Both bandits wore black pull-over sweaters; one wore a cap, the other a soft hat.

FIRST PHOTO OF BARRYMORES TOGETHER IN FILM PLAY

LIONEL BARRYMORE JOHN BARRYMORE ETHEL BARRYMORE

This is the first still photograph published of the three famous Barrymores, Ethel, John and Lionel, in a scene from the screen play "Rasputin" which they are making in Hollywood, Cal. This will be the first time the talented actress and her equally noted brothers have acted together since they rose to fame individually on the stage and in the films. In this picture Lionel is shown in the title role of Rasputin, the mad monk of the Russian Empire. John takes the role of the grand duke and Ethel appears as Czarina whose subservience to Rasputin led to tragedy. (Int. News Photo.)

BATTLE MARKS PAROLE CASE

A fight between citizens of Wrentham and friends of Alfred Bedard of Pawtucket, now serving a life sentence in the State Prison at Charlestown for the murder of James E Carpenter aged Wrentham bank cashier November 1 1924 developed during a hearing on Bedard's petition for parole before the State parole board at the prison today.

Bedard was one of the three accomplices of Celestino Madeiros, who paid the death penalty. Bedard and James S. Weeks pleaded guilty to second degree murder.

William G. Todd, representing Bedard, called several witnesses including Edward J. McCabe, retired Cambridge police officer, who signified his willingness to sign a bond for Bedard, if necessary, and Justice Raymond J. MacMahon of the Pawtucket, who told Chairman Frank A. Brooks of the board that Bedard had been punished enough. Philip L. Benoit of Pawtucket promised Bedard a job.

Fred Gilmore of Wrentham argued against the parole, filing a petition with 885 signatures. The petition said that a parole would be offensive to the relatives of the cashier and an incitement to further crime.

4 SEIZED IN CAR RING ROUNDUP

A man called "Slaybo," believed to be leader of a Boston ring of automobile thieves, was the objective in a Vermont manhunt today.

Guards were spread through the wooded hills and highways near St. Johnsbury, Newport, Lyndonville and West Burke after irate citizens reported automobile thefts even in daylight.

One of the most glaring was reported by a West Burke man who was forced to look on as the thieves made a getaway and witnessed the smashup of his car in their haste to escape.

Early today police raided several gangster haunts in the woods, found 10 stolen cars, arrested four men and seized equipment used for burning off motor numbers.

Questioning of the four started the hunt for "Slaybo." Police said he heads a group that has been furnishing cars to bootleggers.

Inspector Timothy Sheehan of Boston, who went to Vermont a year ago to arrest four automobile thieves, said he had not heard of "Slaybo," but might know him by some other name.

A youth Inspector Sheehan believes may be involved is Nicholas George Ellis of Cambridge, for whom a warrant is waiting here.

Police to War on Bird Invaders

Armed with shot guns, Winchester police will wage another war against starlings, which have caused sleepless nights and damage to property in the westerly part of town for several weeks. In addition, the police also plan to drive out large flocks of grackles which have also invaded that section.

Freed Lifer Throws Self Into Job to Forget His Past

His heart and mind filled with new hope and determination for the future James Steenburgh, until yesterday a lifer in State Prison, [illegible] a permanent job.

Steenburgh seemed like a new man today as he kissed his wife and daughter at the [illegible] door and started for [illegible] for him through the efforts of the Medford Unemployment and Relief Committee, in co-operation with the Boston Evening American.

He ate a hearty meal of bacon, eggs, toast and coffee, prepared for him by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Steenburgh, and served by his little daughter, Florence.

The meal over, James Steenburgh turned to an Evening American Reporter and said

"Well, young man, where is this job. I am ready to go to it."

Steenburgh reiterated today his appreciation of what the Boston Evening American and its readers had done for him in his efforts to obtain a new chance.

EAGER FOR WORK

"I want to say again I shall never forget what this paper and its readers have done for me. I shall remember all of those who have helped me until my dying day

I want to say to Governor Ely and the good men of his council that I appreciate what they did to make my freedom, today, possible and I am determined to prove to these men that I am capable of doing what is right until the Almighty calls me from this life."

There was no happier girl in the world last night than Florence Steenburgh, the 12-year-old daughter of the aged man, when her father arrived.

Half jumping and half running down the dozen steps that lead from the second-floor apartment in Tainter st., Medford, Florence reached the bottom step of her home just as her daddy had opened the door with his key.

THANKS AMERICAN

"Daddy, Daddy," she cried, "I am so glad to see you again. And mother is so happy."

Steenburgh threw his arms around the little girl, but he could not speak. Tears came to his eyes as he held tight to his girl and began ascending the stairs to the front room of his home.

At the top of the landing Mrs. Steenburgh reached out and embraced her husband. Mrs. Steenburgh's first act was to assure her husband that she bore no ill will toward him for having failed to reveal his past before he asked her to marry him 18 years ago.

"Jim," she said. "I don't want you ever to think of the past. That [illegible] gone. We are going to start life all over again [illegible] minute and I know that we are going to be happy. [illegible] about, [illegible] have [illegible] week, but now that you are back with me and Florence makes me forget everything but the future. I am so happy you are here tonight."

Turning to the Evening American representative she said

"I want to thank the editor of the Boston Evening American for the efforts that your paper have made in my behalf.

"My daughter and I shall never forget the paper's kindness."

Busy Bees Chase Dedham Pupils Back to School

Fear of being stung—not by the ol' hickory stick, but, by bees—accounted for the rather hurried arrival of 40 pupils of the Capen School, Dedham, after noon recess today.

The children were walking along McDonald st., when a swarm of bees, said to have been 2000 strong, flew over their heads.

Michael Barrett, "Bee King" of Hyde Park, is hot on the trail of the bees.

Says Foreign Trade Will Give Jobs

Former Representative [illegible] F. Moran of East Boston opened his outdoor speaking cmaapign for Congress with rallies in Central sq., East Boston and in Green Hall.

Mr Moran said the hope for work and jobs lies in private employment for the people of the district by increased [illegible] with European markets for our surplus only by lower tariff and [illegible] trade agreements [illegible] of cooperation with the Allied nations of Europe.

He favors the repeal of the [illegible] amendment and the [illegible] of the Volstead Act.

JURY TO PASS ON FOWLER CASE

Charges of larceny against G [illegible] Fowler, self-styled consulting engineer, [illegible] after alleged [illegible] several leading [illegible] Boston, were withdrawn [illegible] in municipal court but [illegible] for the grand jury. [illegible] attorney for Fowler, pointed out that Atty. Devereaux B. Barker, from whom Fowler had obtained a $365 "temporary loan," had not signed the larceny complaint and there was no evidence of any attempt to commit larceny. He requested Fowler's release.

Judge Cohen denied the request and said there was evidence to warrant the belief that other crimes had been committed by the defendant.

Fowler was arrested by Inspector George Augusta and Special Officer Joseph Decker on Barker's complaint. According to the police Fowler had visited several law firms for advice in drawing up engineering contracts and later approached each with requests for temporary loans.

School Heads Move to Reduce Costs

To cut school costs a sub-committee of the Medford school board, consisting of Frederick T. McDermott, Mrs Etta Austin McDonald and Daniel M Daley, has been appointed. This committee will cooperate with Dr. J. Stevens Kadesch superintendent.

DADDY OF SIX MISSING

Here is a wife and six children who are waiting for the return of husband and dad. The father, Louis Gusmini, 40, has been missing since May 21. The family includes Antoinette, 5; Rose, 13; Madeline, 10 months; Mrs. Celeste Gusmini; Louise, 12; Anita, 9, and Mary 10 years. (Staff Photo.)

MRS. MOONEY TO DEFEND SON IN SPEECH HERE

Mother of Lifer Scorns Advice of Doctors in Continuing Battle to Free Him

"I am standing the strain very well. I have to. A mother has no time to be sick when her son's happiness is at stake."

Mrs. Mary Mooney was speaking in her Hotel Bellevue room today. She is the 84-year-old mother of Tom Mooney, a prisoner in San Quentin, Cal., whose life sentence [illegible] years ago has occasioned the greatest protest in behalf of a prisoner in the history of this country

Mrs. Mooney will speak in defence of her son, at Franklin Union Hall tonight. Disregarding the advice of doctors she has started a tour as part of her long campaign to free her son.

Mrs. Mooney told of her son's [illegible]

SURE OF INNOCENCE.

"As soon as I heard of his arrest, I knew he was innocent," said Mrs. Mooney. "Why, Tom couldn't have done a thing like that. I knew him better than most mothers know their sons. He had no secrets from me.

"We are getting wonderful receptions everywhere from the working classes. And they are the ones who will free my boy, if he is to be freed.

"I went to Washington to see the President," continued Mrs. Mooney, "but he sent word that he was too busy to see me. Too busy to see a mother who came all the way from California to ask him to free her boy!"

The tour may take Mrs Mooney to Europe, she revealed today.

BATTLES TO END

"I am old and tired, but while Tom is in jail there is nothing in my mind except his freedom. I wish he were free and we two could settle down somewhere and just be quiet as we used to be.

"I saw Tom last May and he seemed in good spirits but it is hard for him—harder than it is for me. But he still thinks of others. Look at this letter."

BOY, 18, HELD AS RUM MAKER

Despite is story that he was only an innocent bystander, a Revere youth was one of three defendants held for the Federal grand jury today as a result of a dry raid in Ipswich Aug. 22.

Commissioner Jenney told Harry Hudlin, 18, of Sagamore st., Revere, he would have liked to deal leniently with him because of his youth, but was forced to old him in $500. He was charged with manufacturing and possessing liquor.

Harry Hosman of Sumner st., Revere, and Meyer Becker of Wales st. Dorchester, were held in $2500 each.

Robert Nathanson of Agawam st., Revere, failed to appear and was defaulted.

All four were arrested when agents raided a barn and claimed to have seized a 1000-gallon still and 40 gallons of alcohol.

DR. FRENCH TO PLEAD INSANITY

Insanity, it is understood will be the defense of Dr. Towneley T. French in the slaying of his wife to prevent her starving to death, although no request has yet been made to the State Department of Mental Diseases for his mental examination.

Dr French is in Charles st. jail awaiting a hearing on September 15, or action by the grand jury in the murder, which he detailed calmly to police in an amazing recital.

According to Dr. Winfred Overholser, assistant commissioner of mental diseases, if Dr. French is indicted, the department would automatically step in and make an examination of him. The lower court, however, can commit him to Psychopathic Hospital for observation.

There is a possibility that the doctor may be found insane before he is brought to trial and will, therefore, be committed to an institution

Mr. and Mrs. Hedley V. Alward, of West Stoughton, parents of the slain woman, last night declared that Dr. French's claim he had killed his wife to save her from starvation was untrue. They said they had always been ready to help the couple and that the doctor was aware of this.

Bacon Backs State Workers' Pay Slash

Gaspar G. Bacon, Senate president and candidate for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor, stands firmly in favor of a 10 per cent cut in the salaries of State employes.

He gives his views on this in answer to a questionnaire sent him by the Massachusetts League of Women Voters.

MOONEY'S MOTHER PLEADS

Mrs. Mary Mooney, 84, mother of Tom Mooney, will speak here tonight in her nation-wide tour to free her son, serving a life sentence in San Quentin. She is shown at Bellevue Hotel after being presented a bouquet on arrival at North Station.

Inside Jobs on Selves and School Cost Painters Pay

Because they drank beer on the job and painted the inside instead of the outside of the Michelangelo School in the North End, two painters had to be content today with a court ruling which gave them only half a week's pay.

The painters, Joseph Abrams of Mattapan and Albert Rigos of Quincy, complained that their boss, Martin Bean, master painter, had not paid them their wages.

Bean told the court he hired the pair to paint the outside of the school but the painters, he charged, drank too freely of home brew in a neighboring speakeasy and painted the inside of the building instead.

Judge A. K. Cohen ordered the painters to divide the $50 which Bean had placed as a bond [illegible] the Department of Labor and Industries. Bean will paint the [illegible] of the school himself.

Lady Bird Lures Her Vagabond Lover Back

There being tricks in all trades, including that of a vagabond lover, Mrs. Gertrude A. Liddell's love birds were reunited in Newton Center today, and Newton police breathed a sigh of relief.

Yesterday the gentleman love bird escaped from the cage at 31 Stearns ave., Newton Center, and Mrs. Liddell asked aid of the police in finding the wife deserter

Today she thought she heard the vagabond lover about the grounds Believing the wandering one might be lured back, Mrs. Liddell placed the cage with the lady bird out on the lawn—and, sure enough, the deserter came back.

Mrs. Liddell pounced upon the vagabond and placed him back in the cage.

JOHN F.'S SON IS TO HEAD POST

Thomas A. Fitzgerald, son of former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald was today elected commander of the Crosscup-Pishon Post of the American Legion for the coming year to succeed Edward C Edwards.

The election was held at the Hotel Bradford and was attended by nearly 100 members

Edwards read the report of his year in office, enumerating the services performed by the post. Several thousand dollars were raised for the benefit of needy veterans and their families during his administration, and over 4000 were provided with Christmas baskets.

Other officers elected were, Alexander Kennedy, Leonard H Nason, and August Hirschbaum vice-commanders, Wm. J. Newman, adjutant, Lindly A. Bond, finance officer, Arthur C. Havlin, chaplain, and Herbert J. Tabor, historian.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

WOMAN REPAID IN SWINDLE

Two "dapper seminarians," charged with larceny of $480 from a Roxbury woman, were freed in Roxbury court today after one made restitution of $240 and the other arranged to pay a like amount in instalments

The two, Francis H. Bishop of Lakeview ave., Waltham, and Joseph F. Ochs of Dwight st., Quincy, admitted findings of guilty before Judge Albert Hayden

Both men represented themselves as salesmen of religious magazines to Mrs. Rosina Mosel of Highland st., Roxbury, and induced her to draw the money from a bank to furnish articles for a church in China, police charged

Bishop turned over $240 to Mrs. Mosel in court today

Ochs paid $[illegible] and agreed to pay $5 a week until $240 was paid. Both cases were then ordered filed, that of Ochs on condition that he pay as he promised

MEETING LOVELY LEONORA KIMBALL AT THE Shearer-Holton wedding reminded us that she is one of the debutantes of this season . . .

* * *

FRANCES PROCTOR

She told us her debut will take the form of a luncheon at the Algonquin Club on Wednesday, the 19th of October . . . what could be more delightful than a fall luncheon party . . . "

* * *

A bevy of sister debs will attend, among them Jane Bogardus, Rose Emerson, Frances Poinier of Winchester, and Karolyn Samson . . .

* * *

Leonora . . . and how the name becomes her . . . is a tall, willowy blonde with skin as fair as a creamy rose . . we predict a long stage line for Leonora this season . . .

* * *

We had a pleasant chat with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown at the wedding, parents of the petite Kay Brown, who was one of the bright spots in the social firmament two years ago and Jane, whose debut was last year. They have both applied themselves to a business career since they came out and are among those who can work and play with equal success . . .

* * *

Luncheon Planned for Frances Proctor

DEBUTANTE DATES ARE COMING IN RAPIDLY NOW . . . several weddings and parties take place on Saturday . . . we will be wending our way to Wianno to attend the Dana-Wells marriage in that far-off place . . . but it means a jolly week-end and maybe an adventure . . .

* * *

The Charles A. Proctors are giving a luncheon at Blythswood, their summer home on Little's Point, Swampscott, on Friday, September 16, in honor of their debutante daughter, Frances . . . whose sister, Barbara, was a bridesmaid at the Shearer-Holton wedding . . . and they are both very attractive, thoroughbred looking girls . . .

* * *

The luncheon will be a preliminary affair to her formal presentation party on October 26, which will take the form of a dance at the Proctors' town house at 297 Commonwealth ave. . . .

* * *

Tall and blonde, Frances and Barbara are very popular and we know the debutante will have a lovely time this winter . . .

* * *

Tea at Concord

ANOTHER PARTY ANNOUNCED for September 23 is the tea to be held at the Concord Country Club for Miss Ruth Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brooks of that historic town . .

* * *

MISS BROOKS ATTENDED Concord Academy and studied in Rome and Paris . . .

* * *

TWO VERY INTERESTING debutantes . . . the family has always held the social as well as the political spotlight . . . and naturally it reflects upon the young daughters of the house of Bird . . . is Edith Bird Bass, daughter of former Governor of New Hampshire and Mrs. Bass, who will be the honor guest with her cousin, Mary Reynolds Bird, daughter of Mrs. Francis W. Bird and the late Mr. Bird at a dinner dance at Endeen, the Walpole estate of Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, grandmother of the two maidens, on Friday evening, September 30.

* * *

Plans Trip

MISS BASS IS SPENDING the fall with Mrs. Bird and will later join her mother in Arizona. Miss Bird intends to study at Radcliffe this year. Many parties will be given in their honor it is very good news to hear of a bingo on that shore!

* * *

SATURDAY NIGHT OF THIS week Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton is giving a large dance for her sub-debutante granddaughters, the McKean children . . . and we hear that simply everyone on the North Shore has been invited . . .

* * *

HAVE YOU SEEN THAT fascinating Mrs. Phillip Rinelander, who two months ago was Virginia Roberts of Beacon Hill, since her return from the wedding trip? The Rinelanders have taken an apartment on Charles st. and are "At home."

* * *

Mrs. Orcutt

GLIMPSED Mrs. William Dana Orcutt at "The Green Pastures" last evening . . . looking well in her summer tan . . . very interesting couple the Orcutts and always seen where the intelligentsia congregate . . .

* * *

MRS. WILLIAM CODMAN was present near us in the balcony with her young nephew . . . her paisley coat was most attractive . . .

* * *

Sail Next Week

MRS. ROBERT LIVERMORE was chatting vehemently with a group in the lobby . . . very smart in her fall grey suit . . .

* * *

DODO DEAN IS SAILING next week with Alma and Mary Bird, and Mrs. Paul for a few months abroad . . . they will not return until the latter part of January and will take in each resort in season . . . skiing in the Swiss Alps; Italy when it is gayest, the Riviera and Monte Carlo . . . what luck?

LATEST EVENING GOWNS

Black and White Is Formal Smartness

By DOROTHY ROE

New York, Sept. 8 (US)—It's as simple as black on white—the trail to formal smartness.

For the newest evening costumes are being shown in black and white contrast.

They tried to put white out of the picture for evening, earlier in the season. But we staunch Americans would hear of no such thing. We like our white, we do, and we won't be denied

So some of our snootier shops are showing stunning black and white evening costumes, of which here are a few samples

A fitted evening gown of rough white crepe has a little jacket trimmed with a yoke of black Persian lamb, which wraps close around the throat and crops in two points to the waistline.

A dance dress of white rough satin—a fabric which is very new, by the way—has a narrow belt of black sequins, and a little short-sleeved jacket of black net, bordered with black sequins.

Another striking costume is a frock with the skirt of black rough crepe, the brief bodice of white, the brief sleeves being made of white silk fringe.

And then there's a most sumptuous costume of white rough satin, the gown cut on empire lines and fitted, the jacket of the same material trimmed with huge wheels of silver fox at the armholes. The jacket ties in a high neckline and has long sleeves.

Black velvet capes are being worn with white evening dresses.

Black jet jewelry has been seen as an accent for white formal costumes.

Tax Jump at Next Session Is Feared

Washington, Sept. 8—Senator James E. Watson, Indiana, Republican floor leader, said here it might be necessary to increase taxes at the next session of Congress if the billion dollar revenue bill passed by the last Congress proves inadequate as a revenue raiser

Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee recently made the same prediction.

MISS LUCY STURGIS CODMAN PLANS WEDDING ON NORTH SHORE

October Bridal in Manchester Is Planned

The announcement of plans for the wedding of Miss Lucy Sturgis Codman, whose engagement was given out some time ago, will interest Boston people

The bride-to-be has selected Oct. 15 for the ceremony, which will take place in Emmanuel Church, Manchester-by-the-Sea. She is to become the bride of Mr. Guy Holden Norris, son of Mrs. Charles S. Norris and the late Mr. Norris of Brookline.

At Magnolia

Miss Codman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Codman of Lime st., Boston, is at present following a business career in Magnolia where she has been throughout the summer season, and is expected home in the near future to complete the preparations for her wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sturgis Codman are giving a reception after the ceremony, at their estate on Smith's Point, Manchester.

Another October wedding has just been announced, that of Miss Catherine Cragin Bartow, the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Howard Key Bartow, of 17 Elm st., Quincy, and Black Horse Lane, Cohasset.

Cohasset Event

She will exchange marriage vows, with Mr. James Dean Jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Dean, of 61 Walnut pl., Brookline, and Sandy Cove, Cohasset. The ceremony is to take place in St. Stephen's Church, Cohasset, about the middle of the month. The date has not definitely been settled and the reception will be held at the Cohasset estate of the prospective bride's parents.

Miss Bartow attended Miss May's school and the Knox school. She studied abroad at Grenoble for the period of one year, and is also a graduate of Miss Sacker's School of Design.

Her fiance studied at St. George's school and was a member of the 1932 class at Harvard College. He is a member of Iroquois Club and also of the Harvard Club of Boston, and is connected with the firm of Burr, Gannett, and Co.

JUNIOR LEAGUE OFFICERS RETURN

MISS ELIZABETH SOULE

MISS RACHEL WARNER, assistant vice-president of the Junior League, and Miss Elizabeth Soule, the league's treasurer, were among the officers on hand yesterday when the league's house at Zero Marlborough st. was reopened. Miss Warner spent her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roger S. Warner, at Ipswich, while Miss Soule summered, as usual, at Duxbury with her mother, Mrs. Horace Soule. (Staff Photos.)

Mason Estate Is Scene of Benefit

The chief attraction along the North Shore today is the presentation of "Little Women" by the members of the Clare Tree Major Children's Theater from New York. The play is being staged at 3 p. m. at the summer estate, Edgecoombe of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Mason, on Paine ave., Pride's Crossing, which has been opened for the event.

Sub-Debs Usher

The proceeds are to be devoted to the work of the Beverly Farms Music School, which is badly in need of assistance. This is an undertaking in which many of the society residents are interested. Mrs. George P. Denny, of Smith's Point, Manchester, is in charge of the sale of tickets.

The play is to be given on the grounds of the estate if weather permit; should rain or threatening weather occur arrangements have been made to give the performance in St. John's Parish Hall, Hale st., Beverly Farms.

A group of well known sub-debutanes are assisting as ushers. They include Miss Vernon Ladd, Miss Gabriella Ladd, Miss Ruth Weyburn, Miss Elsie Sortwell, Miss Anna Sortwell and Miss Polly Defriez.

Among Sponsors

Many important matrons are sponsornig the event, including Mrs. William H. Moore, Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot, Mrs. Frederic R. Galacar, Mrs. Augustus P. Loring, Jr., Mrs. Georoge P. Loring, Miss Louie Standwood, Miss Grace M. Edwards and Miss Anne Sherwin.

Walsh-Foley Bridal One of Prettiest

One of the season's prettiest weddings was solemnized at the Immaculate Conception church Monday, at a nuptial mass, when Rev J. J. Mulligan joined in marriage Miss Isabel Veronica Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, 51 West st., and Lawrence Martin Foley, son of Mrs. Maude Foley, 121 West st., Wilmington.

The bride is a graduate of the Immaculate Conception school and for some years held a very prominent position with Jordan Marsh Co.

With Fashionables at Gay Society Resorts

MRS. MAYNARD LADD HAS recently been made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor for her work as a sculptor. Mrs. Ladd is a well known artist and did some notable work in France during the late war. She recently exhibited at the French school in the Farnese Palace, Rome. She is at present spending the summer at Arden, her country estate at Beverly Farms. A beautiful example of her work is now being installed in the new fountain at the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph C. Grew, Laurel Ledge, which was formerly set up in their old home. The Grews are having a rock garden set up and a delightful pool at the back of the house; they plan to remain on the Shore till late in the season

MR. AND MRS. RUSSELL S. CODMAN recently entertained Gen. Preston Brown, who had flown up from Panama to Maine, and stopped off on his way north at Smith's Point, which is to be the scene of the reception for Miss Sturgis Codman, after her wedding Oct. 15

MISSES ANNE AND BETTY CHILTON, the daughters of Sir Henry Chilton, British ambassador to Chile, and Lady Chilton, are staying this week with Mr. and Mrs. John L. Hall, of Sunny Waters, Smith's Point, Manchester. The young ladies have come over from Grand Rapids, Mich., where their grandfather has an estate. His daughter, Lady Chilton, is with him just now. She and her husband were frequent visitors to the North Shore when Sir Henry was attached to the British embassy group

MR. AND MRS. MALCOLM H. EATON are returning to their home in Brookline tomorrow from their summer estate known as The Mooring, at Marblehead Neck. They bring their family with them. Mr. Lawrence V. Eaton will be resuming his studies at Harvard shortly, and Miss Barbara, his sister, continues at Miss May's school.

AMONG THOSE WHO HAVE recently arrived on the North Shore from vacations abroad are Mr. and Mrs. Edmund H. Talbot, who went over to explore England by motor. They are now back at their summer estate, 'The Spruces,' on Ocean ave., Marblehead Neck. They expect to remain there until mid-October.

Concord Will Hold Fete Day

Concord, the first Massachusetts settlement back of the seacoast, will celebrate its 297th birthday next Monday. The celebration which has been customary for several years will consist of a public and private display of flags and a reception and tea at the Concord Antiquarian Society.

Mrs. Gaylord Church Cummin, curator of the society, will be in charge of the affair and Allen French, the society's president, will be on hand with other officers of the society.

Concord was incorporated on September 12, 1635, 15 years after the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth. A large celebration of the town's 300th anniversary is planned for 1935.

Crosscup-Pishon Veterans to Elect

The Crosscup-Pishon Post, American Legion, will hold its annual election at the luncheon today in the new Roof Garden restaurant at the Hotel Bradford.

Esther McDonald

Mary Malley, Esther McDonald, Billy Dugal and Mary Rice will provide entertainment. The nominating committee has recommended Thomas A. Fitzgerald as new commander.

Lexington Couple Wed 62 Years Ago

Gifts and congratulations of their many friends marked the celebration today of the 62d wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Nash of Berwick rd., Lexington. They were married in Milford on Sept. 8, 1870.

Red Takes Lead in Fall Styles

New York, Sept. 8 (US)—Fashionable women are going into the red this fall, according to Miss Kathleen Howard, fashion editor of Harper's Bazaar, who reported on the Paris openings at the first session of the magazine's elaborate fashion conference and exhibition, attended by retail buyers from all over the country.

Every known shade of red is seen in the new fall fashions, says Miss Howard, from the brilliant scarlet of a huntsman's jacket to the new deep wine tone known prosaically as red cabbage red.

Waistlines are at four fashionable stages. In other words, wear them wherever you please, and you can't go wrong. The normal waistline is in high favor, the medieval hipline effect is new for formal evening gowns, the waistline that dips in the back is hailed with delight, and the empire effect, higher than ever, is the pet of many of the couturiers.

Nudists are out of luck this year, for nakedness is not in style.

Evening dresses have covered shoulders and higher decolletages, at least in front.

Formal gowns also are slinking and slim.

As Miss Howard remarks—it's going to be a problem this fall when someone says'

"Won't you sit down?"

Royal Family Sees Scottish Clans' Fete

Braemar, Aberdeenshire, Sept. 8 (AP) King George, Queen Mary and the Duke and Duchess of York were welcomed here today in a drizzle under dreary skies by thousands of holiday-making kilted Highlanders and many Lowlanders and American and English visitors at the annual Royal Braemar games.

The Clans of Duff, Farquharson and Balmoral marched past the royal enclosure, led by their pipers.

Books—And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

H. L. Mencken has reported our political conventions for many years, both Republican and Democratic, and he has always done it brilliantly. The hullabaloo and the fuss disgust his orderly mind

Every voter should read his description of the last convention in Chicago, which he calls "Making a President," and which Alfred Knopf issues in a small but important volume

* * *

Concern of All

"The selection of a President is obviously the concern of every American, and two things about it deserve to be noted," says Mr. Mencken. "One is that it is done by professional politicians, and by professional politicians exclusively, and that at least nine-tenths of them can be bought, if not with downright money, then at all events with jobs.

"The other is that it is a purely extra-legal proceeding—that there is no mention of the process in the Constitution and that even the laws take little notice of it.

"This last is very curious. We live in the most law-ridden country on earth, and yet we manage to select our candidates for its highest office in a wholly informal manner, without the slightest aid from courts and policemen. A national convention is free to change its rules as it pleases.

"It may expel a delegate at will and seat another. It may increase or diminish the representation of a State. It may seat delegates, if it chooses, from Turkestan or the moon. To be sure, certain States have passed laws regulating the election of delegates, but the number to be elected [illegible] by agencies quite outside those States."

* * *

One Blushes

Mr. Mencken, who married late in life, tells us that if he had a son he should take him to both national conventions and let him see how his country is governed, and by what sort of men and women.

We do not get a very pretty picture of America in these satirical pages. One blushes for one's country many times in the course of following the author about the convention hall. The so-called leaders, he says, if there is no caucus in progress, play poker in their headquarters, or expose themselves to the public veneration in the hotel lobbies. There was one eminent United States Senator, once a serious contender for the Presidency, who used to have his secretary circulate in the crowd, to point him out and whisper his great deeds. Others have themselves paged. Now and then a wag hires a bellboy to page Abraham Lincoln or Pontius Pilate!

Of any platform that is written and agreed upon one thing may be predicted: that it will please nobody. And of the candidate only one thing also: that he will be suspected by all

Since prohibition we get the sad and scandalous spectacle of dry delegates rushing for the nearest speakeasy to drown their sorrows on hot summer days. San Francisco was determined to quench the thirst of these wretched creatures, but in other cities, like Cleveland, the bars were closed, and there was much moaning and gnashing of teeth, to say nothing of the wagging of dry tongues. All of which would be most amusing if it were not so serious.

* * *

Wets Astonished

Mr. Mencken holds that the victory of the wets at the Democratic National Convention was so colossal that it left the victors almost as upset as the vanquished. They were like an army that had made an attack, found the enemy's trenches deserted, and then gone galloping for miles into his country. All of the wet leaders on the ground were so astonished that they were almost speechless.

* * *

Even if Roosevelt loses, prohibition will still be dead. All the imponderables now run against it. The legend of its invincibility has blown up. The big cities were against it from the start, but until six months ago it seemed to be invulnerable in the smaller towns and villages. But now even the hicks have turned upon it, and begin to demand raucously that it be shoveled away.

But the mopping-up process will not be as easy as the more romantic wets seem to think, for the prohibitionists are tough babies and will give the mortician more than one stiff wallop before he gets them underground. It is even likely that some small successes are still ahead of them. They know how to play one party against another, and have already done it very successfully in the Senate.

They will take a deep breath if Roosevelt loses to Hoover and do some loud hollering. But all the same they are licked, and the wiser heads among them are well aware of it. If they really run a ticket of their own they will return straightway to their old role of harmless cranks.

Thrilling Picture

Mr. Mencken gives a truly thrilling picture of the difficulties under which a political reporter works. The confusion around him is endless, and often he is forced to be on the job 16 hours at a stretch. And as the conventions are always held in the hottest weather, many a writer wilts under the strain and yearns for nothing so much as a hot bath and a [illegible], when his work is finally finished.

This is a disheartening picture of America and its politicians; but it is a true picture none the less. We are a curious breed, and that we come through as well as we do is one of the things we find it hard to understand. As Mr. Mencken cries out at the end

Mothers Should Enthuse Over Marriage, Not Prejudice Girls Against It

WHY MUST so many mothers try to blight the romances of their children with their own depression psychology of marriage?

When a girl [illegible] and wants to marry, it seems to us that she is entitled to her mother's joyous and enthusiastic encouragement. Does she get it? Too often she does NOT!

May Christie remarked the other day that she'd like to write a column on "Mayfair's Meddling Mothers." She declared:

"I know of many instances where mothers of Park ave., New York, have done everything possible to wreck their daughters' happiness. Young people fall in love. And naturally they want to marry. When the boy is well educated, ambitious, healthy, honest, of a nice family, with reasonable prospects and deeply attached to the girl, I think it foolish of mothers to interfere."

A COMMON REASON

The [illegible] feudalism about married life—is discernible at the other end of the social scale. Magistrate Goldstein, discussing parental pleas in the Women's Court in New York [illegible] wayward daughters [illegible]

"Sometimes," he elaborated, "they object to a certain boy friend of the little girls and often their objections are sound. But on the other hand there have been cases where the girl, often very mature at 16 or 17, is very genuinely in love with the man in question, and if nothing is found against him following an investigation we urge the parents to permit the girl to get married."

Why [illegible] need [illegible] ing? Why [illegible] the mother [illegible] feel that love and marriage are a daughter's happiest, most natural destiny?

One of the commonest reasons why mothers do not feel so is because they themselves have failed [illegible]. We know of one divorced woman who deliberately sought to poison the minds of her girls against all marriage and all men.

"You should profit by my experience," she warned dourly.

Yet perhaps the happiest [illegible] which we [illegible] had a chance to observe at [illegible] range was made by a daughter of parents [illegible]. If the mother [illegible] heart [illegible] have begun.

[illegible] to us a joke for a divorced w[illegible] about bringing up children because she'd buried te[illegible]

INTELLIGENT MOTHER

The intelligent mother of today [illegible] her daughter that marriage is a bed of [illegible] fool-proof any more than [illegible] babies are to be found in cabbage patches. There's no point in kidding our[illegible]

"Marry on a basis of love and intelligence and you have an opportunity to achieve the richest relationship in the world," we'd say to a daughter. "You'll need to work for your happiness, of course. Being human, there will be times when you fumble it, doubt it, wonder if you've lost it altogether.

"But such bad moments pass. Remains a lifetime of the shared passion, comradeship, tenderness, which happy marriage can be. In the great phrase of the great Mississippi River man, 'MAKE IT SO.'"

Jobless Boy Hesitates to Ask Dad

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have known a girl for a year and I'm very fond of her. I know she loves me, too. My parents know we go round together but not her parents. They are very strict and I haven't met them yet. My girl wants me to come to her house and meet her folks, but as I am not working I feel embarrassed about asking for their daughter's hand. We don't expect to get married for at least two years. As I've no job I've very little money to spend, so under the circumstances I hesitate to [illegible] her parents. I would like to [illegible] J. B. V.

Dear J. B. V.: [illegible] parents you'd have to marry their daughter [illegible] get a job. Parents [illegible] welcome a job [illegible]. But there is no reason why you shouldn't call at their home and meet them especially as you and your sweetheart do not expect to marry for a couple of years yet. Good luck to you in getting that job. Leave no stone unturned.

An Unforgivable Thing

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been married four months. I loved my husband then but I have discovered he has done an unforgivable thing which has made me lose my love as well as my respect for him.

About two weeks ago I met a very nice young man for whom I am sure I could care a great deal. He knows I am married, thinks I got a bad break, but never talks or acts toward me as if I were single. I don't like the idea of a divorce, though I have got plenty of grounds. MARY.

Dear Mary: If you should get a divorce after only four months of married life and begin to receive the attentions of another man before the legal separation was final I'm afraid the [illegible] would seem too fast and [illegible] for you to [illegible]. If your husband's offense was serious enough to warrant a divorce and if you have lost love and respect for him, get the outward observance of divorce before you begin to think about the nice young man. "Off with the old love before you're on with the new," may be a platitude but it is a good one.

Is Jealous and Drinks

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm in love with a girl of 17 years of age. At times we get along wonderfully, but I am extremely jealous, and if anyone looks at her I get so mad I want to kill him. We had a terrible argument the other night on account of my drinking and we haven't spoken for over a week. [illegible] G. M.

[illegible] Knowledge of a fault [illegible] step toward improvement. You know you drink and you want to kill anyone who looks at your girl. Check up on these two faults—very grave ones—then go back and see if she'll forgive you. But 17 is pretty young, in my opinion, for a girl to have serious affairs.

Correct Manners

Obligations of the Groom

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am the groom-to-be. Will you please give me a helping hand and solve some of my problems?

1. What are my obligations as far as the details of the wedding are concerned?

2. Do I give gifts to my attendants? What do you suggest?

3. Shall I invite the bride's brother, of whom I am very fond, to be one of our ushers?

Thank You.

1. These are your obligations: The engagement ring, the wedding ring; a wedding present to your bride, the bride's bouquet, a bouquet to the bride's mother and a bouquet to your mother, the marriage license, the fee to the clergyman, the gift to your best man and to each of the ushers besides their ties [illegible] and boutonnieres, the car in which you and your best man come to the ceremony, and the expense of the wedding trip.

2. Yes, you give gifts to your attendants. I suggest, for instance, a cigarette case, watch charm, gold key ring, single pearl stud, wallet, pocket watch or wrist watch; gold or silver fountain pen, cuff links, cigarette lighter, long silver key chain, [illegible] case.

3. Yes, [illegible] is the gracious thing to do and as a matter of fact the thing that will be expected that you will do.

Funeral Custom

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A discussion has arisen as to whether or not men relatives of the deceased ought to wear their hats in church at the funeral service? A says they should remove their hats while in church and also at the grave. B says they should keep them on all during the church service and also at the grave. A. and B.

Unless the denomination to which the deceased belongs makes this the custom, the men do not wear hats in church at the funeral service, and they remove their hats at the grave, out of respect to the deceased and to the great fact of Death.

Crackers of Great Use in Menu

By MARTHA LEE

WHAT OH WHAT would we moderns do if we couldn't reach up and take from the pantry shelf a package of ready-baked crackers at the moment they're needed on our tables. It's just one of those conveniences which we take for granted, but which would have been as manna falling from heaven to our grandmothers.

Happily there are now so many varieties of crackers on the market that there is almost no limit to the kinds we may choose to keep on hand.

If breakfast happens to be the problem of the moment, [illegible] rusk, that light, porus, delicately flavored toast, which is baked in rounds somewhat like the halves of a split-open bun.

One smart way to use rusk for breakfast or as a luncheon entree for that matter, is to wrap a strip of bacon arouund each rusk, collar like, securing it with toothpicks, and break an egg within the bacon collar. Bake in a hot oven until the egg is set and the bacon browned, and you have a delectable dish. The rusk will be more moist if it is first sprinkled with a little water.

For salads the choice may run to saltinas, or zippy cheese wafers or even straight pretzel sticks. Ginger wafers go delightfully with fruit or frozen salads.

Dessert may consist of packaged cookies served alone. Chocolate wafers are popular for this use—or such cookies as short breads may be used as dessert accompaniments.

Here's a delicious use for the whole and economical graham cracker.

Ace Icebox Pudding

1½ cups applesauce
18 graham crackers
Whipped cream.

Into applesauce fold crumbled graham crackers. Pour into pudding dish and place in refrigerator to chill for 2 or three hours. Serve with whipped cream. Six portions. Preparation 5 minutes.

Daily True Story

The Prince's Heirloom

IF URSULA MEREDITH hadn't been as honest as her deep blue eyes proclaimed her to be, the chances are that Prince Illienski would be still traveling back and forth across the Atlantic laughing at his own cleverness.

It happened this way: Miss Meredith had, by dint of saving, managed to put enough away out of her salary as school teacher in the town of Milton to contract for one of those tourists trips to Europe.

Most of the time she had spent in France and she started home delighted with what she had seen and eager to go again. Moreover she had made several good friends in Paris and when she got settled on the liner homeward bound she was agreeably surprised to meet one of them again.

He was Prince Serge Illienski, driven out of Russia by the Bolshevist regime and on his way to pay a visit to the United States.

DEVOTED COMPANION

On the last night out he led her into a secluded nook and asked her something.

"You have no idea," he said in English that carried just enough of an accent to make it sound musical, "how much I have enjoyed knowing you—I don't know where I shall be obliged to go so I think I shall probably not see you again for a long time. But there is one thing I would like you to do for me—" and here he laid a hand over hers—"will you?"

"Why, of course I will," said Ursula.

"That's magnificent — you American girls are such good comrades—this is what I ask—want to present to you a necklace that has come down in my family for many generations—it is not worth much but still it has associations and I shall like to think of someone wearing it who has been the means of my enjoying so many inspiring hours."

And the Prince pulled from his pocket a small necklace of sapphires and held it in his hand gazing at it in the scattering light.

TEMPTED TO REFUSE

"Oh, if you put it that way," said Ursula, "if you'll really promise to get it if you should ever want it, then I'll accept it and thank you ever so much."

Ursula didn't meet the prince the next morning and she was too busy getting her baggage ready to think much about him.

The inspector was agreeable enough. He asked her if she had had a pleasant trip and then, almost casually, he remarked, "You're sure you've declared everything you have?"

"Well," Ursula laughed, "I haven't declared this because I'm told it isn't worth declaring," and she finished the sapphire necklace out of her handbag.

SLIGHTLY MYSTIFIED

"I believe you and because I believe you, I shall ask you to do something for us—leave this necklace here, I'll give you a receipt and I'll have a man at a certain number in your town. When the Prince calls tell him you've given the necklace to a neighbor to keep and telephone this number. My man will be there in ten minutes—now let's see where do you live in Milton—?"

Two weeks later Ursula's erstwhile friend called. "My dear Miss Meredith," he said, "I have come for my necklace—force of circumstances—"

Ursula interrupted him. "Oh, a neighbor is keeping it for me." And she ran from the room, called the number and returned as a car dashed to the door.

"Hello, Joe," said the man who emerged when he faced the Prince, "how's business?"

The Prince paled. "I understand," said the new arrival, "that you're looking for a sapphire necklace you gave Miss Meredith."

A FLAT DENIAL

"Me?" said the Prince. "No, indeed, I never gave her anything. I met her by accident aboard ship and I called to pay my respects."

"I see," said the other, "so we can't fasten that on you, eh?" Then he stepped closer. "But there's another little affair connected with Madame T—you'd better come along, Joe. I'm afraid we've got you on that one you see, Madame's confessed."

With a scornful glance at the [illegible] Prince [illegible] alias Joe [illegible] alias Lord Carleigh was led out.

The necklace was returned to its rightful owners and Ursula received a check for $5000.

But she never set eyes on the Prince again.

Autumn Styles Economical and Smart

By PARIS BUREAU

PARIS, Sept. 8—There is no better example to illustrate the change that has come over women's clothes within the last few seasons than the first of the autumn suits that Paris is making. They are tangible proofs of the fact that women's clothes, in general, are growing more and more practical, more comfortable and more economical in price, without losing any smartness.

Today's sketches show two entirely different types of suits. Both are done by well-known Paris designers of first rating and both are extremely fashionable costumes. Yet neither makes any great sacrifices to comfort or cost in the making.

The Maggy-Rouff suit, more suited to the younger women, is a novel version of the sweater-and-skirt costume. The sweater, hand-knitted, in horizontal rows of purple, gray and green, has collar, tie, hem and front fastening of tweed—a touch which gives the costume sufficient dignity for even town wear. The tweed skirt is solid gray.

The Lelong suit of more formal character is one which could be worn appropriately by a very young woman or a matron.

Beatrice Burton's New Story

"MARY FAITH"

How a Fascinating Heroine Met Old Problems in a New Way — By the Author of "The Flapper Wife," Etc.

(Copyright, 1932)

"He got to my house about seven," said Mary.

What Has Gone Before

Mary Faith, young and comely fiancee of Kimberley Farrell handsome blond youth, just out of law school, leaves her position as secretary to the wealthy Mark Nesbit to marry "Kim." Mary Faith receives a note from Kim's mother inviting her to dinner. Arriving late, due to Kim's delay, Mary Faith is greeted cooly by Mrs. Farrell. Kim is late and his mother insinuates he has other interests.

Now read on:

CHAPTER 3

"THIS IS the sort of thing you'll have to learn to expect when you're married to Kimberley," she said presently. "Meals spoiled because he's not here to eat them on time. Whole dinners put away untouched sometimes because he doesn't show up at all! But I suppose I shouldn't complain, because it's all my fault. I've made a rod for my own back!"

There was bitterness in her voice and in her face. Bitterness that narrowed her eyes and drew down the corners of her mouth. And yet it was apparent that she had once been very handsome. There was still a kind of beauty in her strong features and the poise of her head with its bright brown hair.

"What time did he get to your house tonight?" she asked suddenly.

"Around seven."

"Did you ask him where he had been until that time?" Kim's mother was lighting the gas ring under the coffee pot now.

"He said he had been delayed at the office."

"Did you see him last Sunday?" Mrs. Ferrell asked next.

"I saw him last Sunday night. He spent the whole evening with me," said Mary Faith, turning to look at her with puzzled eyes. What was Kim's mother getting at anyway, she wondered.

Refuses to Ask

"Well, he was gone all day, Mary Faith. He got up early in the morning and drove the car out of the yard before I was really awake. Why don't you ask him where he was all day and who was with him?—I'm only his mother, of course; but you have a right to know what he does with his time."

Mary Faith shook her head. She had a fine contempt for women who did not trust the men they loved—women like Mrs. Dan Bassett whose husband was shipping clerk at Nesbit's. Dan Bassett never looked twice at any of the girls who worked in the building but Mrs. Bassett gave him no peace. She was always popping in unexpectedly to see what he was doing and she kept the telephone wires hot on the nights when he worked late.

"I'll be no Mrs. Dan Bassett," thought Mary Faith firmly.

"I wouldn't want Kim to think I didn't trust him, Mrs. Farrell," she said. "And that's just what he would think if I started to cross-question him about things like that. I know he wants to marry me, and that's enough for me."

Mrs. Farrell blew out the match she held and tossed it under the stove where there were a dozen or so burnt matches. It flared up and she set her foot on it.

Objects to Marriage

"He hasn't any business wanting to marry you or any other girl just yet!" she said violently. "He owes me a little comfort. Here we are, struggling to get along on what he makes down in that law office—and lo and behold! he waltzes in and says he's going to get married in two weeks! On what, I'd like to know! On what?"

"On his salary," Mary Faith replied, breaking eggs into the sizzling pan. "Sixty dollars a week is plenty of money for three people to live on comfortably. You and I can do every bit of the work around in this flat. We won't even send the laundry out—"

"I don't know why he wants to get married anyway," Kim's mother went on, paying no attention to her. "I'm sure I don't."

"Everybody wants to get married sooner or later, I suppose," Mary Faith spoke as gently as she could.

"You want to, you mean!" Mrs. Farrell turned on her suddenly, her plump face full of color. "Kimberley doesn't want to get married. He knows he isn't making enough money to keep up two homes and he knows I won't be happy when he brings you over to mine. Besides that, he's running around—"

Careless Housekeeping

She stopped talking [illegible] pushed the door open and [illegible] into the kitchen. He had changed his coat for a brown velveteen smoking jacket and a pipe was gripped between his teeth.

"What's all the row about?" he asked mildly. "And how about a little chow for a hungry man instead of all this talk?"

His mother took a pitcher of cream from the top of the icebox and thrust it into Mary Faith's hands.

"Put that on the table. I'll watch the eggs, Mary Faith. And pour the water. The pitcher's on the sideboard."

Mary Faith carried the pitcher into the dining room where a drop light with a yellow glass shade hung over the table. She set it down on a German silver tray that was flanked by a cut-glass vinegar cruet and a bottle of meat sauce.

"People can't call themselves poor who live as comfortably as this," she thought, glancing around the room. "Sixty dollars a week is a lot of money, if it's properly handled."

A German silver pitcher of water stood on the sideboard. When she picked it up she saw that it left a wet white ring on the polished wood. There were other faint white rings near it. No one could call Kim's mother a careful housekeeper, she found herself thinking as she began to fill the water glasses.

Crash and a Scream

Suddenly there was a crash and [illegible] from the kitchen. [illegible] there was a second of [illegible]. And then Kim's voice [illegible].

"Mary Faith! Come here—hurry!"

Somehow Kim's mother had managed to knock the coffee pot off the stove while she was taking the fried eggs from the pan. Streams of pale brown liquid were running down her arms and the front of her gray silk dress when Mary Faith opened the kitchen door.

The coffee pot lay on its side on the floor.

"My arms—oh, my poor arms," she was sobbing hysterically. "Oh, my arms—" She began to moan, rolling her large head from side to side.

Kim was [illegible] her sleeves back from her wrists.

"She's scalded herself," he said "with that red-hot stuff."

"It wasn't red-hot, thank goodness!" Mary Faith broke in. "She had set it on the fire just two minutes ago. It couldn't have been very hot. I was afraid she'd burn herself with the grease out of that pan. That would have been terrible. ... I'll get some baking soda. There's nothing like it for burns."

Pushes Them Away

She flung open the door of the [illegible] cupboard above the sink. When she found the soda and swung around with the little blue box in her hands Mrs. Farrell was trying to push Kim away from her.

Kim refuses to discuss his mother's feelings towards Mary. Why? See tomorrow's installment, and tell all your friends how deeply interesting you find this story. They should be given a chance to follow its absorbing developments.

VALENTINE

An Exciting Story of Modern Love

(Copyright, 1932)

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

MARJORIE BEMIS was married in the Methodist church with the aisles roped off with white ribbons, and "six bridesmaids in pastel colors," of which Val was one.

The usher who was to walk with her was a Dr. Cleary, a dentist friend of the bridegroom. He was vastly impressed with Val when he first saw her. The night of the rehearsal was exciting. He wasn't any Lester ... he was a little short, and inclined to be stout, but he was nice, and he certainly put himself out to please her.

She tried her best to be entertaining.

ANOTHER MISS

"Val, he's got a grand practice and Frankie says he's a swell fellow, even if he isn't so very cute. Be nice to him, he likes you!" Marjorie whispered.

He took her home, seemed to be interested. But the night of the wedding he hardly saw her, he was so absorbed in Edna Montgomery, Marjorie's cousin from San Jose, a plain looking girl with a broad heavily kalsomined face, and thick awkward ankles.

"If you'd just be a little more vivacious, hon!" the bride began.

Val wheeled on her, about to make a sharp retort, but you can't say anything sharp to a girl on her wedding day, and Marjorie meant to be kind.

When Frankie and Marjorie left around midnight amid a shower of rice Val decided to go home, but she couldn't go without saying goodnight to Mr. and Mrs. Bemis.

Mrs. Bemis, gray as a little ghost in her gray silk dress with her gray frizzled hair, and her little gray face with the pale gray eyes, was horrified.

"Val! The fun is just starting! They're just starting to dance."

Val knew. That was why she was leaving. No one to dance with. Her usher, the dentist, was off in a corner with the cousin from San Jose, and everyone else was paired off.

LIVELY ESCORT

"Aunt Julia is expecting me," Val said, "I really must go."

She tried to slip away without any further farewells, but Mrs. Bemis wouldn't hear of it. Someone must see her home.

"One of the boys will take you. Wait, let's see—Where's Dr. Cleary? He's right here somewhere—"

Val bit her lip. "Really, it's just a step. I'd much rather—"

"Papa, YOU go!"

So Mr. Bemis walked the two blocks with her, talking all the way about Marjorie and how a father feels when he loses his only daughter.

"Some day your poor aunt will have to go through it," he said.

Val thought he said it unconvincingly.

Aunt Julia wasn't asleep. She got up, put the old blue eiderdown cape over her shoulders, came out to ask about the reception, to admire Val in her green net dress, and to ask if she'd have a cup of hot chocolate.

Val went to bed, dreamed of Lester. Woke screaming, with Aunt Julia bending over her saying:

"It was the crab, of course! The Bemis' never do anything right. As soon as you said crab pattie, I knew it would be canned. There—there—go to sleep—"

Val let Aunt Julia hold her hand, sit wrapped in her cape until she fell asleep again.

She couldn't assure her that the nightmare wasn't something horribly frightening.

In a way it was. She had dreamed that she was running after Lester ... running, running faster and faster, with a crowd gathering to watch her run and Lester holding another girl's hand, running away.

Winter passed, spring came. Another summer, another winter, another spring.

Val was almost 21. She had a new friend, Janice Fletcher. She met her at evening art school, where she went two evenings a week, for lack of anything better to do. She was sick of stenography, sick of her office, afraid to quit because there wouldn't be anything better anywhere else.

Twice she wrote letters to her mother, who was living in Milwaukee and had something to do with a stage guild, asking to be allowed to come to her. But the letters were never mailed. She tore them up. Since Millie didn't write she wouldn't force herself.

It was funny about Millie. Millie wrote Aunt Julia, but never wrote to her. Sometimes Aunt Julia let her see the letters. They were full of love for herself and not much news.

Millie seemed to be alone. She had never married Jim Atkinson. That was strange.

QUERIES EVADED

Closing her eyes, Val could still see Jim as he was years ago, so straight and hard and thin, his tanned face, his blue coats.

And Millie so lovely, so warm and beautiful and loving.

They belonged together ... why didn't they stay together? Did Jim die?

She asked Aunt Julia. Aunt Julia was always evasive, always tight lipped and shifty-eyed when asked about Millie. Val's feelings were hurt, she hated to ask ... why should she have to ask? Her own mother ... why should Millie write to Aunt Julia and not to her?

She didn't know that Aunt Julia had laid down the law, pointed out that with things as they were the least she could do was stay away and refrain from communicating with Valentine.

Queer how cruel Julia Macfarlane could be, how jealous she was of her rights with Val.

"I have been her real mother, raised her right ever since she was eight. What have you ever done for her? You could have kept her if you wanted to. You were young and strong, you could have worked. You could have come and stayed right with me, and let me keep Val in the daytimes, and you could have had a room with Val in my house. I told you that, but no, you had to go off to Honolulu and disgrace us.

MILLIE WEEPS

"Do you think anyone would look at Valentine if they knew the kind of mother she had? No! Now I've done my best to keep the skeleton in the closet and you're the skeleton, so you stay there. If you love her you'll see it my way and do as I say."

If you love her ... Millie Macfarlane, Mrs. Shaw now, not legally but every other way, put her still lovely head on her white hands and wept.

She did love Valentine. If it would help her to stay away ... besides, she wasn't much of a letter writer and they moved so much. Later on, when Vincent's wife died and they were married ...

THE VOICE OF Broadway

By Louis Sobol

Snapshots at Random!

Heat, humidity and the holiday cleared Manhattan of its most important citizenry over the week-end and left a few of us to enjoy the peace and calm of a deserted Gotham ... I've always insisted that New York is the ideal vacation spot during a holiday period ... no traffic ... no crowds ... no hurry and scurry ... Sunday night I traveled out to Woodmansten Inn, being in a mood to listen to Will Osborne's soft crooning—holidays do that to me—nor was I disappointed, for the lanky Osborne crooned baritonically and pleasantly and a good time was had by all ... Buddy Rogers was there and with him was Lillian Roth and for that matter Johnny Green, too ... Johnny writes songs and with no particular urging hopped over the piano rail, dashed to the piano and let his fingers drift over the piano keys to sound out his famous "Body and Soul" song ... Lillian was too tired to sing ... Buddy was too tired to sing ... so it was all very pleasant, nor was I particularly annoyed when the young man who is known to radio as Mister Budd, of Stoopnagle and Budd volunteered a few song impersonations ... Four nicely mannered sepian lads came forward then and lo and behold, they were the Mills Brothers who bellowed and trumpeted and bassed and sang through their repertoire in pleasing harmony ... Lillian Roth spots us ... "O my Heavens, Louis!" she cries, "why in the world did you ever run that crazy line about Milton Berle and myself" ... "Well darling, it was like this. Your mama looked so pleased when she saw you talking to him. And Milton's mama beamed, so I figured it might be a good match for both of you" ... "Oh, you're just impossible!" ... A lad of about 12 passed by ... The dead image of Eddie Cantor ... Pop eyes ... Nervous gesture of hands ... His uncle, Al Goldman, introduces him ... His name, of all things, is Georgie Price!

At the premiere of "Smiling Faces" at the Schubert ... Papa Stone and dtr. Dorothy Stone ... A prettier and more charming Dorothy than ever before and indeed, she was whatever there was that might be considered good in this rather dull, innocuous musical ... The intermission was far more delightful ... over at Sardi's for quiet gulp of ginger ale to sight Peggy Fears, her hair let down to a point below her shoulder blades and another long haired lass, dark-eyed and in a close fitting and revealing red gown, Lenore Ulric ... Manny Seff, author of "Blessed Event," slumps down beside me and being advised that I have seen the preview of the picture fashioned from his play, asks what I thought of it, to which I reply, truthfully, always being undiplomatic that way, that I considered the picture inferior stuff compared to the play, but that Lee Tracy had turned in a masterful performance ... For that matter I am opposed to these pictures which reveal columnists as the offspring of sewer rodents and stagnant pool snakes, for while it is quite the smart thing these days to picture the lads of the columnistic profession as wallowing in the mire of malodorous gossip and exuding the stench of broken confidences, I won't concede that we are anything but a group of rewrite men endowed with a by line and haloed with an evil glamour.

Saturday night at the Hollywood Restaurant to marvel at the duo, Marguerite and Leroy, a dance team of amazing ability ... Blonde Vera Milton pouts at us ... She halts us after the supper show ... "Why did you want to put that in about me in your column?" she protests. "It isn't so ... I'm not keeping company with anyone. I'm happy as I am"; to which, of course, there is no answer except the customary "O yeah!" ... Later to the Capitol Theater and to wonder why these big houses still insist upon classing themselves as picture theaters when most of the program is devoted to vaudeville ... In this case, a star line-up, recalling the Palace of the happier days ... Jack Benny, Jack Pearl, George Olsen, Ethel Shutta, Lilyan Tashman, Sophie Tucker ... I leave quite impressed with the slim beauty of the Tashman limbs and the rather doubtful Tucker grin when Jack Benny, casually surveying the roundity of the lass, remarks that "Once around the Tucker waist is twice around Central Park."

Saturday night, for the first time in years, we visit a dance hall, the Orpheum, and there, after being effusively welcomed by the owners, who, I am told, are the veterans of the dance hall business, J. K. Nicholas and Milton Prince, am immediately put into my place when I attempt some anemic gag about ten-cents-a-dance gals by being informed that at the Orpheum it's twelve and a half cents a dance, a sum extremely difficult to gag about or rhyme about ... Pretty girls in abundance float around in long dresses and I begin to understand why a Prince of Siam and a lad of millions visit this place to pick prospective brides ... A lass is brought forward to meet me ... Helen Ladd ... And I wonder why her features seem so familiar until the beaming Nicholas, no longer able to restrain himself, fairly shouts ... "Don't she look like Constance Bennett?" and indeed she does ... color of hair, coiffure, tilt of nose and mannerisms ... Helen, I conclude, is a good girl as the saying goes, for in conversation which follows I learn that each morning when work is done—about 3 o'clock—she takes the long subway ride to Pelham and from there walks a mile to her home, which only a good girl would do ... I learn, too, that there is some sort of mortgage to pay off, to say nothing of the last three payments on the flivver ... And so I leave while the dusky Cleveland Jones and his duskier musicians wah-wah some enticing jazz number.

A casual peek into the Central Park Casino Tuesday night, never being one to hang around much in the Casino, and there sits Harry Rosenthal and the bride of his heart, Marjorie DeVoe ... and Irving Berlin, too, whom in all my years on Broadway I have yet to meet—I mean by way of introduction ... and at another table Jascha Heifetz ... Wednesday night, a half hour at the Cotton Club convinces me again that our Caucasian night club entertainers have a great deal to learn from their ebon brethren and sistern when it comes to sustained sparks of [illegible] ... Thursday night, Vicki Cummings at [illegible] ... songstress Vicki happy at the [illegible] because her ambition of being a leading lady is fulfilled [illegible] she goes into the Brown-Henderson show and nothing else matters ... Nicky Kempner joins us ... Talented composer [illegible] he fates haven't been kind to this little fellow [illegible] one of [illegible] outstanding musical figures [illegible] some producer doesn't engage him I don't know, and it isn't any of my business, but I crown him with laurel for a plucky fellow ... Promises he's the supreme optimist ... Always smiling ... Always with a word of cheer ... Always willing to sit down and play the piano for hours merely for the asking ... A world full of little Nicky Kempners wouldn't be a bad world.

PARTIES FOR ALL SORTS AND OUT OF SORTS RECOMMENDED

By GILBERT SELDES

The Prohibition Party's candidate for President is sure that if the American people are in their right minds and will be loyal to their higher natures he will win the election. His argument doesn't matter; it is nice to find a candidate who is confident without ifs and not blatant [illegible] and it is also nice to discover that a Prohibition Party exists. Because there aren't, in America, enough parties. The parties we have are too big and too old and too vague, their names are misleading. We ought to take a lesson from Germany, where when a voter goes to the polls he has a whole bargain counter of parties to choose from and parties with names which tell [illegible] to know. The [illegible] the Social Democrats and the National Socialist German Labor Party and the Communists and the Centre. Once you have skipped these you get into action.

GILBERT SELDES

There is the Radical Middle Class and, to spite it, the National Party of the German Middle Class (Economic Party), and if the German does not want to vote politically he has a few religious parties to choose from; and if he is tired of voting and wants action he has the German Socialist Fighting Movement and the Fighting Group of Workers and Peasants, and, opposed to the last, the Workers' and Peasants' Party of German, Christian Radical People's Front ... But the two best parties are the National Socialist Petty Income Drawers, Victims of the Inflation and Holders of Pre-War Money (there's a name: Nationalsozialistische Kleinrentner, Inflationsgeschaedigte und Vorkriegsgeldbesitzer) and the Free Economic Movement for Free Land, Free Money, Sound Currency—and I suppose, a good five-cent cigar.

When an American goes violently radical he founds a new party—only one new party—and calls it Progressive or Lincoln. What we need are parties like the Germans. For instance:

National Holders of Rainchecks to World Series Games of 1927 and Investors in Kreuger & Toll.

United Subscribers to Stock Market Advance Information in 1929 and Men Who Know Who Killed Rothstein.

Federated Parties of Those Disappointed in Love and Drawers to Inside Straights.

Original Order of Believers in the Russian Nationalisation of Women and James N. Doak.

Free Economic Movement for Five-Cent Good Humors, Dollar Wheat and Steel at 205.

National Party of Readers of Tabloids, the New Yorker and Poor's Manual of Railroads.

Consolidated Group of Men Who Never Wore White-Linen Knickers (for President: Jimmie Durante).

Women's Party for Beer for Taxes.

The Rudy Vallee Club of Long Island (for President: Bing Crosby).

Ye Olde New York Branch of the New York State Association of Retail Meat Dealers, Incorporated, 250 W. 57 COlumbus 5-5940.

Then, at least, we'd know precisely what we were voting for.

* * *

I note that the Ye's are slowly vanishing from our social life. The Ye mentioned above is one of 12 listed in the New York Telephone Directory, and there was a time when you could find 20 or 30 Ye's running around, including the short-lived but much publicized Ye Olde Radio Shoppe. I have nothing against the Ye; on the contrary, both Ye Radio Shoppe and the list in the phone book have helped to pay the rent for me at various times. I still do not know why people want to call themselves Ye Olde or why they think patrons will be attracted to Ye Olde; but if they want to play, let them play.

DEMAND FOR QUALITY IS A GOOD SIGN

By B. C. FORBES

Merchants tell me a revolt against shoddy, against poor quality, has lately set in.

A buyer for a [illegible] of department stores [illegible] demand from [illegible] every center now is for a better grade of goods.

"I find you still have to pay for quality," I heard my wife remark this week.

This new trend is healthy and encouraging. It suggests that people have become more rational, more normal, not to say more optimistic, in their thinking. It means that conscientious manufacturers will be subject to less temptation to sacrifice quality in order to pander to clamor for cheap, second-rate products. High-grade concerns will have a better chance to earn a profit.

Hard necessity has compelled a lamentable number of families to lower their standards of living. Adversity doubtless has its much-trumpeted uses but, personally, I have never been able to see beauty or virtue or anything else fascinating in poverty. My considerable experiences with it [illegible] me to hustle strenuously to emerge from it. Nor has it left pleasant memories.

So I, for one, am profoundly glad that the painful depression promises to give way to less unpleasant conditions. It will help, not hurt, us to be able to surround ourselves with and utilize, not the most inferior and cheapest, but more attractive and better-quality things.

Expansion Despite Adversity

Andrew Carnegie's advice, "Utilize dull times to build new plants," has been followed profitably by one large concern, Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company. It has gone straight ahead through the depression with a $30,000,000 modernization and expansion program.

Next week it will formally open a huge central breaker at St. Nicholas, Pa. Two years ago it completed a similar project at Locust Summit, Pa. The results?

Whereas 1929 incurred a loss of $795,000, 1930 showed a profit of fully $1,000,000 and last year the figure rose above $1,360,000. President Andrew J. Maloney decided to abandon the fetish of "domination of the market." He concentrated upon earning profits for stockholders. High-cost mines were closed. Millions upon millions have been spent on the new modern centralized breakers, on electrifying mines and other profit-making improvements.

"Coal travels into it on a rubber belt at 30 miles an hour, divides into two streams, is automatically sized, separated and cleaned. Five minutes later it is in the cars. Ten minutes later the sales department—not production but sales department—has a scientific laboratory report on the quality."

President Maloney's guiding maxim is "Pay more attention to the customer and less to the competitor." He has made it pay.

Business Trend Encouraging

One more healthy sign: President George O. [illegible] of Stone & Webster tells me that the latest weekly figures show that Engineers' Public Service Company's electrical output maintains "the steady improvement shown since the middle of July." The rate then was 15 per cent below the previous year, the decrease now is only seven per cent.

The economic barometer continues to move in the right direction.

And Wall Street continues cheerful.

GEN. MOTORS' POSITION IS IMPROVED

By FRANK H. MELOON

General Motors, headed by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., [illegible] native New England executive, has performed the [illegible] feat of growing during the depression. It always hopeful of a 1932 upturn with its share of the automobile market increased materially, its working capital above the level [illegible] at the end of [illegible] and [illegible] 70 per cent larger than when the stock market began its memorable slump.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr.

General Motors was one of the two American automobile manufacturers to show a profit during the dreary first half of 1932. If the hoped for improvement does not prove near at hand the big corporation is in an excellent position to carry on until the sales grow higher. These results are in the main a tribute to able management.

Trading Notes

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

TRADING was most erratic in Wall Street today. Irregularity followed the broad movement into new high ground for numerous issues. [illegible] were pacesetters [illegible].

Bank Clearings Off Outside New York

[illegible] are puzzled by the [illegible] of bank clearings [illegible] proved to be a rather accurate index of the dollar volume of business when considered outside the New York area. The New York clearings or check exchanges are supposed to be largely weighted with security transactions. An increase of 26 per cent in bank clearings [illegible] the first week of September compared with the last week of August is reported by Bradstreet. [illegible] The report is based on [illegible] in 47 cities. The [illegible] week was $1,09[illegible] [illegible] the previous [illegible] New York city [illegible] the country [illegible].

More Studebakers Sold to Consumers

Deliveries of Studebaker cars to consumers in August were 31.8 per cent [illegible] than in July, the company announced today. Combined deliveries of Studebaker and [illegible] cars for August were 17.6 per cent [illegible] of July. Marmon [illegible].

Youngstown Steel Output at 20 P. C.

It is reported in the steel trade [illegible] Youngstown steel plant operations [illegible] week were at 20 per cent of capacity compared with [illegible] per cent at the week's [illegible].

Pepperell Payment Passed as Planned

Pepperell Mfg. Co. passed its common dividend today, as planned a month ago. For the year ended June 30, Pepperell reports net loss after all charges including depreciation and inventory markdown of $1,199,518. This compares with net [illegible] in the preceding fiscal year of $[illegible]. Net in the latest year is after applying the reserve of $[illegible] which had been set up previously.

Motors' August Sales to Consumers Up

General Motors Corporation sold 37,[illegible] cars and trucks to consumers in the United States during August. This compares with 32,849 in July and 69,876 in August, 1931. Sales to American dealers last month totalled 24,151 units, against 31,096 in July and 62,667 a year ago. Total sales to dealers including Canadian and overseas business amounted to [illegible]0,419 units compared with 36,572 in the previous month and [illegible] in August, 1931.

U. S. Report Causes Break in Cotton

Stocks are frequently seen following the lead of commodities. This happened today right after cotton broke $3 to $4 a bale today on the government crop report which placed the indicated yield well above trade expectations. At the reopening of the market following the report, contracts were sold heavily.

Hercules Powder Is Seen Accumulated

Encouraged by the advance in du Pont and its affiliated issues, it is understood that very substantial buying power has accumulated in Hercules Powder. This company has an [illegible] powerful current asset position, with current assets [illegible] times its current liabilities.

Pennsylvania Earnings Estimated

Late estimates are to the effect that Pennsylvania will earn slightly in excess of 60 cents a share net this year.

SPECTATOR Says:

It's the same old story in the market; the sponsors won't let them go down. The explanation may well be the fear that a drastic decline in securities at this stage would throw cold water on the budding business gains. At any rate, the "full steam ahead" pennon is apparently out again.

Power Production

The sharp gain in power production for the week should have an increasingly favorable effect on the utilities and tend to hide the unfavorable political clouds.

Electric output from now on, in addition, will have the helpful influence of gains in the heavy industries such as steel and automobiles.

Auburn's Action

Auburn's spectacular rebound bears out the warning to avoid the short side of the stock...Of course, it is being tipped for the high places now just as it was for the cellar a few days ago...Auburn is a difficult stock to judge from the tape. Personally, we wouldn't touch it on the long side unless we were in on the ground floor, but we certainly wouldn't go short of it...

What apparently has been going on for a week is that the stock was made to look sick to invite short selling. The campaign seems to be succeeding. The tape says prices are going higher, and so far the tape has been the best guide.

STOCKS MIXED ON BOSTON EXCHANGE

Share prices were mostly mixed in late trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Rail shares featured an early afternoon run-up but profit-taking reduced most gains. Atchison lowered a fraction after selling up over a point.

Boston & Albany advanced 2 points. New Haven and Northern New Hampshire Railroad showed gains of around a point while Pennsylvania added a major fraction.

New highs for the movement were recorded for American Woolen preferred, Quincy Mining, Anaconda, Nash and Warren Brothers, but this group eased slightly from their tops.

U. S. Electric Power sold at a fresh peak for the year on a fractional rise. [illegible]son Electric jumped three points. Eastern Gas & Fuel issues were strong with the preferred selling two points higher while the prior preferred advanced a point.

American Telephone was down over a point and New England Telephone dropped a point. Minor recessions were shown for Bigelow Sanford, Gillette and Stone & Webster.

Mohawk and United Shoe were at slightly higher levels. Reece Button Hole Machinery was down two points from its previous closing level.

STOCKS LOWER IN BIG WALL ST. MARKET

New York, Sept. 7—Stocks in Wall Street fluctuated erratically in one of the most active sessions of the past two years. Intermittent rallies failed to hold, and several of the leaders slid off 1 to 3 points in the late trading.

Issues losing 2 to 3 points included U. S. Steel, American Telepone, Allied Chemical, du Pont, Union Pacific and Case, while losses of a point or more were numerous.

SALES OVER 5,000,000

The late tone was weak. Sales approximated 5,500,000 shares.

A larger than expected Federal cotton crop estimate proved a sharp jolt for the shares market, as cotton futures broke around $4 a bale.

Speculators for the rise fought with determination against a large volume of profit taking and other selling, and after many of the leaders had lost 1 to mor than 2 points in th middle of the day, in sympathy with a break in cotton. The list recovered somewhat in the early afternoon.

The day's news was by no means devoid of items susceptible to bullish construction, but the recent advance had been so swift that traders were anxious to take profits.

EARNINGS ARE STUDIED

Despite some convincing signs of a seasonal quickening of business activity, cautious traders pointed out that it might be well into 1933 before business improvement is reflected in substantial gains in corporate earnings.

Many leading corporations, according to Wall st. calculations, will show no profits applicable to the common stocks for the full year 1932. A survey by Standard Statistics indicates that with two or three exceptions, the leading steel and automobile manufacturers will show no earnings for their common stock for 1932. Nevertheless, the more enthusiastic bulls felt that it was currently time to anticipate improvemen in 1933, and some felt that earnings should recover quickly, in view of operating economies inaugurated during the depression years.

While the August automobile production figures had shown a considerable shrinkage, this was evidently due in part to the Ford shutdown. Tangible evidence of the reported quickening of retail sales during the month appeared in General Motors monthly report, issued at noon.

August sales of General Motors cars to consumers in the United States totalled 37,230, against 32,849 in July. The normal seasonal tendency has been downward from July to August, and the August gains may reflect increasing buyer confidence as result of the upturn in leading security and commodity markets which started in July.

Another favorable report of the movement of revenue freight for all class one railroads was indicated by several individual reports already at hand for last week. New York Central's report was about 4½ per cent over the previous week, and approximately 28½ per cent under a year ago, against a drop of 31 per cent from 1931 in the [illegible] week.

U. S. Steel's monthly unfilled tonnage report is due Saturday, and some usually well informed quarters were inclined to warn that such new orders for steel as have appeared in the last couple of weeks may have been largely dated in September, so that even a small decline may be shown, although some quarters are looking for a gain of perhaps 150,000 tons.

OIL INDUSTRY ON GOOD BASIS

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER

New York, Sept. 8—The improvement in the oil industry is not entirely in the future. Substantial results in applying management in the large to a whole sick industry have already been attained.

H. R. Gallagher, who recently left the Shell interests on the Pacific Coast to become president of the newly-formed Consolidated Oil Corporation, a merger of the Sinclair and Prairie enterprises, told me that there as not only been sentiment gains, but actual tangible improvements.

Mr. Gallager imself typifies the best type of modern industrial management in the oil industry. Answering my questions, the executive said:

"In my opinion, there is considerable evidence not only of progress but of accomplishment, in relating production to demand. So far as the allowables are concerned, I believe this has been almost accomplished. We hear a good deal, however, about illegal excelings of allowables. How serious this is nobody knows, but this breaking away from the rules, where it occurs, is being thoroughly investigated and stopped. I am very hopeful that this situation will shortly have arrived at a point which will justify a higher price for crude to compensate the producer for his sacrifices."

Grains Are Lower in Chicago Market

Chicago, Sept. 8—Wheat today closed nervous ⅝-1 cent under yesterday's finish, corn ⅜-⅝ down, oats ⅛-⅛ off, and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Yesterday's sales 4,200,000

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

"Few parents are fit for the job of bringing up the modern child," says a juvenile psychologist.

About all parents can say in reply is "Why bring that up?"

* * *

The children of parents whose lives are wildish
Will look upon such goings on as childish.
While the reformers on and upward striving
Oft find their kiddies pinched for drunken driving.

* * *

Sign on a motion picture theater—

"MERRILY WE GO TO HELL"
Cooled By Refrigeration

* * *

And if a jury showed its knees in a heart balm case—that would be news.

* * *

"LULLABY OF THE LEAVES"
(Address)

"For the first time in the history of depressions, dividends, profits and cost of living have been reduced before wages have suffered."—Herbert Hoover.

* * *

While singing over the radio a pistol fell from the pocket of one member of a quartet, discharged, and shot the tenor in the leg.

And yet there are people who say there is no Divine plan.

* * *

Gals who make perfect moms
Raise Pekinese or Poms.

Q. AND A. DEPARTMENT

DEAR HELPFUL A. BELLA:

I have often heard that "the way to a man's heart is by his stomach." I am interested in a well-to-do man who loves to eat and drink. Perhaps you can tell me—how do you mix an old-fashioned "Tom and Jerry?"

CURIOUS.

Ans.—I use an electric washing machine.

A. BELLA.

* * *

And there's an attorney in Ely, Nev., named Stringham.

* * *

Says the Rev. Wiley:
"Too many people think that because good liquor makes men vile, that vile liquor will make them good."

* * *

Italy has only one Mussolini. And think of all the traffic cops we have in America!

PRACTICAL HINTS FOR PRACTICAL WOMEN

So many, ah! so many women strike a gong of discord in the home by saying to their husbands—

"Why don't you look me in the eye? Whatza idea of pawing the carpet with your foot when you try to explain? Howdja get that chow mein on your necktie?"

A better plan would be to extend the arms, gracefully and say something like this—

"Is my great big mans all tired out from overwork so he can't lift his chin? Here! Lemme take off the old shoosies. Sit right down in the big chair. While you're resting I think I'll tiptoe into the kitchen and make you a three-layer cake."

* * *

Says the Rt. Rev. Wiley—

"An inferior complex is what you get for believing half of what you hear about yourself."

* * *

Somehow, leaders never misuse
Chances to evade the issues.

* * *

Simile—

Delicate as a British detective's foot.

* * *

"I resent being called a gold digger," says Moronia, as she tosses the rose from her hair, "jus' because I mine my own business."

* * *

And too many radio programs sound like the broadcast to end all broadcasts.

* * *

Now we're getting somewhere:

PASADENA—The board of directors of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce adopted a resolution condemning pessimism among business men at the opening session of the organization's national convention at the Hotel Huntington.

* * *

FAMOUS LAST WORDS
You're one of them wise guys, ain't you?

* * *

Parents will kindly co-operate by not permitting their children to play in front of band stand during the concert.

RADIO ILL WINDS BLOW AGAIN

Old Jokes Get New Lease on Life

By N. F. T.

O'er the radio ramparts we watch, listen and wonder. Music is again coming between those who write it and the radio realm where it is given the air.

• • •

STILL SEETHING

After settlement was made whereby the Society of Composers and Publishers would share in commercial revenue derived by the big broadcasters, said tune creators promptly established a clearing house for "mike" music. Approximately 85 per cent of the Society members enjoy most of such benefits as are afforded by this arrangement. But the remaining 15 per cent have been disgruntled. It seems the latter minority does turn out bits very often desired for program use. Therefore there's a fight of some sort almost certain to result, with studios likely to suffer through future selection controversy. That is, unless another amicable adjustment takes place.

• • •

PRE-WAR PUNS

All of which listeners may not notice as they do the old joke revival apparently in vogue behind sound sanctum walls. Surely it wouldn't be so, if broadcasting bosses could hear certain armchair comment passing in the parlors.

• • •

Because loudspeaker patrons accept and appreciate hearing the mellow music of another day, is no sign they like to laugh all over again at some bewhiskered wheeze that afforded hearty hee-haws back in those spirited nineteen-teens.

• • •

BALL TOSSERS BANQUET

Baseball is the topic of a half-hour offering through WAAB tonight (8:30 to 9 o'clock), as the Boston Park Department stages its annual get together at the Cadet Armory on Columbus ave. Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, czar of organized big league activity, will be the principal speaker. William Harridge, president of the American League, also delivers an address. Then comes Bob Quinn, head of the Red Sox. Park Commissioner William P. Long acts as toastmaster throughout. John A. Heydler, National League chief executive; Judge Fuchs, owner of the Braves; Police Superintendent Michael Crowley and Charles Grimm, Chicago Cubs manager, are to be among other prominent guests.

• • •

LOCAL LATHER

Rev. Michael J. Ahearn has recovered from his prolonged illness and returns as "Question Box" conductor (WNAC) during the Catholic Truth Period next Sunday afternoon, between 1 and 2 o'clock . . . Just about every personality on the Yankee Network staff took part in a special sales promotion demonstration staged at the Hotel Statler on Tuesday. Beg pardon, the "Gossipers" weren't presented. Go ahead and wonder why, you have the right if you have the courage . . . Here's where your Uncle N. F. T. reaches the peak of his seldom displayed courage to answer a query from an Allston subscriber who wants to know what a Micro-Farad is. Our friend (?) also seeks the definition of an Ohm. Well, the former is a unit of measurement in a condenser, while the latter is a similar unit of resistance. Both strictly technical terms. So there, don't ever ask an orchestra to play "Ohm, Sweet Ohm" on the air.

On the Air

Memo to football officials who've turned thumbs down on radio: The first yr. that WNAC b'cast baseball games, paid attendance at Fenway Park increased 90,000. And the second yr. it hopped up 110,000. So there, you meanies.

Last year's Radio's Vocal Big Six: Morton Downey, Kate Smith, Art Jarrett, Bing Crosby, Alice Joy and Russ Columbo. Kate Smith is the only one left on the air today. A Big Six all by herself, as it were.

The Boswell sisters have a record contract which gives them 23 months on the air without a break. Which is one time when no break is a break.

"Spinach is beneficial to the eye," an'nced a lecturer on a local station . . . "In which case," popped up Ranny Weeks, "here's a great opportunity for a Burbank to cross spinach with grapefruit."

Last yr. NBC aired Picard's flight into the stratosphere and now, that network intends b'dcasting from a depth of 2640 ft. below sea level. Yep, 'twas Darwin who said "Radio can climb the heights, but oh, boy, can it go down low."

Edwin Whitney, NBC character actor, tells of the time he was touring "tank towns" and giving a "one-man show," consisting of various character sketches. His host in one town expressed surprise that Whitney ignored his supper . . . "You see," explained Whitney, "I'm presenting that show advertised at the theater tonight and I don't like to eat before a performance for fear I might spoil it." . . . And he gave the host a pass . . . When the localite returned that night his wife asked what Whitney had done . . . And his reply established him as the world's most brief critic: "He might as well have et." M. G. M.

1—The five billion dollar loan to relieve unemployment and put billions of dollars into immediate circulation.

2—Adoption of 5 per cent sales tax and reduction in income taxes, releasing income to finance industry.

3—Immediate modification of the Volstead act, permitting light wines and beers, reviving industry and employment, providing government income, ending racketeering and restoring American personal liberty.

Mere Shadow-Boxing With Unemployment Relieves No Distress

For many weeks the country has been regaled with administration reports of huge appropriations and far-reaching plans, dispositions, organizations, arrangements and what not, for the relief of unemployment, but the measures taken at Washington to relieve the plight of the unemployed seem to stop in the blue-print phase. They are mere announcements of what is going to happen and what somebody HOPES TO DO.

Is the great and much needed work of unemployment relief to go no further than the preliminaries of preparation?

Is the administration to content itself with what amounts to no more than camouflage and shadow boxing?

Senator Wagner has called attention to the fact that many projects for governmental construction are in readiness to be carried forward, as soon as the necessary funds are available.

The Treasury, at the same time, claims that ample resources are at its command for the institution of these works, as soon as it is satisfied that plans have been completed and proper requisitions are received.

Surely this is not so broad a chasm that it should take much time to bridge it.

Senator Wagner's words constitute a warning WHICH CANNOT BE IGNORED.

> "It is quite beyond dispute," said he, "that we shall experience a winter of indescribable cruelty unless we immediately bring into full operation the $2,000,000,000 Relief and Construction Act."

Senator Wagner is not alone in the warning he utters. Other voices of equal authority are mingled with his.

President Green of the American Federation of Labor reminds the country that unemployment in the month just closed reached the highest figure since the depression began.

> "Untold suffering, with at least thirteen million out of work," says President Green, "will grip the country this Winter unless the Government acts promptly to put men back on jobs."

The American people through Congress have responded to the cry of their distressed fellow citizens with a noble generosity. They have submitted to a cruel load of taxation in order that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and its allied organizations should have at command the resources needed for the work of relief.

The failure of the Hoover administration to make prompt and effective use of these resources may finally impel the people to see if they can "borrow" the Reconstruction Finance Corporation if Mr. Hoover has no use for it.

Mr. Johnson's Loan
Or Was it a Gift?

Thomas Johnson, the city greeter of Boston, gave $25,000 to the Republican National Committee for campaign purposes. He says it was a loan. The committee says it was a gift.

Singularly enough, or perhaps it was only a coincidence, Mr. Johnson at the time of his donation was in with a group of men who were seeking to obtain from the government the great airplane carriers, Lexington and Saratoga, to convert them into passenger-freight liners and operate them by a private corporation for profit.

The deal to secure the airplane carriers fell through. Perhaps that is why Mr. Johnson says the $25,000 was a loan. The whole thing is full of perhapses.

Here is an incident which should open your eyes to the way in which tariffs are passed, taxes fixed, campaigns conducted and the great and free government of the United States operated and manipulated.

Treasurer Nutt of the Republican National Committee wrote Mr. Johnson, "I am sure it will make the President very happy when I tell him what you are doing for us." Assume that this was not merely a come-on letter; assume that the President WAS to be told of Mr. Johnson's $25,000 donation. Can anyone safely or reasonably assume that if Mr. Johnson had occasion to present a suggestion to the administration it would be less favorably received than the suggestion from some humble person who had not contributed $25,000 to the party of the administration?

The campaign contributions to both parties will soon be published. Read them over carefully. Perhaps you can detect some evidence that the donations are in payment of tariff, tax or other favors received or anticipated. You should read the political news intelligently these days, every line of it. These are the times when deals are made, trades executed and Uncle Sam gets ready to go home in a barrel.

For Superior Clerk

William M. Prendible is well qualified to be re-elected to the position which he now occupies—clerk of the Superior Criminal Court of Suffolk County.

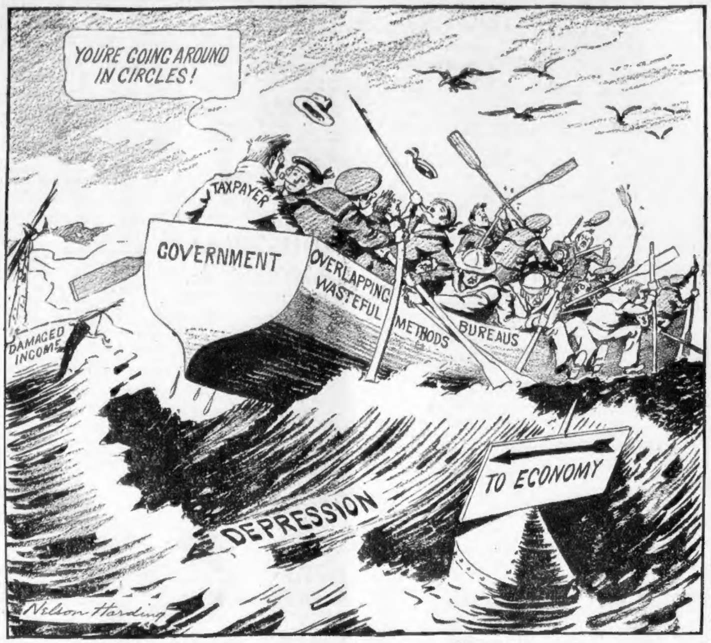
He schooled and educated himself as a lawyer. He has been for seven years a member of that department. Upon the death of Mr. John R. Campbell, he was chosen by the Justices of the Court as the man best qualified to be its clerk.

It could be said, in deep sentiment, that he came from humble origin, that he fought through years of adversity, that he has been tender in the care of his invalid mother.

But the people will elect their Clerk of Superior Court upon the basis of the applicant's legal training and experience in an office that requires this technical equipment. Mr. Prendible has it.

That Boat Is Overmanned!

By Nelson Harding



The poor man seated in the stern
Of that boat wishes to return
As fast as possible to land,
But sees his craft is out of hand.

There are too many in the crew,
He would get farther with a few.
So many oars are clashing there
That he's not getting anywhere.

New York Day by Day

Artists in Attics

New York, Sept. 8—Artists, popularly imagined to be in tune with attic improvidence, have had little sympathy during the withering bleakness of the passing trio of years. Yet, perhaps, never in history have they been forced to endure such leanness.

Hundreds, swept into boom time opulence, have been forced to return to The Village garrets from duplex apartments. And in their retreat found scant work to keep the gas jet aflame. Magazine curtailments have left many recognized artists completely stranded.

The worst blow was to commercial artists with regular and profitable assignments from the large advertising agencies. A number of these limners, in the prosperous period, drew from $15,000 to $60,000 annually, occupying penthouses and driving expensive motor cars.

* * *

Such top-notchers today are finding it difficult to maintain the moderately priced studios. Some have gone back to the Left Bank, to Holland or the Isle of Majorca to await better days. Naturally, there is a quota little affected, but the greater number are.

Several foremost magazine illustrators had rolled up huge but frangible margin accounts in broker shops. Arthur William Brown, for instance, dropped a million in such profits in 48 hours. Herb Roth, caricaturist, was a fortune ahead when the blow fell. And so on.

* * *

The Critics Circle, a brave little brochure in London, printed by dramatic reviewers, recently cauterized George Jean Nathan thusly:

There is a little jackass named
Nathan
Who smells like limburger cheese
A dunce, a shyster, a moron
Whom nothing can eve. please.

* * *

I always suspect Nathan's continual pokes at the drama were meant to produce just that effect. It is a most excellent way to win notice, even from one who writes extraordinarily well.

* * *

Annie Chambers of Kansas City's night life in its hell-roaring and high-frequency days is writing her biography—perhaps the first of its kind ever published. She was a part of the decadence that flowered in green-shuttered houses across the railroad tracks. It will bear the frank title: "An American Madame."

* * *

One of the astonishing statistical geniuses is Octavus Roy Cohan, Jr., 16-year-old son of the talented writer of negro tales. He knows more of the technical side of railroading than many experienced executives and he can tell the ownership, tonnage, weight and displacement of all the Pacific and Atlantic liners at a glance.

* * *

A diversion of [illegible] days is reading at [illegible] parties the notes left by part-time maids and cleaning women in their quarters. One amusingly enough read: "Mister: I clumb out the bay window to git your tooth brush and lit on a lej and tore my dress clean up the back. It was brann new. For fixing dress in tooth brush pick-up, 75 cents. Molly."

* * *

To his annoyance, I persuaded the keeper of a tiny shop in Grand Central last night to reopen a moment so I could purchase from a window display a tourist souvenir. It was an imitation pearl heart, frescoed with forget-me-nots. An inscription in gilt reads, "Welcome to New York," and it's to pin on the coat lapel. I'm now longing to wear it at one of those high-handshake teas.

Listen, World!
By Elsie Robinson

Believe in America!

I'VE BEEN having a hard time for the [illegible] eight months. Been traveling around this country, looking things over.

I have seen things that almost destroyed my faith in America and Americans. There have been times when I wouldn't have given a busted nickel for the whole measly mess of us.

Elsie Robinson

All this has done something to me. I can see that it is doing something to other people, too. It is changing us from a happy, confident, proud people into disorganized, suspicious, embittered individuals.

That's bad. That mustn't be. American life mustn't end this way for us who started with so much—

So I've pulled up short. I have forced myself to look where I was drifting . . . and to take stock of what courage and confidence is left in me. And out of that stocktaking have made a new creed for myself. It may not mean anything to you. You may not even think you need it. But I need it a lot. Without it I'm blotto. Here it is:

I AM GOING TO BELIEVE IN AMERICA.

I am not going to believe in America just because it is America. That sort of patriotism is simple-minded and never did any country any good.

Nor am I going to believe in America because it had a glorious past. Our fathers may have fought and bled and died—but we're not entitled to any dividends on their agonies. The heroes and sages of yesterday can't keep things going for the cowards and fools of today. We must stand on our own hind legs—if we stand at all.

BUT I AM GOING TO BELIEVE THAT WE CAN STAND.

I AM GOING TO BELIEVE THAT WE HAVE INHERITED NOT ONLY THE GLORY, BUT ALSO THE GUTS OF OUR FOREFATHERS.

I AM GOING TO BELIEVE THAT WE CAN DO SOME HONORABLE SWEATING AND WEEPING AND BLEEDING ON OUR OWN ACCOUNT.

I am going to believe in America because I think she still represents the finest vision of organized brotherhood which men have ever had.

We have never fulfilled that vision. And I'm not going to pretend that we have. We have never become the sort of people we wanted to be. And I'm not going to blind myself to the sort of people we are. I know that we are silly and selfish, stuck on ourselves—weak and bobbly and wasteful. And yet, in spite of all that—

I BELIEVE WE'RE A FINE PEOPLE.

I BELIEVE WE WANT TO BE HONEST . . . AND WANT TO BE STRONG . . . AND WANT TO BE KIND AND WISE.

I believe these things about other Americans because I know that they are true about myself.

AND I'M GOING TO BELIEVE THAT WE'LL WIN THROUGH.

WE'RE IN A BAD MESS NOW. WE DON'T KNOW HOW WE'RE GOING TO GET OUT OF IT. WE HAVEN'T MUCH OF A PLAN. BUT WE HAVE OURSELVES.

AND WE STILL HAVE IN OURSELVES THE THINGS THAT MADE AMERICA.

The Ballot in a Storm

A mighty storm came up at sea.
The waves rolled mountain high.
The captain troubled seemed to be,
Though clear and calm his eye.
The frightened passengers below
Outnumbered all the crew,
And someone said: "One way I know!
Let's vote on what to do!

"Let's vote on shall we steer ahead
Or turn the ship about.
So great the gale we may be dead
Before the wind dies out."
And some there were with trembling lips
Who said with aching throats:
"It's little that we know of ships,
But still we'll cast our votes."

"I've never been to sea before,"
A man was heard to shout,
"But I shall vote to reach the shore,
To turn the ship about."
Another in ill-temper cried:
"A watery death I dread.
The question quickly I'll decide,
I vote to steer ahead."

A little woman calm and brave
Said: "I have children small,
Whose happy lives I want to save,
But I'll not vote at all.
Of ships no knowledge I possess.
I scarce know stern from bow;
But I prefer in our distress
To trust the captain now."

What Labor Knows: Butler's Indictment
By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American.

THE HOOVER HIGH COMMAND, running true to the form of 1928, is basing its hope on the cynical philosophy of a cheap politician who said that the way to win is to "lie and stick to the lie and reiterate it time and again and the fool public will believe it." Never at this stage of a campaign have so many deliberate falsehoods been set afloat, and uttered by men holding high and responsible positions in the Government. We sometimes hear that a campaign in England is pleasantly free from slashing attacks on political opponents. This is not true. The Lloyd Georges, Winston Churchills, Stanley Baldwins and Ramsay MacDonalds attack one another on the hustings with a ferocity that American politicians in their positions seldom do.

But these attacks are never deliberate falsehoods; for the English spirit of decency and fair play would react against the slanderers; and public opinion would conclude that men so utterly irresponsible and reckless with the truth would be unfit for office.

It remains to be seen whether the American people will be as complacent with the Hoover High Command's methods as they were four years ago, when it followed the lowest and the meanest methods ever adopted in the history of American politics.

* * *

Undercover Fight Against Smith

But these reckless demagogues of the Hoover High Command unquestionably have "guts"—if no sense of shame and no capacity to blush. Four years ago, a low undercover campaign was waged against Al Smith by these people along lines too mean to mention. Senator Moses played his part. The public still remembers a certain historic letter of the Senator's, proving how deeply he was involved in those disgraceful transactions based on bigotry and hate. And now this same Moses has the effrontery to say that Al Smith, the victim of Hoover strategy of that sort, is going to help vindicate the very men, including Moses, who maligned and defamed him.

That, we say, is "guts."

* * *

Coolie Labor Impressed by Hoover

And now the committee of the Hoover High Command, unable to answer Garner's masterful letter of acceptance, is busy disseminating the most flagrant falsehoods about him. The latest is that he is a foe of labor.

Four years ago, Mr. Hoover boasted at Newark that he had employed 100,000 men and never had a strike. That sounds impressive—until we inquire into the character of the labor he employed.

It was coolie labor in China.

It was worse than coolie labor in Burma.

And these men, veritable slaves, were so pleased with Mr. Hoover's attitude toward them they did not strike! Imagine!

Mr. Hoover's attitude toward labor during the many years of his expatriation goes far to explain his attitude toward the unemployed today, and explains the use of bayonets and tanks in driving from the nation's capital the jobless bonus veterans, and the burning of their shacks.

The American Federation of Labor knows this to be true.

* * *

Hoover's Attitude Cold and Callous

Mr. Hoover's consistent attitude for three years has been one of cold and callous indifference to the misery of the jobless. He has opposed every plan that would put them to work on public construction with Federal money. He killed proposed compromises in plans to give them jobs—until he had whittled one down to the last possible reduction. He was opposed even to that, but he signed the bill.

And it begins to appear that he signed it with his tongue in his cheek. Not a wheel has been turned. Many weeks have gone and nothing has been done. And now Ogden Mills, that famous friend of the toiler, announces lightly that about the first of October he will know whether he will release the money. The money for the great corporations and banks was found and released in the twinkling of an eye. But it is a matter for interminable deliberation when hungry men, denied their inalienable right to work, are involved.

And the American Federation of Labor knows that.

* * *

Butler Arraigns Hoover Policies

Nicholas Murray Butler, in his annual address at Southampton, has drawn an indictment of the outstanding policies of the Hoover Administration. He was speaking as a patriotic American of keen intelligence, and not as a politician. And he denounces the tariff policy of Mr. Hoover, which has sacrificed a lucrative foreign trade, and is directly responsible for the unemployment of about 25 per cent of the jobless. It is not a "protective," but a prohibitive tariff that we have had forced upon us by the lash of Grundy, and the subserviency of Hoover. And Dr. Butler says:

> "The fact that at the present time there are some 10,000,000 Americans without work illustrates pretty clearly the measure of success which this system has attained in establishing and maintaining an American standard of living."

And the American Federation of Labor knows that.

* * *

Maligned Smith; Now Seeks Favors

And, unintentionally perhaps, but no less clearly, Dr. Butler indicts the Hoover Administration when he says:

> "It has already been necessary to change in large measure the original attitude of our people toward the natural resources of the Nation."

Mr. Hoover has not found it necessary—read his record on power.

And Butler continues:

> "The public forests, the public lands, the resources of water supply and of power can no longer be left to private exploitation at the urge of the profit-seeking motive for the simple reason that to do so would put a group of fortunate individuals in control of some of the necessities of the people's life."

That is precisely what the Hoover Administration wants and fights for.

It is precisely what Mr. Roosevelt contends against.

And that is the reason that Wall Street is for Mr. Hoover, despite its open jeering at his incapacity for leadership a few months ago.

There are places in the Butler speech that seem like an echo of the Roosevelt speech at Columbus.

The Forgotten Man Our Great Problem

Mr. Roosevelt's attitude on present-day problems and needs is that of intelligent progressive thinkers in all parties; Mr. Hoover's is that of the age of unrestrained human greed of the few, which has all but wrecked our civilization. Intelligent men, who had overlooked him in the hysteria of artificial and momentary prosperity, are now keenly cognizant of "the forgotten man." He is our greatest problem now. But it is not an unsolvable problem. When Government takes him within the scope of its thinking there will be no "forgotten man." That is what Roosevelt proposes and Hoover opposes. Pat Hurley, the crooner of the Administration, smugly says the "forgotten man" must "shift for himself." But he cannot "shift for himself" when all the machinery is set against him. All he asks is that privilege be ended, that the instrumentalities of government be taken out of the hands of the powerful who do not shift for themselves, and that all men equally shift for themselves—not just the masses.

"The forgotten man" sums up the campaign meaning. Governor Wilbur Cross, an intellectual and no demagogue, reminded us the other day that the phrase was not coined by Roosevelt. It was used years ago by Dr. Sumner, the great economist, who was not a politician or a demagogue. He was stating a fact. And the forgotten man knows that, too.
